

Rebel Army Chief Ousted

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—President Sukarno's government today named a replacement for the rebellious military commander of East Indonesia.

The Antara news agency meanwhile reported from the East Indonesian capital of Makassar that all telegraph service with the rebel-commanded province of North Celebes had been cut off and the government-owned Peini Line had been ordered to stop sailings to ports there. Lt. Col. Sombao, military commander of North Celebes, last week came out in support of the rebel government in Central Sumatra.

In Padang, the chief rebel center in Central Sumatra, an informant source said the rebel regime would declare itself free of all loyalty to Sukarno as soon as it can broadcast the declaration. Indonesian air force raids put the rebels' radio stations at Padang, Bukittinggi and Menado, capital of North Celebes, out of action last weekend.

Previously the rebels had said they were not seeking Sukarno's ouster, only the removal of all Communist influence from his government and more autonomy for the Outer Islands.

East Indonesia's new military commander is Brig. Gen. Gatot Subroto. The army chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Abdul Harris Nasution, named him to replace Lt. Col. Ventje Sumal, who has been in Tokyo and Manila trying to drum up support for the rebels.

Des Alwie, press officer of the rebel government, arrived in Singapore today en route from Manila to Padang to discuss setting up air transport for the rebel areas. The Indonesian navy is blockading the normal sea supply routes.

In The Hague, the Dutch navy announced that its destroyer Drenthe had seized a ship of the KPM Line under Indonesian command which fired on the Drenthe and ignored an order to stop shelling. The navy said the incident occurred Feb. 20 off Malaya and that the Indonesian ship, the Kasimbar, was taken to Manokwari, in Dutch New Guinea.

The Indonesians have taken over all ships of the Dutch KPM Line in Indonesian ports.

Orb Rockets Set For Firing

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Both the Army and Navy's satellite rockets are being readied for firing in the next two weeks.

Complications are delaying the Navy's effort, Vanguard, an informed source said last night. It isn't likely that Vanguard will be fired until later next week.

Vanguard's troubles include a liquid propellant shortage, minor electrical difficulties and revision of some of the rocket's valves, pipes and fuel tanks.

An Army Jupiter-C rocket, which successfully launched the first U.S. satellite Jan. 31, will make another satellite launching attempt, probably next week.

It had been set to follow the Navy Vanguard attempt but Vanguard now has to wait repairs and the supply of one of the fuels needed by its three-stage rocket.

Informants said the needed propellant is being shipped by truck from a Northern state.

The Vanguard is now in the flight test stage. Two earlier Vanguard launches attempted failed. The Army Jupiter-C, besides launching the Explorer, is a veteran test rocket.

Shooting Fray Claims Three

OAK CREEK, Colo. (AP)—A pool hall shooting reminiscent of the Wild West killed three men Monday night, wounded a fourth and left officers puzzled over the motive.

Sheriff Ab Ritter said Frank Gabossi, 63, bricklayer and father of 10 children, shot three friends at the pool hall, returned home and killed himself while talking on the telephone with his wife.

"He was laughing when he called his wife," Ritter said. "She said he told her 'Listen to this. That was the last she heard. She didn't hear the shot that killed him.'"

Ritter said Gabossi placed in his mouth the muzzle of the same high-powered rifle used in the pool hall shooting.

George Kourkounis, 63, operator of the pool hall, and Robert Jurkovic, 65, retired coal miner, died moments after they were shot in the stomach. Eugene Zamudio, 26, got a flesh wound in the back.

Oak Creek is a coal mining town 21 miles southeast of Steamboat Springs, major ski resort 140 miles northwest of Denver.

River Yields Victim's Body

DUNSMUIR—The body of Virginia Smith, 25, apparently a drowning victim, was found in the Sacramento River at 7:05 a.m. Sunday by Joe Snead of Dunsmuir.

Mrs. Smith's body was wedged in a log submerged in the rain swollen river just south of the city limits about one mile from her River Avenue home. She had been the object of a search by about 40 volunteer firemen from Dunsmuir and Castella after her husband, Sylvester Smith, reported she had fallen in the river about 1:30 a.m.

Smith said he and Mrs. Smith both fell from the embankment opposite their home and Mrs. Smith was swept downstream by the swift current. He aroused neighbors and Cliff Flowers, who lives next door to the Smiths, called the Dunsmuir police.

Fire Chief James Lambert said volunteer firemen had searchlights scanning the river from the main bridges in the vicinity by 2 a.m. and volunteers in pairs searched the river bank until about 4 a.m. Hope for finding Mrs. Smith alive was dim by that time and the search was called off until dawn.

Siskiyou County sheriff's deputy, Laurence Taylor of Mount Shasta, and Chief of Police Lee Clark, of Dunsmuir coordinated search efforts and removed the body after its discovery was reported by Snead.

Smith, the husband of the drowning victim, was treated at his home for hysteria and shock. Details of the accident could not be learned immediately. The couple has three small children. Noble's Chapel of Mount Shasta is handling funeral arrangements.

A resident of Dunsmuir for nearly 50 years, she leaves the widower Herman G. Fischer of Dunsmuir; another son, Sidney Fischer of Dunsmuir; and a daughter, Mrs. Helen Woodside of Auburn. Stanley Macgravin officiated. General Fischer, who is stationed in Verona, Italy, in command of NATO forces was unable to attend the services. He was in Dunsmuir in October when his mother suffered a paralytic stroke from which she never recovered.

Heavy Rains Bring Floods In North California Area

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Rain-swollen rivers hurled flood crests against soggy levees throughout Northern California today, spilled into the streets of half a dozen towns and threatened the homes of thousands.

From Trinity County to Santa Cruz, and from the coast to the Sierra foothills, families prepared to flee the rising waters at a moment's notice.

Most critical threat was to the communities of Marysville and Yuba City where the flooding Feather and Yuba rivers broke through in pre-Christmas disaster two years ago. Flood crests were expected to rise today to 75 feet, two feet below the levees which have been strengthened since the 1953 tragedy.

Rains dumped up to five inches more water Monday into streams already swollen by a month-long series of downpours. At least two deaths were attributed to the 24-hour storm. Today's forecast was more hopeful—partly cloudy with only scattered showers. But the flood crests continued to roll downstream, threatening new communities.

Monday's storm brought San Francisco's rainfall for the season to 21.79 inches, higher than the normal total for the entire winter rainy season, which still has some weeks to go. Normal to this date is 15.01 inches, for the season, 20.51 inches. Last year's seasonal total to this date was only 7.23 inches.

Already cut off or partially flooded by the rising waters of the Sacramento River were the communities of Tehama, Corning and Los Molinos, in Tehama County.

In nearby Red Bluff, 60 families were posed for evacuation. Tehama, Glenn, Colusa and Yolo counties along the western banks of the Sacramento had already declared themselves disaster areas or proclaimed states of emergency.

At Oroville, 400 families were under evacuation alert. The Feather River, rushing to its crest, was expected to rise to 62 feet; 71 feet is flood stage. Both rivers carry not only the heavy local rains but an unexpected runoff from the Sierra Nevada snowpack.

From the coastal mountains, the Trinity, Eel, Russian and San Lorenzo rivers rolled more havoc. Mountainous Trinity County was isolated as slides blocked Highway 209. Trinity River neared flood stage and all work was halted on Trinity Dam.

The Northwestern Pacific Railroad suspended service indefinitely as new slides washed out freshly repaired tracks in the Eel River Canyon through the northern redwood country.

Just south, the Russian River ran high from Ukiah to the resort area at Guerneville, and overflowed into lowlands in several places. In Lake County, lying along the eastern bank of the swirling Russian River, Clear Lake reached its highest level in 20 years. Fifty families fled their homes. 30 business establishments were flooded in the town of Lower Lake and all county schools were closed.

In Santa Cruz County, the San Lorenzo River ran one foot deep over Boulder Creek Dam and authorities feared it would flood low-lying areas of the town of Santa Cruz. The area recorded Monday's heaviest rainfall, four to five inches in 24 hours.

In Dunsmuir, a dozen families were evacuated when the Sacramento River overflowed. A mud slide buried the Southern Pacific tracks, delaying the northbound Shasta Daylight for several hours.

Cache Creek, which originates in Clear Lake, flooded two small towns northwest of Woodland in Yolo County, Rumsey and Capay. The 115 residents of the two towns fled to higher ground and watched five feet of water flood their homes.

Later, the Red Cross moved them to Esparto, where a shelter was set up.

Later, Cache Creek threatened the little town of Yolo as its crest moved downstream. Nearly 200 men were sandbagging the levee in the hope of saving the town. The residents were prepared to evacuate at any moment.

A spokesman for the Department of Water Resources said the situation was "touch and go."

Winds Rake State

approach to the Shasta River Bridge was washed away to the center of the roadway.

Three bridges in the Siskiyou County were closed on Monday. The Spada Bridge north of Edgewood toward the airport was closed at 4 a.m., the Davidson Bridge on Eddy Creek road was closed at 9 a.m., with the water 15 inches over the bridge. A farmer, Dwight Hammond, opened his levee to release the backed up water. The Edgewood Bridge over the Shasta River was closed at 3 p.m. on Monday and the Edgewood approach to the bridge went out shortly thereafter.

Frank McMahon, Siskiyou County road foreman, reported the water level higher than it was during the 1955 floods.

Road crews worked all night and were still out this morning. The latest bridge reported out today was over the Scott River between Etina and Callahan, some 45 miles from Weed.

The Triple A reported this morning that southbound traffic is going through on highways 99E and 99W. There is water over the highway at both Willows and Corning, but cars are able to drive through it.

Ex-Grid Star Faces Judge

Robert H. (Bob) Redkey, former college and professional gridder charged with assault and battery, requested time to enter a plea Monday afternoon when appearing before District Judge D. E. Van Vactor.

Redkey was arrested early Saturday morning on the OTI campus where he reportedly broke into the dormitory in an attempted attack on the person of Frank Wilson, an Oregon Tech football player.

Judge Van Vactor set Wednesday, February 26, as the time for entering plea and remanded the defendant to the custody of the sheriff until $350 bail.

Redkey had also been charged with vagrancy as an outgrowth of the altercation. The charge was dismissed during the Monday hearing.

Redkey is 29, and formerly starred in football at KUHS, Oregon State College, and in the professional leagues of Canada and the United States.

He is represented by Attorney David R. Vandenberg Jr.

Group Protests Parking Meter Plan To Council

Two delegations of citizens confronted the city council at its regular Monday night session in city hall, one to protest the installation of parking meters and the other to request consideration for the construction of a terminal building at the municipal airport.

Dena Backes, 428 Pacific Terrace, expressed dissatisfaction and concern with the council's plan to install parking meters along both sides of Seventh Street from Pine to High. She pointed out that the Marion Apartments would be metered and that the apartments were in a residential zone not an industrial or commercial area.

A petition signed by more than 30 persons was presented to the council by Junior Dean Miller, Marion Apartments, on behalf of the group. The council discussed the matter at length and agreed to take action because of the steep incline at the top of the street, and agreed that parking meters would be installed only to the midpoint of the block on both sides.

The other delegation consisted of Walter McIntyre, Ned Putnam, Harold Cloake, Rex Moore and L. Lester Clifton. They appealed to the council to give some consideration to the construction of a terminal building at the airport in the near future. McIntyre pointed out that at present there are some 130 seats available per day out of Klamath Falls by air, and that expansion plans by West Coast will boost that to over 200 seats daily soon.

He termed the present administration building, constructed in 1946, as "totally inadequate" for the job of caring for air traffic.

Putnam, president of the Sportsman's Pilots Association, invited any member of the council to accompany him on a trip to other cities of comparable size to investigate how they build and maintain their airport facilities.

He also pointed out that both Salinas and Monterey in California had recently completed construction of new terminal buildings, and a trip to these two cities might give the council valuable information.

No action was taken, but the mayor and council indicated that when the weather is better, they would avail themselves of the invitation.

Kenneth H. Spies, deputy state sanitary engineer, cleared the way for the city to complete construction of its new sewer treatment plant. Spies gave his approval to a secondary treatment plan which included a trickling filter and chlorination treatment to sewage after processing by the primary treatment plant, and then disposal on into Lake Ewauna. This would enable the city to complete its sewage plant without using oxidation ponds or lagoons.

Mayor Slater pointed out that the Klamath Disposal Company has agreed to pick up once a week the litter from rubbish cans along Main Street free of charge in its effort to assist the current chamber of commerce cleanup campaign.

However, Slater reported that a number of complaints have been received that some persons are using the litter cans as a receptacle for household garbage. He particularly noted that complaints covered cans in the vicinity of Miller's Department Store, Don's, J. C. Penney Company and the Medical-Dental Building.

Police officers were instructed to arrest any persons caught dumping household garbage into any containers and Police Judge Frank Blackmer pointed out that offenders would face up to a $25 fine.

Paving bids were opened for two projects, and the Asphalt Paving Company was low bidder in both cases. One was the paving and widening of Eldorado from the midpoint between Painter and Lawrence to its juncture at Van Ness. On this project, the Asphalt Paving bid was $9,759.05 as against a bid of $11,382.50 by George R. Stacy of Klamath Falls.

Bids on the other project, the paving of Auburn Street, were listed at $6,793.25 by Asphalt Paving and $7,897.63 by George Stacy. Petitions were approved and the city engineer instructed to draw up preliminary plans and cost estimates for two paving projects, Orchard Street from Orchard Way to Washburn Way and Manzanita from Pacific Terrace to Newcastle.

Verne Schortgen, building inspector, introduced a new set of building fees which were approved by the council. The new fee structure will mean some increases for permits. On a $10,000 home for instance, the old schedule fee would have been $24, but under the new schedule it would be approximately $30.50.

Permission was granted for the Camp Fire Girls to proceed with their candy mint sale which begins March 1 and continues through March 15. Approval was also granted for the hanging of a banner advertising Pelicana performances April 11 at Mills School.

Acting City Engineer Cliff Sanders reported that he had received the necessary easement from the Great Northern Railroad Company and would start work immediately on construction of a water drainage ditch in the vicinity of Adams Street to take care of the water overflow in this area.

The council heard a resolution from Fred Heard, chairman of the Klamath County Young Republican League endorsing the Council-Manager plan for the city of Klamath Falls.

It also heard the reading of a resolution which will result in the construction of a sewer spur line in the vicinity of the Sunnyland Addition.

Board Okays

venile Officer Francis Mathews in which the officer reportedly told a group of child guidance officials that "many of the students at the high school are packing weapons of one form or another."

Carlson assured the board that the students are not packing weapons and reaffirmed his stand that the major source of trouble originates with nonstudents hanging around the school.

The joint school boards set Wednesday, February 26, as the date of a night meeting to discuss the building plans and probable costs with Architect Howard Perrin. Of principal interest to members is whether the serial levy funds already approved and to be raised during the next four years will be sufficient to finance adding the projected auditorium to the newly completed south wing at the high school.

Perrin is also expected to discuss the Ponderosa School in addition to other future building within the district.

It was agreed that the joint budget board meeting to consider teacher and school employee salaries would be held sometime after March 1. By that time it is expected that the state will be able to tell the school districts what amount the districts can anticipate in state aid funds.

In other action: 1. School Superintendent Arnold Gralapp recommended against participation in an unemployment compensation program for school employees until a complete study of all facets relating to the program has been made.

2. The District 1 board voted against sending one of the school principals to the forthcoming elementary principals' annual meeting in Pennsylvania.

3. Heard administrative reports that the south wing addition at the school will be ready for occupancy during March.

Flood Strands H&N Foreman

High water on California State Highway 97, north of Orland has stranded Art Coles, maintenance foreman for the Herald and News who went south Sunday to greet a new grandson, Jonathan Reed.

The baby, third in the family, was born February 21. Coles had taken Mrs. Coles to San Jose to spend some time with the baby and his mother, the former Laura Coles.

Coles, in a telephone call to the paper at 4:30 p.m. Monday, said that water from continuing rain was over the highway north of Orland, that power lines were down and because of the wet ground, trees were being blown over. The Russian River was over its banks and other rivers were in danger of overflowing.

Traffic was kegging up at Orland and Coles was remaining in Willows until the situation cleared. At the time of his call he was standing in a public telephone booth in one inch of water, blown in by the high wind.

Wanted Man Held In Phoenix

James J. Powell, wanted in Klamath County to face charges of obtaining money under false pretenses, has been apprehended by police in Phoenix, Arizona.

Sheriff Murray Britton has been informed that the man refuses to waive extradition rights. The sheriff adds that extradition proceedings will be undertaken from this end.

It is anticipated that the man will be returned here about March 19.

Correction

The name of Willis Edward Ervin, 53, of 3216 Cortez Street, was erroneously printed in Sunday's Herald and News, he reported to the paper Monday.

Ervin's name was printed in the licenses suspended list, as published by the state Department of Motor Vehicles, which said that the license was suspended for failure to show proof of financial responsibility.

However, Ervin states that he has a letter from the department reinstating him and that they are in receipt of his insurance policy.
