Juanita Hall, original "Bloody Mary," re-creates role in movie.

Look What's Here

WHEN IT COMES TO WAITING, fans of the musical play "South Pacific" stand at the head of the line—or the end of it, depending on your view.

The Rodgers-Hammerstein Broadway smash had folks waiting up to six months for tickets. Movie-goers even beat that record—they waited nine years before "South Pacific" got on film!

The waiting is all but over now, and the Buddy Adler production of James Michener's World War II romance seems likely to justify the fans' perseverance. Director Joshua Logan has filmed the story with a wide-screen color process against the backdrop of Kauai, one of the most magnificent of the Hawaiian Islands.

Rossano Brazzi plays Emile deBecque, the role made famous by the late Ezio Pinza, and Mitzi Gaynor is nurse Nellie Forbush, whom Mary Martin portrayed on Broadway. John Kerr is Lt. Joseph Cable, and Juanita Hall, the only member of the original cast, is Bloody Mary.

"SOUTH PACIFIC"

After a nine-year wait, movie-goers will finally get to see Broadway's fabled musical.

Sounds ideal, eh? Well, Logan admits it was—with some exceptions. The wide-screen process lost the intimacy needed for the tender love songs, but that was corrected by softening the picture with special filters. Rossano Brazzi had never handled a singing role before and had trouble with high and low tones. A professional singer came to the rescue, though, and dubbed in the difficult passages.

The biggest problem was beautiful, lush Kauai itself. Logan discovered too late that it got that way from the 700 inches of rain that fall each year. "South Pacific" fans will appreciate Logan's solution to this dilemma—he just waited for sunshine.

Romantic leads were created on stage by Mary Martin and the late Ezio Pinza.

In movie, Miss Gaynor makes love and sings duets with Italian heart-throb, Rossano Brazzi.
