

French Crisis Viewed With U.S. Apprehension

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House and State Department watched the darkening French political crisis in silent apprehension today, fearful of its impact on the unity and strength of the North Atlantic Alliance.

Diplomatic officials said it was impossible to predict the outcome of the rapidly developing conflict of forces and personalities in France and Algeria. But many in high position were known to feel that the very existence of the Fourth Republic is at stake.

One possibility causing concern in official quarters was the danger that the French military in Tunisia, commanding 25,000 troops might follow the example of the French army in neighboring Algeria and try to set up some kind of committee to exercise at least a degree of political authority.

The government of President Habib Bourguiba, whose country was a French protectorate until 1956, is understood to have expressed anxiety on this score.

Bourguiba has no military force comparable to that of France, which kept troops in Tunisia after granting independence.

In France itself, the carefully timed bid of Gen. Charles de Gaulle for supreme national authority raised questions about France's future world policy. De Gaulle has long been known as a strong and stubborn man, dedicated to his concept of French interest, insistent on having his own way and often impatient with the views of allies.

One of the questions now being asked here is what would be France's position within the Western alliance should he come to power? Another, would Paris continue to cooperate closely with Washington and London on issues in negotiation with Russia, notably a summit conference?

Already the crisis has substantially destroyed U. S. hopes for the early development of a more conciliatory French policy toward the rebellion in Algeria. Even if the new government of Premier Pierre Pflimlin succeeds in riding out the storm—the worst in post-war French history—its flexibility to deal with the Algerian situation seems already to have been lost.

High American officials have long feared that French civilian authorities would not be able to solve the Algerian problem and that at some critical moment the military would move to seize power and impose an extreme rightist policy.

Beyond this, U. S. officials have reasoned that the Algerian crisis might very likely grow into a North African crisis, making it increasingly difficult for Tunisia and Morocco to maintain friendly ties with the West. This in turn would open up new opportunities for Communist agitation and for the expansionist aims of President Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

Nasser Left Moscow With Aid Pledge From Russians

By ROY ESSOYAN

MOSCOW (AP)—President Nasser flew home to Cairo today with Premier Khrushchev's pledge of "all the help you need from us" to unite the Arab world.

"The Soviet government wants solidarity of the Arab people under your leadership," Khrushchev told the head of the United Arab Republic. He described Nasser as "the outstanding leader of all the Arab peoples."

Speaking at a Kremlin banquet last night, Khrushchev made his remarks pointedly anti-Western by adding that Arab unity under Nasser would guarantee that "colonizers will never return to your sacred soil again."

He did not specify what help Russia might offer. But his remarks were a direct slap at the Western-backed federation formed by Iraq and Jordan as a counter in the Arab world to the U. A. R.

The banquet followed signing of a joint statement in which Nasser, after more than two weeks of Russian hospitality, agreed to the Communist line on most international issues, including the Red drive for a summit conference.

Western diplomats expressed the opinion, nevertheless, that both Nasser and Khrushchev were less than completely satisfied with results of their negotiations.

The joint communique said nothing about the substantial Soviet economic and technical grants

Nasser had hoped to get in addition to the approximately 175 million dollars in loans already promised Egypt and Syria. Kremlin leaders were believed to have pressed for closer political ties when Nasser was willing to establish.

The statement called for all nations with nuclear weapons to stop testing them before an agreement is reached "on the definite and unconditional banning of all types of nuclear weapons, including the cessation of production, removal of nuclear weapons from the armament of states and the destruction of stockpiles."

The two leaders denounced "the barbaric French war against the Algerian rebels... colonial aggression against Yemen... foreign interference in the internal affairs of Indonesia."

Nasser left the Moscow airport on a special Soviet jet airliner during a cold, driving rain. Wearing a military uniform, he was escorted by a platoon of Red Guards. Khrushchev led the group of officials who saw him off.

Nasser said he was "looking forward to the day when we will be meeting you at the airport in Cairo."

FINAL SELECTION

FOLSOM, Calif. (AP)—The Northern California Peace Officers Assn. closed its meeting at Folsom Prison with a bit of musical entertainment by the inmates.

The final selection, dedicated to Warden Robert Heinze and members of the State Adult Authority, was:

"I've learned a lesson I'll never forget."

Klamath Falls Midway Point For Coast Sports Car Fans

Klamath Falls will be host to arriving from Sacramento shortly more than 100 sports cars Saturday after 4 p.m. tomorrow, and will spend the night here before re-annual Golden West Sports Car Rally. Contestants will begin Entries in this rally, the first such event on the West Coast ever to be accorded National Championship sanction by the Sports Car Club of America, include imported cars from all parts of California, as well as from Virginia, Arizona, Missouri and New York. Lone entry from Oregon is car number 92, a Mercedes-Benz driven by James G. Roberts of Portland, and navigated by Peter Alport, also of Portland.

The Golden West Rally is a time-and-distance event in which accuracy of driving and navigation of a carefully measured road course will determine winners. All specified average speed limits will be observed, and any care receiving a citation for a moving violation during the rally—or seen violating any legal or rally regulation—will be disqualified. It is in no sense a speed contest, but is rather a precision driving test.

Contestants will have covered some 400 miles of the rally route when they arrive in Klamath Falls.

Sunday at 5 a.m., rallists will begin leaving here at one-minute intervals from the re-start point at Eighth and Pine streets for the run back to Sacramento, where an awards banquet will be held and prizes awarded on Sunday night.

Rally headquarters in Klamath Falls will be Molatore's Motel. A no-host reception will be held for all rally contestants and workers at the Willard Hotel, beginning at 6 p.m. Saturday.

Virtually all popular types of imported sports cars are included among the rally entries. The largest single contingent is that of Triumph, with 26 cars. Other makes to be seen on the streets of Klamath Falls Saturday night will be MG, Porsche, Jaguar, Mercedes-Benz, Austin-Healey, Volkswagen, Corvette, Morris, Alfa-Romeo, AC-Bristol, Abarth-Fiat, Nash-Healey, Nash-Metro, Lancia and Volvo. Since speed is no factor in determining winners of this type of event, all cars from the most powerful to the least compete in a single overall category.

All arrangements for contestant accommodations in Klamath Falls, as well as handling of the many details involved in bringing this large group into the community, have been in the hands of the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce.

Trujillo Still Keeps Tight Grip On Republic

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP)—This prosperous Caribbean island republic heads into the 28th year of the era of Trujillo today with its ruler still in unchallengeable control.

The boss is Generalissimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo Molina, 67-year-old Benefactor of the Fatherland, as his Congress has dubbed him.

Trujillo not only keeps a tight grip on one of the world's most durable dictatorships, but seems to command at least respect among his country's four million people.

Some Dominicans are outspoken in their disapproval of some of the generalissimo's policies. But usually they wind up saying he "has done a good job for his country."

There seems to be no organized opposition, or else it doesn't dare show itself. But there is much vocal opposition to his rule among Dominican exiles in Puerto Rico, the United States, Venezuela and elsewhere.

None of this causes the generalissimo any sleepless nights. He maintains that he has the overwhelming backing of his people and works tirelessly in pushing public works and plans designed to maintain the nation's high standard of prosperity.

Much of the heavy administrative burden has been shifted to his brother, Gen. Hector Benavides Trujillo, the titular president. But the generalissimo is still boss.

Rafael Trujillo seized power in a military coup May 16, 1930, and started rebuilding a hurricane-wrecked, poverty-stricken land. Today he is proud that this nation owes no foreign debts and has stood on its own feet.

SHERMAN SEASTRONG Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Seastrong of Bly and a third-year music major at the University of Oregon, was recently elected president of Philadelphia House for the 1958 - 59 school year.

Local Girl Awarded College Scholarship

SALEM — Norma Young, a senior at Klamath Union High School, has been awarded an honor scholarship to Willamette University. She will enroll in the fall as a freshman.

Norma, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Young, 45 Pine Street, has been active in both school and community activities. She was twice chosen as a delegate to the International Relations League model United Nations.

She is also a member of the honor society, the pep club, the a cappella choir, science, math and Latin clubs, the band and girls' league.

Old Russian Sect Members View TV For First Time

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A shiny piece of glass, framed into a big box, suddenly came alive. Figures appeared on it, and sounds came forth.

Eighty-two refugees looked at the box in awe, then broke into smiles and laughter.

The 82 — members of a centuries-old Russian sect — had taken their first look at television.

The people are called Old Believers. They fled to Los Angeles yesterday from Hong Kong, on their way from Communist China to what they hope will be a permanent home in Brazil.

They went from Russia to China in the 1920s to escape persecution for their religious beliefs. They left China to escape their Communist overlords.

"These are a 100 per cent pure people," said a translator assigned them by the Federation of Russian Charitable Organizations. "They are a country people. They don't drink or smoke, don't use coffee or tea, and the men don't shave."

"They rise at dawn and go to bed at sunset."

The 82 White Russians are the first of 493 Old Believers being moved from China to Brazil by the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration, the United Nations and the World Council of Churches. The rest are at Hong Kong.

At the airport they glimpsed their first helicopter — and stood transfixed. At suburban Wilmington, where they are staying while awaiting departure Saturday, firemen invited the children to examine their fire engines. A newspaper is arranging to take them to Disneyland.

There are 15 men, 18 women, 14 teen-agers and 35 children in the pioneering group.

"We left Russia in the 1920s because of punishment for our religious traditions," an elder explained through a translator. "In China and Manchuria we organized into small villages."

"We had freedom of movement and lived on small farms. Now it is different. We have been forced to give all our farm production to the government. We have been treated more like prisoners than free men."

A freighter will carry the Old Believers to Brazil. A 6,000-acre tract of fields and forest land has been purchased for them by the National Council of Churches of Christ.
