WELL DRAINED SLOPES with a scattering of cover provide ideal range for calving. The early calves shown above are off to a good start and will add to Klamath County's beef production.

"BABY BLACK" has already made his appearance on this Poe Valley ranch. Aberdeen Angus cattle have been popular in the Basin for years and some of the most famous names in the registry have been produced on local ranches.

Wall Construction Effects Interiors

When an advertisement gives the square footage of a home, what does it mean?

This question is asked by many a prospective home buyer, the West Coast Lumbermen's Association points out.

Floor area, the lumbermen explain, is measured by the outside dimensions of a home, so that the actual living space inside the home depends on how much room your walls take up. A wood frame house that is wood sided will give a home buyer about 40 extra square feet of living space, the lumber experts state, since wood stud walls are much less bulky than masonry and brick.

How much is 40 extra square feet? About as much as an extra large bathroom.
