KU Principal Gets Contract

Charles Carlson, principal of the Klamath Union High School for the past six years, was unanimously named to another three year contract Tuesday evening by members of the school board.

Carlson received his bachelor's degree from Pacific University, and received his master's degree in the field of education at the University of Oregon.

He joined the Klamath Union High School in 1943 as a chemistry teacher, and then left the system in 1945 to serve with the Navy. He returned in 1946 and continued teaching until 1952 when he was named principal.

Prior to coming to Klamath Falls he taught a total of six years at Newberg and Woodburn, Oregon.

Meeting Held By Merchants

Members of the Klamath Merchants Association heard a discussion of juvenile pilfering problems by Francis Mathews, county juvenile officer, at the association's meeting Wednesday morning at the Pelican Cafe.

As a result of the discussion the association went on record as recommending that all store operators report incidents of shoplifting and bad checks, both with juvenile and adult offenders, for the benefit of authorities working on these problems, and that petitions for hearings and complaints be signed by the merchants when necessary.

Rudy Jacobs, of the off-street parking committee, reported that the group will appear before the city council next Monday night. He termed this a most crucial meeting, and President Lew Wayburn urged all merchants to attend.

Bob Harvey, reporting for the Easter promotion committee, outlined a number of activities for the period from March 9 until Easter Sunday, April 6. The group gave the committee power to act.

In other action the merchants authorized an expenditure of $400 to underwrite the Jaycees for conducting a Fourth of July parade.

The next regular meeting of the association was announced for April 2.

President Nasser's Forces Issue Blast At King Saud

CAIRO (AP) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser today appeared embarked on a campaign to brand King Saud of Saudi Arabia with Kings Faisal II and Hussein of the Arab Federation as an enemy of Arab unity.

A spokesman for Nasser's United Arab Republic, Syrian army intelligence chief Abdul Hamid Serraj, charged Saud with plotting to wreck the new United Arab Republic and kill the Egyptian President. Similar charges were made by an Egyptian witness in a Cairo court, and Nasser himself spoke of a Saudi plot.

From the other side of the Arab split, Tunisia accused a Tunisian extremist leader of launching a plot from Cairo to assassinate pro-Western President Habib Bourguiba. The Tunisian exile, Salah ben Youssef, said the charge was fabricated to divert Tunisian public opinion from pressing Bourguiba into joining the U.A.R.

(Nasser's campaign appeared to Western observers to be another attempt to unseat regimes standing in the way of his ambition to dominate the Arab world. Egypt and Syria tried unsuccessfully last April to foment the overthrow of Jordanian King Hussein, and both also have been accused of plotting against Faisal of Iraq, chief of state of the Iraqi-Jordanian Arab Federation.)

Saud so far has refused to join either the Arab Federation or Nasser's U.A.R., reportedly hoping to act as a mediator between them in the interests of Arab unity.)

Serraj told a news conference that King Saud's Syrian father-in-law, Asad Ibrahim, tried to recruit him to lead an army coup to prevent the Egyptian-Syrian union. Serraj was to become president of Syria after the coup Feb. 21, the date of a plebiscite on the union, he said.

"He (Ibrahim) told me King Saud was ready to secure recognition by foreign powers of the new Syrian regime (and) that the Americans were aware of the plot," Serraj said. He claimed Arabia would pay the equivalent of $5,600,000 in advance and $6 million upon completion of the plot.

There was no comment from American or Saudi sources on the charges.

The intelligence chief, who has been accused of being pro-Communist, said another Saudi agent

Conger School Leader Backed

Jim Scott, principal of Conger School since 1955, was unanimously elected to another three-year term by members of the Klamath Falls Elementary School Board of Directors Tuesday evening.

Scott joined the city school system in 1944 as an industrial arts instructor at Fremont Junior High. He also served as dean of boys at the school until accepting the Conger appointment.

He received his bachelor's degree from Montana State Normal, and completed his master's degree at Montana State University. He taught in the Montana school systems prior to coming to Klamath Falls.
