

Soil Meeting Report Given

FORT ROCK—Speeding up the work of soil conservation was the theme of the Minneapolis convention of the National Association of Soil Conservation Districts last week, according to Merritt Parks, Fort Rock, recently returned from the session.

With over 1,600 registrations, the convention was divided into more than a dozen subcommittees to work out improved programs.

Ralph Saylor, Echo, Oregon, hay, grain and livestock man and former president of the Oregon Association of Soil Conservation Districts and Parks, now association secretary, represented Oregon.

Presentation of packets of soil from each of the 51 states and territories was a colorful feature of the annual banquet. Narrated by Dr. E. W. Mueller, a leader of the inspiring Soil Stewardship movement, delegates filed by to pour soil into a glass container. The soil is to be used in planting a tree on the Minnesota state capital grounds at St. Paul.

Economic Survey Findings Outlined By Chamber Head

High school seniors, teachers and many other groups believe the boss receives a lion's share of the business profits, a recent survey conducted by the Princeton Research Corporation revealed. Ronald H. Bailey, Northwest district manager of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, told a special board of directors meeting in the Pelican Cafe Wednesday.

Bailey added that the survey showed that businessmen are misunderstood because too little is known by the public about the American economic system.

The district manager said that throughout the United States there are economic discussion groups which endeavor to enlighten the businessman and the general public on the system. These groups, sponsored by the individual chambers, meet weekly and are aided in their discussion by 17 pamphlets written by an economist, and a tape recorder.

Discussed are the various business topics, one each week, which are soon to be searching for jobs. He noted that there is only a three per cent difference between a considered opinion and a wild guess. "It isn't much better among teachers that the institute examined," he said. "Of those tested, 67 per cent said that business is monopolistic and 52 per cent said that most of the profits go to the boss."

He added, "Farmers complain that they are caught in a squeeze with the majority stating that their goods are not bringing high enough prices and another group stating that businessmen set prices behind the farmer's back."

The general public believes, according to the survey and to Bailey, that profits range from 25 to 50 per cent and that 15 per cent would be a fair return. The district manager said that the average return for the investment dollar is actually only about 3.4 cents.

The board voted to have Bailey return here March 31 to confer with local businessmen

Officers Face Beating Rap

NEW YORK (AP)—Two white patrolmen were suspended and arrested today, accused of striking a Negro woman on a Manhattan street and holding a revolver on her son when he went to her aid.

Charged with felonious assault were Patrolmen Patrick T. Kilgannon, 27, and Andrew C. Cassels, 26. They denied the charges.

Police Inspector James T. McDonald gave this account:

Kilgannon and Cassels were off duty and in civilian clothes Wednesday night when one of them struck Mrs. Odessa Walker, 37. Five witnesses have testified that the other patrolman pointed his revolver at Mrs. Walker's son John, 18, when he tried to aid his mother.

No reason has been given for the incident.

Some 10 or 15 men witnessing the alleged assault came out of nearby buildings, attacked the patrolmen and took away their .38-caliber service revolvers.
