Wonderful Things Happen To Comic After Oscar Win

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—What has happened to Red Buttons A.O.—After Oscar?
 "Many wonderful things," said Red. "It's not just the offers that make you feel good, though they are nice too.
 "The real thrill is the change in attitude that people have toward you. I don't just mean getting ringside seats from head waiters; I always got them anyway, because I knew all the head waiters.
 "It's a new respect that you feel from people, especially in your own profession. You know that they believe you have worked hard to achieve some success. The big thing is not the Oscar itself, but the fact that so many people were pulling for you to be a winner."
 Red was a winner for his supporting role in "Sayonara." The achievement has sobered the one-time madcap comic of TV.
 "I feel the responsibility to the people who had faith in me," he said. "I want to improve as an actor, and I'm working hard in that direction."

 When he is in New York he attends classes twice weekly with other aspiring actors.
 "It's really inspiring," he said. "Sitting next to me might be an actor whose total earnings last year were $900. Another might have earned $3,500. We're all working toward a common goal—improving ourselves as actors."
 Does this mean he might even tackle Shakespeare?
 "I'd like to do some Shakespeare," he said. "I played Bottom in 'Midsummer Night's Dream' two summers ago, and it was a great experience. It's kinda tough to get onto that Elizabethan dialogue, but once it starts flowing, you feel a real satisfaction."
 Don't worry—our boy Red isn't going long-hair on us. To prove that he can still make with the quips, he's appearing on the Dinah Shore TV Show Sunday night.
