Car Insurance Plan Opposed

PORTLAND—The compulsory automobile insurance plan of Gov. Robert D. Holmes will be fought by the Oregon Assn. of Insurance Agents.

Herbert A. Ballin Jr., association president, said that Saturday in reply to the governor's proposal.

Ballin, who said his association represents agents writing 65 per cent of all property damage insurance in the state, said compulsory insurance isn't the answer to the problem.

The governor last week said many persons were injured or suffered financial loss in automobile accidents in which the other driver was not insured and had no money to pay. He said he would ask the 1959 Legislature to pass a law requiring all motorists to carry insurance.

Ballin said the result of such a law would be higher rates, increased litigation and political turmoil. Further, he said, it would not protect motorists against people from out of the state, from hit-run drivers, or from drivers of stolen cars.

He suggested that motorists already can buy insurance which protects them in case the other driver is not insured.
