

SATURA

Moisture makes complexion magic. A clean, petal-fresh skin is the very bloom of beauty. This lovely look is attainable with daily use of a moisture preparation like Dorothy Gray Satura, available both in cream and lotion form in a special offer now.

Applied after use of cleansing cream and skin lotion that suit one's particular skin type—normal, dry or oily, Satura draws moisture from the air literally to envelop the skin.

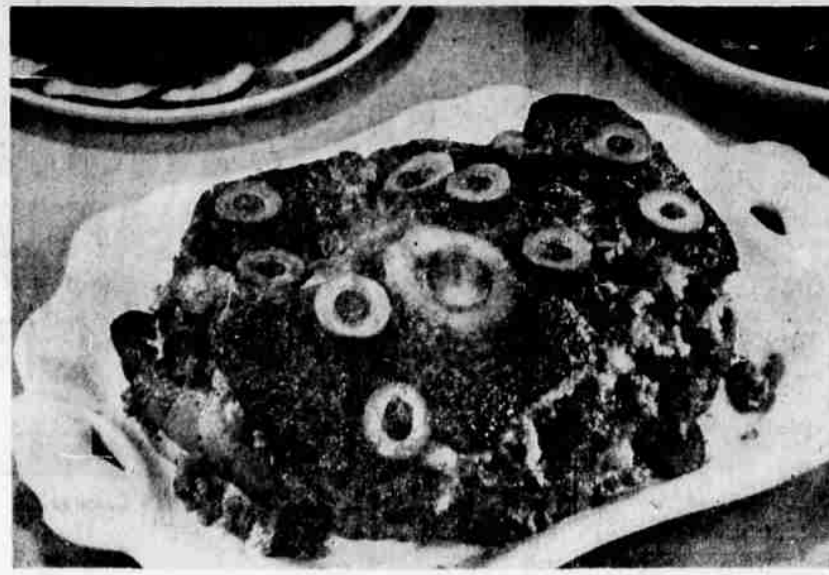

Satura Cream and Satura Lotion contain softening agents, plus Vitamin A to promote smoothness and counteract flaky dryness. Satura Cream also has hormones, so in addition to its humectant action of drawing moisture from the air, it promotes moisture retention within the skin. This action tends to plump up the lower skin layer with internal moisture, making lines and wrinkles less noticeable.

Both formulations can be used as night creams or applied lightly under makeup for daytime.

Dorothy Gray is making it easy for women here to try both Satura Cream and Satura Lotion without cost, for a limited time.

POPULAR round steak is shown here in a slightly different dress. American Meat Institute suggests stuffing round steak and garnishing with slices of stuffed olives. A color harmony is achieved by serving this with tomato aspic saled and asparagus spears. The dressing is herb-seasoned and consommé added for additional flavor and nourishment.

Stuffed Round Steak

Quiz your neighbor about what type of beef steak she serves most often and she'll reply, "Round steak, of course!"

Round steak heads the list because it's abundant, economical, and can be prepared in many ways.

This lean meat contains the round leg bone: it is a less-tender steak, but braising tenderizes it. Round steak is browned in a little hot fat, covered, and cooked with a small amount of liquid. Cooking very gently over low heat or in a moderately low oven (350 degrees) with a liquid insures a tender, juicy steak.

Round steak can be prepared with great individuality. While some folks like to cut the meat in serving size pieces, others like to cut strips, roll larger pieces, or even stuff the steak. Using unusual seasonings, such as thyme or ginger, in the flour which is

- 1 1/2 pounds round steak, cut 1/2 inch thick
- 1/4 cup flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon melted butter or margarine

- 1 1/2 cups packaged herb-seasoned stuffing
 - 2 tablespoons lard or drippings
 - 1 can (10 1/2 ounces) condensed consommé
 - 1/2 cup water
 - 1-3 cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives
- Sprinkle steak with mixture of flour, salt and pepper; pound on both sides with a heavy saucer or meat pounder until the flour is absorbed. Cut steak in half. Mix butter with stuffing and spread stuffing on one half of steak; cover with remaining steak and skewer edges. Brown in hot fat. Dilute consommé with water and pour over steak. Add olives. Cover and simmer 1 1/2 hours. Serve with cooking liquid. 4 to 6 servings.

NEW!

Swift's Meats for Babies

FOUR new Swift and Company baby food items have been tested and released to the market. Three are Swift's new chicken varieties and the fourth, Egg Yolks and Bacon, bring to 27 the separate items in Swift's line for baby's diet.

SWIFT'S MEATS FOR YOUR BABY

Swift and Company's latest additions to the line since the introduction last year of fruit flavored meat items for baby are three new chicken items and strained egg yolks and bacon.

Strained chicken and sweet potatoes, strained chicken with rice and strained chicken in a king are all available in the three and one-half ounce size, containing chicken broth, chicken, chicken giblets and other ingredients listed on the label.

To serve, warm the amount required and keep the remainder under refrigeration.

Chicken varieties are an extension of the baby's meat diet and are a definitely different type of food than vegetable-meats.

Before any new combination of foods is introduced by Swift and Company, much time has been spent in research and testing. All items are hospital-tested by dietitians, notably in the Chicago area, with exact records kept of nutritional benefits and palatability. The convenience of canned foods for infants and juniors is well established and many of the items on your grocer's shelves reached the market because mothers demanded those combinations.

BUFFET SUPPER

Individual pot roast served on broad noodles, accompanied by broccoli, broiled mushrooms and a dessert and salad are company fare. Individual pot roasts work out all right for a buffet supper, too.

For six servings, have your butcher cut 2 pounds of beef chuck into 6 portions. Combine 2 tablespoons honey and 1 tablespoon kitchen bouquet (or your own choice of seasonings) in the bottom of a Dutch oven. Place over moderate heat, add pot roasts and turn to coat all sides with the honey mixture. Lightly brown meat on all sides. Add 1/4 teaspoon margarine, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup water, 1 medium sliced onion and 1 stalk of celery, sliced.

Cover and simmer over low heat until meat is tender, about 2 hours. Replenish water when necessary.

Remove meat to warm platter. Put pan liquid, including vegetables, through sieve or food mill and blend to smoothness (use your electric blender if you have one). Skim off fat. Measure 3 tablespoons fat into saucepan. Blend in 3 tablespoons flour and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Add enough water to pan liquid to make 2 cups. Stir into fat-flour mixture and cook, stirring constantly over moderate heat until gravy thickens and boils. Serve roasts on bed of broad buttered noodles with gravy in side dish.

DESSERT

For extra special dessert enjoyment, lay six wedgeshaped slices of cheese to cover a juicy apple pie, put pie under the broiler until cheese just begins to melt and serve at once.
