

Education Leader Blames Public For School Crisis

CHICAGO (AP)—The U.S. commissioner for education today placed the blame for the nation's school crisis directly at the door of the American public.

Commissioner Lawrence G. Derthick said the main trouble is that "society has not yet provided the financial resources necessary to establish and maintain the kind and extent of higher education" this country needs.

In a speech prepared for the closing session of the National Conference on Higher Education, Derthick said, "I would like to see us take just one page from the Russian book... the kind and degree of determined effort and support they are investing in their educational system."

When the American public is fully awake to the Soviet challenge, he said, "every schoolhouse at the crossroads and every college campus will be geared to generate the quality and quantity of brainpower needed for a space age."

"It is a shame upon us," he said, that only 9,000 doctorates are awarded each year, although "professional and scientific authorities tell us we have an estimated 300,000 persons in each year-group who have the capabilities to achieve the doctor of philosophy degree."

Of those 9,000 graduate students awarded doctor's degree each year, Derthick said, only 3,500 are available as new college teachers.

Art Exhibit Program Set

An exhibit of ink, casein, watercolor and oil painting work of Gordon and Barbara Kensler of this city will be shown Sunday, March 9, with cooperation of the Klamath Art Association. The exhibit here is basically the same in subject matter as the exhibit shown in Portland last fall.

Many of the landscapes at the Art Center are views in and around Klamath Falls, that will be of interest to local residents. Also included will be a sample length of silk-screened fabric that is currently being shown in the Northwest Craftsman Exhibit in Seattle, Washington.

Gordon and Barbara Kensler are graduates of the Art Institute of Chicago and have exhibited both in the Midwest and many Northwest art shows. They have been residents of Klamath Falls for five years. Kensler is director of art education for school district No. 1.

The exhibit will be open to the public in the Art Center in the Mountain View housing project near the Ponderosa School with reception hours from 2 to 5 p.m. A cordial invitation is extended to all interested persons.

Welfare Fund Report Given

It is not known at this time what effect the February 28 increase in available state welfare funds will have on Klamath County, reports Mrs. Julia Brown, director of the Klamath County Welfare operation.

Mrs. Brown pointed out that during January the county's annual budget was increased by $100,000 when members of the state welfare commission pointed out that the modified budget was made possible by there being more funds available than originally anticipated, and because the demands on welfare funds were outstanding anticipations for the first half of the biennium.

She added that the operation is now going "nip and tuck" when employing the additional $100,000, and that the spring working conditions will determine whether the county will have to apply for additional funds before the fiscal year is completed.

In the action of last week, the state welfare commission added another $1,835,000 to the modified state welfare budget, making a total budget increase of $4,417,000 during the first eight months of the fiscal year. They pointed out that the increases possibly threaten some counties with a need for election approval of levies outside the six per cent limitation during months of the immediate future.

Welfare officials point out that the possibility of having to exceed the six per cent limitation is remote in Klamath County inasmuch as the current welfare mill levy is 2.41 mills and that up to and including 4 1/2 mills for the county welfare operations is legally mandatory.

The state officials point out that the recent $1,835,000 increase was effected by various savings in state funds, without aid from the emergency board. However, Welfare Administrator Jeanne Jewett said the commission has now used the last of the surplus money.

"If the situation becomes any worse," she said, "we'll have to go to the emergency board."

Cosmic Rays To Be Studied

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Massachusetts Institute of Technology physicists will begin this June the biggest scale attempt ever made to learn the mysterious source of cosmic rays.

MIT said the experiment will be conducted on a 2,500-acre site near Albuquerque, N.M.

Cosmic rays from outer space bombard earth with incredible energy. Their source is one of physics' and astronomy's most baffling problems.

Police Check Theft Reports

City police are investigating two cases of theft and vandalism reported Monday.

Robert Huycke, 1825 Lexington Street, told officers that sometime Monday a "Supro" electric guitar and amplifier were stolen from his home. The material is valued at $200, and access was gained by entrances through an unlocked door. The guitar is brown and white, and the amplifier is gray.

In another theft case a witness told police she saw a group of youths take a case of soda pop from the Pepsi-Cola truck while it was parked and momentarily unattended in the 1800 block of Worden Street. Also, one case was broken and left in the street as the youths made a hurried getaway in their automobile.

Four Win Bonds At Home Show

Because of their attendance at the recent home show, four Klamath County residents are $50 richer, having received U.S. Savings Bonds as prizes.

Joe Mercer, sales director for the Klamath County Savings Bond Committee, announced that Friday Mrs. H. Arant, 3964 Clinton Avenue, and H. W. Stevens of Malin received bonds.

On Saturday, bonds went to Mrs. G. R. Atkins, Box 134, Tule, and to Pat Campbell, 2115 Homedale Road.

This was the fifth annual home show. Winners are advised to contact Fred Ehlers at Swan Lake Moulding Company to arrange for getting their bonds.
