

RC Campaign Chief Named

Paul L. Rogers, Tulelake insurance man and former homesteader, has accepted the chairmanship for the 1958 Red Cross drive in this area, according to an announcement from Chet Stoneypher, chairman of the board of directors, Tulelake branch of the Klamath Basin chapter of Red Cross.

A goal of $1,500 was set at a meeting of the board held Tuesday noon. This money will be used to replenish funds for emergency relief, continuation of the summer swim program for youngsters in Tulelake and Newell, and for financial assistance to the Red Cross blood program.

Heading of fund drives is not new to Rogers who has been an active citizen of the community since 1947, when he homesteaded and farmed near Newell, later moving into the town of Tulelake to enter business.

Last year he was in charge of a successful Boy Scout fund drive and has assisted in numerous other campaigns and projects for the betterment of the community. He is a member of Kiwanis International and has been active in the American Legion for many years. At the Tuesday meeting of the Red Cross Board, preliminary plans were outlined for the drive which will get underway the second week of March.

Paper Reports Assassination Try Against Red Chinese Boss

LONDON (AP)—The Manchester Guardian today reported three U.S.-educated Chinese students tried to assassinate Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai last July 28. The Guardian said it obtained the information from a young Chinese, now in England, who was in China at the time and was associated indirectly with the assassination attempt.

The informant, who was referred to by the pseudonym "Mr. Li," said that although Chou escaped with his life, there were indications that he was wounded or at least suffered from shock. The three would-be killers were executed, "Li" said.

The Guardian said its informant gave this account: The assault on Chou was the culmination of a chain of events which began in 1950, when a group of Chinese students formed a club "at one of the largest American universities" and took an oath that they would "dedicate our lives to save China from communism." Most of the students were either from the Chinese mainland or Hong Kong.

The group later made their way to China and were sent to Peking for a Communist indoctrination course. They "drew others into our group, until altogether they were about 60 of us." At the end of the indoctrination course, the students were assigned to jobs in various parts of China. Before leaving they were given private interviews with a leading Communist, usually Chou En-lai.

"On July 28," the Guardian quoted "Mr. Li," "three of our group went to their interview intending to try to assassinate Chou En-lai. They had only a pen knife. They knew that whether they were successful or not they would never return.

"When they did not come back that night, we knew they had made the attempt, but we did not know for a month that it had failed.

"It was given out that Chou was ill, and I did not see him at a public function until a performance of an Indian dancer at the end of August. Normally he was at parties and other public occasions night after night.

"At the theater he was subdued, and he left before the end. No more interviews were given to the students. . . . He did not go with the Chinese delegation to the 40th anniversary celebrations in Moscow."

"Mr. Li" said he himself eventually made his way out of China through Malaya.
