Highway Men Plan Meeting

The Oregon State Highway Commission tentatively will meet in Klamath County some time next month with all parties interested in this county's road needs. Exact date hasn't been set.

There is also hope, Klamath County Judge Charles Mack said today, that commissioners will review proposed roads in this area that would be a link in a suggested new east-west highway from the coast to Winnemucca, Nevada.

So far, the judge said, no approval is sought for paving the McAllister Springs Lake to the Woods road section, consisting of five miles in Klamath County and some 12 in Jackson County.

Not only would this form a part of the proposed east-west highway, but it would also provide better access to Klamath motorists into the Rogue River Valley.

The Klamath County Court joined to Portland last Friday and met with the commission along with the four courts of Lake, Jackson and Josephine counties and Humboldt County, Nevada.

They sought use of recently appropriated federal funds for construction of the proposed thoroughfare. No decisions were reached.

The Klamath court also conferred with the Federal Bureau of Public Roads regional engineer in Portland Friday.

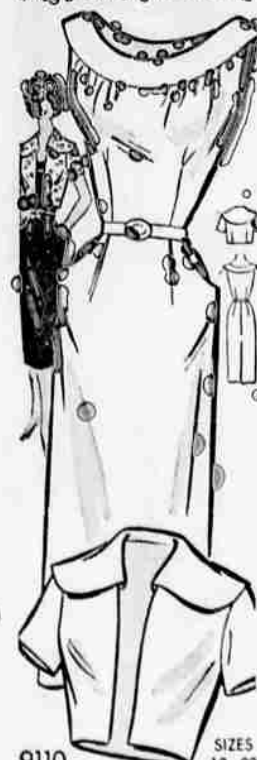

Judge Mack said the court was told that a Public Roads engineer and also one with the Forest Service would make a personal inspection of the proposed improvement of the McAllister Springs Lake to the Woods section in the immediate future.

FAINTS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Joseph Everett fainted at a fourth floor window and pitched head first toward the street. He came to his senses, grabbed a second floor fire escape and swung into an open window.

The 34-year-old janitor was treated for scalp laceration and an injured left ankle.
