

Eastward Ho! The Wagons

From the West Coast to the East, this modern wagon train retraces the rugged trail blazed by 19th-century pioneers.

Food prepared under the open sky can be enjoyed with all the gusto that's stimulated by healthy appetites.

Curious young visitors eye the wagon train; it gives real meaning to lots of stories they've heard.

Hairdos, as simple as other needs, are no longer a major problem after a girl is on the trail for six months.

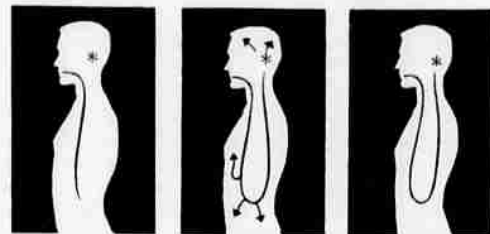

by Ellis Lucia

THE RANCHER wanted to try "something different," the two office girls were bored with their jobs, the old-timer who worked with Buffalo Bill wanted to relive the past. So they and a few others of similarly divergent backgrounds met last April in Ocean Park, Wash., overlooking the Pacific Ocean. They turned their backs on the ocean, climbed into covered wagons, and set out for the East Coast, more than 3,000 miles and a year away. These 20th-century pioneers—they're still en route—are trying to do from west to east what 19th-century trailblazers did from east to west: cross the country in a wagon train. Avoiding civilization, they sleep under the open sky, bathe in streams, eat from chuck wagons, and shoe their own horses. More than halfway across now (the train is due in Massachusetts in April), the unique expedition has encountered most of the same obstacles met by the original pioneers—drenching rains, sizzling heat, treacherous rivers, rugged mountains—plus a few more the early Westerners never dreamed of. Horses bolted in Utah's narrow Echo canyon when a roaring locomotive thundered by; a mare was cut severely when she stepped on a broken beer bottle; and the whole wagon train is constantly threatened by the worst of all hazards—the modern motorist. Said one wagon boss, "I'd rather face Indians." There's also another problem: the temptation to stop at a roadside stand and order a hamburger, or at a motel and sleep in a real bed. Thus far, though, the adventurers have remained true to their original purpose: "There's lots of folks forgetting the kind of people who built this land—and what they stood for. We're hoping to remind them."

Thorexin—the first guided cough medicine—relieves coughing as easily as aspirin stops headaches—fast, sure, safe! Thorexin soothes your throat . . . then speeds safe relief through your blood stream—directly to the cough control center (the spot where coughing is controlled). That's because Thorexin contains medicine's first non-narcotic cough suppressor, d-methorphan.

Thorexin is so effective it brings prompt relief to all 5 major types of cough: (1) Common Cold (2) Bronchial (3) Flu (4) Irritation (5) Excessive Smoking.

Yet Thorexin is so safe and mild you can trust it to relieve your youngster's sleep-disturbing cough. And children love its cherry-like flavor.

Ordinary cough syrups don't even touch the cough control center, which (as doctors know) really governs coughing.

Narcotic cough medicines depress the cough control center, but narcotics may leave undesirable side effects.

Thorexin speeds relief through the blood stream directly to the cough center to relieve your cough without narcotics!

No Feminine Hygiene Method Protects Like Zonitors

Gynecologist reports on new, easy, more positive method of Feminine Hygiene—provides continuous protection.

At last, science has developed a method of feminine hygiene a woman can use with confidence because it gives the germicidal protection of an antiseptic douche—but does it immediately and for a prolonged period—as no douche can. So quick and easy, this new method depends on remarkable vaginal suppositories, called Zonitors.

Once inserted, Zonitors dissolve gradually, coating tissues with a protective film which lasts for hours—and are ready to work instantly. Zonitors guard against—destroy odors completely, too—helping to maintain a high degree of comfort, convenience, safety and personal daintiness not possible with douches.

Zonitors' amazing effectiveness is due to one of the most potent antiseptic principles ever developed—the discovery of a prominent surgeon and chemist.

Doctor's Discovery—Hospital Proved! Zonitors were thoroughly tested in a large Eastern hospital. The supervising gynecologist pronounced them unusually effective, yet safe and non-irritating. They are now available without prescription in local drugstores.

Zonitors are greaseless and stainless—cost little for 12 dainty, snow white vaginal suppositories, individually packed to carry conveniently in a purse.
