WORKING DILIGENTLY to make money for the Art Club trip were Barbara Blanchard, Fay Sanders, Donna Barrett, Altha Granquist, and Marlys Albert. These members along with approximately 15 others left Friday for their annual trip to Portland. Mr. Howard Hall, art instructor and Art Club adviser; and Miss Marie Johnson, girls' dean, accompanied as counselors.

Former KUHS Student To Play Local Concert

Wayne Angel, violin soloist, former member of Klamath Union High School's orchestra, will appear in a concert at Mills School auditorium at 8 o'clock Thursday evening, February 27.

Wayne is the youngest member of the violin section in the Portland Symphony. Those who have heard him consider him as one of the most outstanding violinists in the Northwest.

The KUHS orchestra will accompany Wayne in the "Mendelssohn Concerto." Other numbers being played at the concert are as follows: "Mozart Symphony-Number 40 in G Minor," "Toccata" by Frescobaldi, "Elsa's Procession to the Cathedral" by Wagner and the "Blue Tango" composed by LeRoy Anderson.

It was stated by Mr. Dale Hallack that KUHS was very lucky to have Wayne Angel as a soloist in its concert which is the first this year.

This is the first time since 1954 that the high school orchestra has given a full concert. The girls will be wearing formals and the boys white dinner jackets and dress slacks.

WAYNE ANGEL, guest solo violinist, will appear with the Klamath Union High School's orchestra concert in Mills auditorium Thursday, February 27, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Boys 'Enjoy' Twirp Season

By BETTY YANCEY

Twirp week proved fatal and funny during the one week a year set aside for girl ask boy week at Klamath Union High School. Girls from every class frantically sought dates for week nights, while boys hid in corners, dodging to and from classes with a fad of "Oh no, am I going to get caught?"

It seems when girls treat boys, they make boo-boo's too. A freshman girl didn't have enough money to pay for her date's unusually over-sized snack he ordered. But, it isn't very often a boy would buy a big-boy, french fries, and a milkshake for himself. By the way, he had to pay about half of the bill.

And, do you ever see boys planning, cooking and serving a complete dinner to their dates? No, but the girls did just that. And it seems the town doctors received quite a blooming business the next day. How do you feel boys?

Usually, after-game dances bring a stag group of students in, but at the twirp-dance, Friday, February 14, more couples flocked in than ever before. A little less watching and a little more dancing proves girls want to dance rather than "sit this one out."

Who was the girl that asked for the family car, picked up her date, and heading toward town to the game, had a flat tire? She was embarrassed and uneasy as she thought she would have to fix the flat tire but the boy volunteered and soon they were on their way again. By the way girls, next time you ask for the car, make sure there is a jack in it.

A long distance call to a boy friend in Portland from a KU sophomore proved twirp week was anything but a phrase.

It seems, junior girls delighted in giving funny, unromantic valentine cards to their dates on Valentine's Day. One boy was so proud of his card Friday, he stood in front of the K Club section and showed it off.

Now as twirp season is over once again, memories will last on until new ones replace old ones during twirp season next year. Students liked the idea even though now you hear sighs of relief from female students. Boys—they think it should happen at least once a month. Did you have fun?

Saturday morning the students toured the art galleries, modern furniture stores, modern buildings such as churches, and the like of Portland. The presentation of awards was given Saturday afternoon.

Saturday evening the Portland Art Museum was host to the group. Here they saw exhibits of the Museum Art School and demonstrations on practically any phase of art—sculpture, weaving, ceramics, painting.

KU Students At Art Show

Members of the KUHS Art Club left by school bus Friday, February 21, at 8:30 for the Lipman Wolfe Scholastic Art Awards Exhibit in Portland.

All members who had completed 10 hours' work on art club projects and had a three-point grade average were eligible to go. Through the projects, such as signs, posters and Christmas cards, money for the trip was gained.

At noon lunch was served in the Student Union Building at the University of Oregon in Eugene. A tour of the School of Architecture and Allied Arts on the university's campus followed. This is housed in a new building.

Portland was reached that evening and after dinner the group saw the Lipman exhibit.

All high schools in Oregon contributed to the exhibit. A jury then chose the entries which were displayed.

Around And About

The western meadow lark was chosen the state bird of Oregon by popular vote of the school children in every county of the state in an election in the spring of 1927, sponsored by the Oregon Audubon Society. The western meadow lark has a brown and buff plumage and a yellow breast. It has a beautiful song and is a native of every section of Oregon.

The first official American flag, the Continental or Grand Union flag, was displayed on Prospect Hill, January 1, 1776, in the American lines besieging Boston. It had 13 alternate red and white stripes, with the British Union Jack in the upper left corner.

George Washington Profile Given By Nugget Scribe

By SHIRLEY STILLWELL

George Washington, whose birthday was celebrated February 22, is widely noted for his accomplishments, yet Washington the man is not very well known. Biographers have praised him so highly that he hardly seems human. Kindly, thoughtful and modest he would have protested being placed on a pedestal, but this is where he belongs because he was a true American gentleman.

Born on a Virginia plantation in 1732, Washington was educated by his half brother Lawrence. His experience as a surveyor was gained by assisting in a survey of certain Fairfax holdings in the Shenandoah Valley. His part in the French and Indian War was significant because he gained military ability which he later used as the leader of the American Army in the Revolution.

January 6, 1759 Washington married Margaret Custis and retired to Mount Vernon, which had become his home after Lawrence died. Washington became a gentleman-farmer, a member of the House of Burgesses and a member of the First and Second Continental Congresses. June 15, 1775 Washington served his country with gallantry, upheld the Patriot cause and led America successfully through their fight for freedom.

Although he had again retired, Washington lent his support to the plan for a stronger central government. He presided over a constitutional convention and was unanimously elected first President of the United States, thus becoming the father of his country. During his two terms, the nation became established. His farewell address is considered one of America's most prized state papers.

Washington retained the commission of lieutenant general and commander in chief of the army until his death December 14, 1799.

The world's great men have not commonly been great scholars nor its great scholars great men.

A tomb at Mount Vernon is the final resting place of Washington, the man who leads the list in the American Hall of Fame.

Girls Hear Beautician

By MARIE ARNOLD

Mr. Carl Powell, manager of Eugene Beauty College, represented the school February 11 in a meeting of all girls interested in becoming beauticians.

Mr. Powell presented what the college offered and also discussed the general duties of a beautician. Twenty-nine junior and senior girls attended the meeting.

Some of the requirements for admission into the college are that a girl be at least 17 years old, is able to pass a health examination, and it is recommended that she be a graduate from high school.

Twenty-five hundred hours of instruction, theory and practice, are required to graduate from the college.

Natural characteristics which aid in knowing the art are an ability to learn rapidly and easily, to get along well with people, to have an artistic sense and to like creative work.

Three phases in acquiring a beautician's license are hair styling, manicuring and cosmetology, skin and facial care.

Possibilities in obtaining a job are unlimited. An example of the opportunity is an incident which Mr. Powell gave. A certain girl was able within four years to, first, have partnership in a shop and, at the present time, have her own shop. The minimum wages are $40 a week plus 50 per cent of the actual earnings. In some places 60 per cent is given, though not guaranteed.

Regrets are the natural property of gray hairs.

A Cappella Choir Gets Bid To Present Program In LA

By SHARON SUMMERS

A cappella choir of Klamath Union High School has been invited to give a concert for the National Convention of the Music Educators Saturday, March 22, at the Philharmonic Auditorium in Los Angeles.

The choir is scheduled to do the following program: "Ehre sei dir, Gott, gesungen" from the "Christmas Oratorio" by Johann Sebastian Bach; "O Softly Singing Lute" by Francis Pilkington; "Domine Jesu and Hostias" from the "Requiem" by Wolfgang Mozart; "Sanctus and Benedictus" from the "Mass in G Major" by Francis Poulenc; and "Psalm 150" by Kent A. Newbury. Only one other high school choir has been invited.

Approximately 90 to 95 students will make the trip, leaving here March 18 or 19. Students, chaperons and directors will be housed at the Alexandria Hotel in Los Angeles.

Future Teachers To Attend Meet

Future Teachers of Klamath Union High School are planning to participate in a Regional Conference set for April 12.

The conference will be for all prospective teachers in Southern Oregon. It will be held at Southern Oregon College of Education.

Some of the activities which will take place at the conference include sessions on teaching and what is derived from this profession. Both of these topics will be discussed by panels, films and special classes.

The conference will be from approximately 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. This will be the first year that the conference has been only one day.

The last activity that the Future Teachers have participated in was the classroom visitation. This was an all day visitation and took place February 5.

The Future Teachers divided into groups and each group visited one of the schools in the city. All of the city schools were hosts. After the groups arrived at the school, the students again split and each person was assigned to a class where they could help or look on as the teacher willed.

Many students who are planning to become teachers now are able to decide whether they want to teach or not by this visitation.

The students will be taken to points of interest as well as some of the outstanding concerts, depending upon the amount of the money raised and time available. En route to Los Angeles, the group will probably stop over at Modesto, and on the return trip hope to stop one night in San Francisco. Parents are contributing to the limit of their ability towards the expenses of the trip.

It is hoped that several thousand copies of a program will be prepared for distribution at the convention and will contain pertinent facts about Klamath Falls, the Klamath Basin, city schools and their music program, a picture of the choir, list of personnel and the program to be presented for the music educators.

Through the courtesy of the Klamath Theaters, a gala benefit movie show and concert will be presented at the Pelican Theater Wednesday, March 12. The choir will sing and the band will play. The feature movie will be "Old Limits" with Bob Hope and Mickey Rooney. Tickets will be on sale for $1.

Valentine Tea Fetes Faculty

By SUSAN BRETCHES

Members of the faculty were honored at the annual Valentine Tea given by the Tea Toppers, a sub-club of Girls League, February 12. Refreshments of pie with coffee or tea were served in the cafeteria at Klamath Union High School.

Those serving were Janet Owens, Norma Young, Linda Yuen and Pat Crawley.

Red and white carnations, narcissus and heart shaped candy boxes made up the table's centerpiece.

Third year home economic students helped to prepare the refreshments for the tea.

Officers of Tea Toppers are Norma Young, president; Linda Yuen, vice president and Pat Crawley, secretary-treasurer.
