

Manager Plan

Editor's Note — This is the sixth in a series of articles on the Council-Manager plan to be voted on by Klamath Falls residents on May 16, prepared by the League of Women Voters.

Leaders in Council-Manager movements have nearly always included prominent men from business, labor, education and the clergy. Many walks of life have endorsed the plan in cities where it is being used.

The Oakland Chamber of Commerce said that they had found it to be "the most economical form of government and certainly an improvement over the commission form which we had here until adoption of the Council-Manager form of government."

Specific union leaders with broad experience have endorsed the plan. A few are William J. Harris, president of Local 147 A. F. of L., Dallas, Texas; John W. Quinby, secretary, San Diego Central Labor Council and Lauro M. Nunn, business agent, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

Manager cities have pioneered in establishing living wage pension systems, realistic sick leave benefits and on-the-job training programs. Employees have been enthusiastic and have found they fared much better under a business-like administration. They know where they stand and like it.

President A. F. Hartung of the International Woodworkers in a speech to the Northwest City Managers Association said: "Labor is interested in good government, for the simple reason that it feels the effects of bad government more than any other group. We believe the Council-Manager plan is more democratic because the voters have better control."

Lawrence Slater, president of the Klamath Falls League of Women Voters, stated that at a meeting of the League of Oregon Cities in October, 1957, which was attended by 250 city managers and mayors from all parts of Oregon, the Council-Manager plan was the subject of discussion. In their own cities, Slater was unanimous and approved for what it had accomplished in his city. There were no dissident voices.

In the Klamath Falls League of Women Voters, a polled vote showed that their local unit is unanimously for the Council-Manager form of government. They have looked critically at the pros and cons and have arrived at the decision that it is a necessary step if Klamath Falls moves forward. The League's slogan, our city should be governed by efficiency in appointments, economy in buying, technical skill in future planning, better informed citizens, increased police protection, and growth in industry.

The issue to vote for the Council-Manager plan of government.

Trouble Brewing When There's No Supper Stowing

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — French chef Jean Marcel has few equals when it comes to turning out a 200 souffle or a savory coq au vin at the Stork Club in Manhattan, where he has worked these past 25 years. But when he's at home — here's — east Madame Marcel often runs into the cooking. "That's what started the trouble they found with it in Nassau County District Court yesterday. My police tell it, Marcel arrived home last night last Friday to find his kitchen and no wife waiting for him. He packed his things and left — only to find his own kitchen. "When Mrs. Marcel arrived, she discovered her kitchen and everything else in the house, Mrs. Marcel had done in the kitchen and her 17-year-old son, Thomas, had been there. "Mrs. Marcel said she had been with a car on the road with a broken tire, cuts, bruises.

Western Siskiyou County Boasts Of Primitive Area

By PEGGY WALSH

YREKA—Siskiyou County boasts one of the few remaining primitive areas in the United States, the Marble Mountain wilderness area, in the extreme western portion of the county.

This area of over 500 square miles of spectacular mountains, virgin forests, mountain streams and lakes is bounded on all sides by measurably good roads. Access to the Marble Mountain area is primarily by train although a few limited roads penetrate its perimeter.

The California Department of Fish and Game issues an angler's permit, available at the Yreka Chamber of Commerce, describing the 77 lakes that are recommended for rainbow trout, rainbow and brown trout. Few of the lakes are open to fishing, the brochure states, and some are fished too little for poster fish-charge balance.

The wilderness area is set aside for recreational use and except for some trail maintenance is left entirely in its natural state. It is primarily for those who have a keen interest in trail hiking or pack trips.

Ranger stations and guard stations are located throughout the area.

Hectic 1958 Session Just Mild Sample Of Next Year

DUNSMUIR—The hectic legislative session just completed was but a mild sample of what will face northern legislators in 1959. Bill Gunlock of Dunsmuir, chairman, and Bill Mathews of Scott Valley, co-chairman of the Siskiyou County campaign committee for reelection of Assemblywoman

Pauline L. Davis, said this week in support of Mrs. Davis' candidacy. Mrs. Davis spent most of the week in Siskiyou County primarily renewing personal contacts. As co-chairman of the standing committee on Fish and Game, Mrs. Davis attended the sportsmen's dinner at the Riverview Country Club in Redding on Friday. She is slated for chairmanship of this committee next year on the basis of seniority in the assembly.

All state water filings will be up for renewal for another four years during the 1959 legislative session and it will be open season for proposals on water rights amendments to the constitution and other policy matters. The Second Assembly District is expected to have an ultimate need for 3,409,000 acres of water to serve 2,642,000 acres of irrigated lands as well as recreation uses, the two men pointed out.

In addition to authorizing legislation for the Junior Rifle Training Program and Roadside Rests, Mrs. Davis has kept a watchful eye on Fish and Game operations, a vital phase of Second Assembly District economy. Mrs. Davis' only formal appearance was at the Dunsmuir Rotary Club. She will complete a speaking schedule in Siskiyou County later in the month.

Under the present program, half of the income from the sale of timber land is returned to the counties in which the timber was situated. This money is apportioned, 25 per cent for county roads and 25 per cent for education. This means thousands of dollars for the northern counties, relieving the tax burden in areas heavy with federal lands. Singer Settles Music Problems

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Singer Gogi Grant has settled her contract troubles with three music companies.

The singer took the advice of a Superior Court judge yesterday and relinquished $19,000 worth of royalties in exchange for her freedom from her contract with Era Record Co., Thunderbird Music Co., and Warner Music Co. She had sued ERA and Thunderbird for $150,000 damages charging fraud in connection with her royalty payments. The companies had filed a $1,050,000 counter suit charging breach of contract.

The music concerns agreed to drop their suit.

BARE SPECIES CAUGHT

LONDON (UPI)—British Museum experts said today that a creature half-fish and half-animal caught by a North Sea trawler was a very rare species. The experts said the creature, two feet, six inches in length, was a mammal known as oxyotus paradoxus. They said only 19 specimens are known to exist.

Sportsmen are invited to send reports of trips and angling conditions encountered to the Department of Fish and Game in Redding.

Klamath National Forest campgrounds are maintained on the Klamath River Highway, the Scott River Road and the Salmon River Road, all bounding the Marble Mountain area. Other accommodations are limited and this information is also available at the Yreka Chamber of Commerce.

Pioneer Shows Bird Movies

Karl Gentry, Tulelake pioneer, showed motion pictures of bird life in the Klamath Basin for members and guests of the Klamath County Historical Society at the May meeting. Pictures included scenes of nesting, hatching of eggs and the banding program.

Kenneth McLeod, president, conducted a short business meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Hal Ogle, recently married, were honored during the refreshment hour and presented with a decorated five-tiered wedding cake, baked by Mrs. Angus (Annabelle) Newton. After the honored couple cut the confection, the refreshment hour was under the direction of Mrs. Vera Clemens, refreshment chairman. Both Mr. and Mrs. Ogle have been interested for many years in the history of the Klamath Basin, contributing much of historical value to the society.

The next meeting will be on June 4.

Owners of the four stores received a total of $10 in identical envelopes with an unsigned note inside which read: "This is for what I took when I was a kid."
