

KUHS Pelican Nine Faces Four Games

The Klamath Union varsity baseball team is set for another big weekend of diamond activity as they face four games in two days. Friday the Pelis journey to Central Point to challenge the basement-dwelling Grater Comets in a Southern Oregon Conference twin-bill then return home in time to take off for Bend and a double-header rematch with the Lava Bears.

The Pelicans, with a one-win, 5-10 mark for SOC play, are one jump ahead of the Comets who have only won one game while losing six. The winner of the first game Friday, the seven-inning game will assure themselves of a fourth-place finish. The second game, a five-inning test, does not count in conference standings.

Coach Dean White's Whitebirds gained their only SOC win of the season at the expense of the Comet earlier in the season.

White plans to start workman Blake Griggs in the first game with either Dennis Runge or Mickey Carney to see action in the second. Griggs, although he has only one win to his credit so far is the Pel mainstay.

The lineup that will undoubtedly go the full four game route will include David Saks behind the plate, Dean Dunson on first, Bob Sari, second and either Steve Binyer or Smiley Herrera at shortstop. Bill Worlein, will cover third while Bob Yunc, Rich Depew and Jim Hall will handle the outfield assignments.

Saks, the chunky freshman catcher, is showing no ill effects of the rap to the head he suffered in the last encounter with Bend.

Saturday the Pelis will go all out as they attempt to break the tie they hold with the Lava Bears; last Saturday the KU club won the first game, 6-4 only to have Bend bounce back in the second to blast them 7-0.

"We may get bombed at Bend," declared White. "Since this four game schedule is a tough one—and we are playing on their home diamond. Our boys will give them a rough time, however; they like to beat Bend."

Pelican baseball comes to a halt the following weekend as the Pelis host the Medford Black Tornado in another doubleheader at Gem Stadium.

GRIEVANCE COMMITTEE MEETING

'The Man' On Track Of Record

ST. LOUIS (UP)—Stan Musial, the three-grand man, was hot on the track of his newest objective today—becoming the hittingest player in National League history.

Musial said after he belted out the hit that put him in baseball's most selective group of 3000 career hitters, that he had no intention of resting on his laurels.

And he proved it Wednesday night right after he joined the 3000 club.

Fresh from glowing testimonials for his past performance from his bosses, general manager Bing Devine, field leader Fred Hutchinson and owner Gusie Busch, Stan stepped up to the plate on his first trip and lofted a 2-2 Johnny Antonelli pitch high on the roof of the right field pavilion.

The Cards won the game from the San Francisco Giants 3-2 and Don Blasingame's two-run double in the fifth, merely because it came after the Giants had scored two runs, must be rated the decisive blow. But the Cardinals could not have won without Musial's round-tripper.

His other two hits were singles and one was a little pop fly just over the infield.

"I wouldn't turn any of them down," he grinned. "After all, Willie Keeler went a long way 'hittin' 'em where they ain't."

To become the top hitter in league history, Musial must pass Honus Wagner, who had 3,430. He figures he has "a couple of more good seasons" which would put the goal within reach.

He and the surviving members of the 3000-plus hitters—Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Nap Lajoie and Paul Waner—will all be honored again by the Cards on June 8.

They might have had more, but Boone, unaware that first baseman Mickey Vernon had dropped the ball, thought he was out, flung his helmet into right field and jogged after it while the injury traced him down for the final out.

Field & Stream

before being set free for the anglers' rods.

A total of 16 trout and salmon hatchery stations, are in operation around the state. The oldest hatchery in business today is the McKenzie River project which was started in 1907. A total of 525,000 pounds of fish are produced a year from these fish depots.

So the next time you meet a fishery division truck dumping fish, just remember, there lies the answer to the fisherman's success in the future. If it wasn't for the work of the liberation agents like Smith and the hatchery workers like Evans, our fishing picture wouldn't be so bright.

This weekend's forecast:

Although the local streams were stocked just this last week, don't plan on limiting out. The newly stocked rainbows will be fairly well scattered and still a little bit hard to lure onto the hook. Small flies will probably be the best in most of these streams if the weather continues warm, along with the usual run of bait and spin fishing.

Klamath River was very good Saturday, with a few catches taken on bucktail flies. The usual number of limits were reported on worms and spinning lures. Anglers are urged to watch out for snakes in the canyons since warm weather and construction in the area are bringing the reptiles out of their dens.

The Sprague, Sycan and most streams in the eastern portion of the county are still too high for good fishing.

Gerber Reservoir reported very good fishing Saturday before the weekend rain storm. With the high temperatures again this week, the pan fish anglers should do well. Bass, crappie, catfish and perch were all represented in last week's catches.

Lake of the Woods fishing picked up over the first weekend of ice-free water last Saturday and Sunday. Another note on the dead fish problem at the lake. It has been reported by game biologists that the tape worm affecting the fish will not harm human consumption in any way. The biologists do urge those taking Lake of the Woods fish to cook them well. This weekend should be good at both Lake of the Woods and Odell, where a few Mackinaw were taken during the last week, along with several nice limits of bluebacks.

This week, Frank Addison of Frank's Bait Shop, 928 Klamath Avenue, goes into southern Idaho.

Legion Ball Practice Set

By Hatfield, coach of the Klamath Falls American Legion Junior Baseball team, announced that the week that practice for the team is to be in playing summer baseball will start Monday, May 19, and the first game is set for early June.

Two no-feeball practices will be held Monday, Wednesday and Friday, May 20, 22 and 30. The Monday and Wednesday sessions will be 5:00 and Friday's workout is billed for 1:30.

All players eligible to play junior on this year are urged to turn out and bid for a spot on the club.

A 30-day schedule has been arranged by Hatfield including a trip to the Willamette Valley for games with Eugene and Albany. On the same trip, the local legion baseballers will also clash with Roseburg, one of the state's top legion baseball communities. League games will find the Klamath entry meeting Medford, Grants Pass, Central Point and Lakeview.

MOBILE, Ala. (UP)—Mississippi Southern College will tackle a major college power when it meets Atlantic Coast Conference football champion North Carolina in a Nov. 8 night game here. Reed Green, Mississippi Southern's athletic director said the school hoped to play a major college football game here every year.

Nouredin Picked Pimlico Favorite

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—This may be a lot of Taurus, the Bull, but Fearless Fraley has to go for a colt named Nouredin when they scamper around old Pimlico dome Saturday in the Preakness Stakes.

There are many ways to pick winners at the horse park. You can be scientific and mull over past performances, use the Chinese alphabet system, play the names or simply stab with a hatpin.

But old Fearless has finally decided that, in shooting for a star, the natural thing to do is use a horoscope.

Ergo: The zodiacal scoop is Nouredin, an out-burner born on May 2. That puts him under the sign of Taurus and he's a long-shot steal when you discover that Saturday his horoscope promises that "Mercury joins the sun, rich benefits are in order and fame can be yours."

Mercury, as anybody knows, was the fastest getaway man in mythology. If his influence can help Nouredin get out of the gate a bit faster than usual, the colt which came from 12th to third in the recent Kentucky Derby ought to have a look when they take the Preakness picture.

The others, according to the Zodiac, are in for a rough afternoon.

Take Tim Tam, now, the winner of the Derby. He's the favorite and he'll probably win—and be disqualified. The horoscope says so.

"Beware of possible misunderstanding and confusion," says the forecast for the colt foaled April 19, which makes him an Aries along with Lincoln Road and Gone Fishin'.

"You are in a position to improve your occupational interests and earning power—if you pay careful attention to the fine print."

Tim Tam isn't known to be able to read and his jockey only went to the fourth grade. They are, you can see, facing difficulty. Aries, I find, is the starry sign of the Ram, and if they go rammin' around at Pimlico somebody's sure to yell "foul."

As to Lincoln Road, foaled March 21, and Gone Fishin', whose birthday was March 27, the zodiac warns: "You may feel driven or harassed." This, with $100,000 at stake, is a cinch and proves that the horoscope knows what it's talking about.

Silky Sullivan and Jewel's Reward, two of the other hotshots, are under the sign of Pisces, the fish. This shakes my faith in the zodiac a bit because neither moved as if they liked water in the Churchill Downs' swimming pool last Saturday.

Silky's horoscope says he "needs confidence" (which is for sure after his 12th place Derby finish) and "must be made to snap out of it." Jewel's Reward's star information is for "possible financial benefits if you pay strict attention to business." So watch out for this kid.

Talent Show, moving up into the Triple Crown free-for-all, is gaining support. But his horoscope warns to "be careful of ambitious plans."

So I've got to go with Nouredin. But there are just two things worrying me. Horses can't read. And this may be an awful lot of Taurus—the bull.

Gone Fishin' Is Virginians' Pick Over Silky Sullivan, Tim Tam

BALTIMORE (UP)—Well, sub, the Virginians have a colt in the Preakness, and a lot of citizens in the Old Dominion state will wager their greenbacks that he will handle the likes of Tim Tam—not to mention Silky Sullivan.

His name is Gone Fishin' who is listed as a roan, but looks grey when he walks on the track.

Only one grey won the Preakness until the great Native Dancer stood Baltimoreans on their ears and whipped Jamie K. by a neck in their terrific 1953 duel.

It seems as if 11 or 12 will be entered when the secretary's office opens tomorrow morning, but the cash outlay may deter a couple. It costs $500 to pass the entry box, and another $500 to start in the great Maryland gallop on Saturday.

Tim Tam, the Calumet Farm's Kentucky Derby winner, figures to start as the favorite at 7 to 5 or shorter. The Main Chance Farm's Jewel's Reward is going to get plenty of support. So will Lincoln Road, who zipped into a big lead in the Florida Derby and was only caught by Tim Tam in the final strides. Lincoln Road also led in the Derby, but Tim Tam zoomed home again in the final sixteenth by a half length.

As for Gone Fishin', he clicked with an easy length and three-quarters victory Monday in the Preakness Prep at a mile and one sixteenth. The Virginian whipped the Christiana Stable's Staysail, who had finished third behind Jewel's Reward in the Pimlico Futurity last November. Staysail is supposed to start Saturday.

The early Pimlico betting odds listed Gone Fishin' at 15 to 1. That might be a gift for some price seekers.

Gone Fishin' is owned by the Langollen Farm of Mrs. M. E. Lunn of Upperville, Va. He won the Preakness Prep with speed in reserve, and drew out fast to whip Silky Sullivan in a race at California's Golden Gate Fields in April.

The Preakness field in recent years was usually around seven or eight. If a dozen make it Saturday in the race to be televised and broadcast nationally (CBS) from 4:30-5 p.m. EST., the pot will gross $133,950.

Little Leaguers Draw Six Teams

Six teams are set to play Little League baseball in Klamath Falls this summer, the first such baseball activity for the Basin's small fry.

Gene Favell, president of the local little leaguers, has set May 23 as the final organization meeting date to complete scheduling and completing pre-season business. The meeting will be held at the city hall.

Last Tuesday night, the league met and decided to go official Little League this year, with the exception of playoffs where Klamath will have to wait one year before entering in the post-season play. Practice game dates were set Tuesday and league play is expected to start early in June.

Coach Ned Harkness of RPI has seen his lacrosse team beat his brother Bill's Yale eleven six times in 10 meetings.
