NEW YORK (AP)—Tim Tam, winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, failed in his bid for the triple crown Saturday when he finished a soundly beaten second to the Irish-Bred Cavan in the Belmont Stakes. Flamingo was third.

Cavan achieved one of racing's greatest upsets Saturday by easily winning the $114,600 Belmont Stakes as Tim Tam—Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner—pulled up lame after a vain effort to become the ninth colt in history to win the triple crown.

It was the second straight year that a foreign-bred horse whipped the American horses in the rugged mile and one-half classic for three year olds. Gallant Man, foaled in England but raised in Ireland where Cavan was born, won the Belmont a year ago.

Cavan, owned by Joseph E. O'Connell of Boston, took charge rounding the bend leading into the homestretch. Then he drew off to beat Tim Tam by six lengths.

Tim Tam, a prohibitive 3-20 favorite of a crowd of 44,025 to give Calumet Farm its third Belmont and triple crown, tried valiantly but could do no better than second place. It was another 5/2 lengths back to C. V. Whitney's Flamingo, who took third money by three-quarters of a length over the Wheatley stable's Nasco.

The crowd, biggest Belmont gathering since $2,568 turned out to watch Phalanx win in 1947, roared as Cavan and Timmy halted into the final turn. Then

Hal Wood's Weekend Short Shots

By HAL WOOD

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Week-end shorts:

Hank Aaron and Wes Covington of the Milwaukee Braves gave second baseman Danny O'Connell of the Giants an unmerciful ribbing during the series here.

"Who do you think you are?" queried Aaron of O'Connell, who goes to the mound often when the pitcher is in trouble. "The assistant manager? Do you get paid extra for that? Do you know that every time you goes out there we hits another rifle shot off the poor guy." O'Connell took the ribbing without a reply—then helped "pilot" the Giants to victory the very same day.

It'll be some time before there is a "big five" football conference on the West Coast—if ever. Stanford isn't sure it wants in this league, at all. But, for financial reasons, may be forced to join. If the Indians bosses finally do join, it will be the same as admitting that they have been wrong all the time censuring UCLA, USC, Washington and Cal for illegal athletic aid. If someone would push it, the chances are good that most of the five western schools would go for that "trans-continental conference" proposed a year ago to include Pitt, Navy, Army, Notre Dame, Oklahoma and Texas, among others.

With pitching that would allow the opposition only four runs per game, the San Francisco Giants would be leading the national league by about four or five games.

When the National AAU meet rolls around at Bakersfield later this month, watch for Parry O'Brien to be pushed into a new world record in the shot put.

The Giants drew 63,711 for the three-game series with the Braves—very close to capacity for chummy little Seals Stadium. They expect to do about the same for the four-game series with Cincinnati—average attendance is well past the 15,000 mark per game.

Joe Sheketski, one-time FBI agent and later University of Nevada football coach, is back in the coaching ranks. He coaches in the gambling school run by Harrah's Club at Lake Tahoe. Joe is top security officer for the club.

The paddock talk is that number 3 will like this muddy track!

Fralei's Facts, And Figures

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Fearless Fraley's facts and figures:

Baseball insiders insist that with Roy Campanella gone from behind the Dodger mitt and mask, Don Newcombe won't ever be a big winner again.

The contention is that Newcombe needed Campanella to buy him up, needle him into increased effectiveness and "boss" the big pitcher into giving it the necessary extra effort. One thing certain, Campy ran Big Newk. Once, when Newcombe crossed him up and threw a slow curve instead of a fast ball, Campy raced to the mound and roared: "Man, what you mean throwin' that local when I called for the express!"

And this season, for the first time since Campy became the boss behind the bat, all pitches are being called from the bench instead of by the catcher.

GOLFERS WORRY

The touring golf professionals, according to Gardner Dickinson, worry too much "about details which don't matter."

Which prompted Jimmy Demaret, the good humored man of the fairways, to reply in rebuttal: "Who's worrying? Man, I didn't even worry when I was making my first winter tour—and had to hit balls out of bounds into adjoining orange groves to get something to eat."

Joe O'Connell, the retired Boston banker whose Cavan will try to upset Tim Tam in the Belmont Stakes today, moved into thoroughbred racing because he had won everything the show horse game had to offer. O'Connell is a former Holy Cross football and baseball star who was a nephew of the late Cardinal O'Connell.

Cavan is named after the county in Ireland from which his wife's folks came.

JOE MEETS SUZINA

When Joe Giardello battles Franz Suzina of Germany in Wednesday night's televised bout it will be in an unusual setting. The site will be the outside terrace of Washington's Shoreham Hotel with the fight as the piece de resistance of a $25-a-plate black-tie charity dinner.

Giardello is the ring's hardluck champion. He hurt his knee in an auto accident shortly before a big fight with Bobo Olson and then took a trip to the hosegaw after a fight with a gas station attendant in Philadelphia. Suzina is a frustrated weight lifter whose hobbies are ping pong and reading technical books on machinery.

Giardello figures to go ping after which Suzina will go pong.

Dick Steichter, who as pro at the Gettysburg country club is a frequent golfing companion of President Eisenhower, is an automatic qualifier as Philadelphia district PGA champion for the National PGA tournament at Llanerch country club, July 17-20.

Ibbotson Adds BCC Mile Win To Credit

VANCOUVER, B. C. (AP)—Derek Ibbotson, 26-year-old Yorkshirer, and the world's fastest miler, added the British Columbia Centennial mile to his credit Saturday with a time of 4:05.5 on a sloppy track.

Pulling up from a steadily maintained third position, in the early laps, he edged out Merv Lincoln of Australia in a fast last lap to win by 1-10 of a second. Later, almost lost in a crowd of reporters and photographers, he puffed:

"Merv ran a very good race. He worked more than I did. That's why I won."

A crowd of 9,436 at Empire Stadium, hoping for a repeat of the Roger Bannister-John Landy "Miracle Mile" at the 1954 British Empire Games here, cheered lustily as the stretch duel between Ibbotson and Lincoln neared the wire, although it was obvious the four-minute mark was unbeaten.

Alex Henderson, of Australia, who had paced the first and third lap, came in third only yards behind the leaders. His time was 4:06.2.

Stefan Lewandowski, 27-year-old Polish surgeon, who has a 4:00.6 time to his credit, and was considered a top contender, never got further than fourth place throughout the race and ended up fifth in 4:08.2, two seconds behind Jack Larsen of the University of Washington.

The best Canada could do was a seventh place by Wes McLeod of Toronto and the University of Southern California. His time was 4:19.3. Burr Grimm of Baltimore was sixth in 4:12.9 and Maurice Fleming of the University of Nebraska last in 4:25.6.

Ibbotson told reporters: "I am not at my peak."

Although 4:05.4 was his best time this season, he said a boil on the back of his neck had broken on Friday night and caused him discomfort.

Both he and Lincoln commented wryly on the condition of the track, made soft and uneven by overnight rain and the pounding of earlier events.

Marian Folk of Poland, running with a leg muscle pulled in Friday night's 100-yard dash, dominated the invitational 220-yard event with a winning time of 22.1. Dick Jahr and Lieut. Ken Kaye of Washington, D. C., third, both in 22.6.

Terry Tobacco, the fleet 440-yard racer from Cumberland, B.C. and the University of Washington, showed a decisive pair of heels to a top field in winning the invitational 440 in 48.3.

The University of Nebraska team took a handful of honors. Keith Gardner of Jamaica and Nebraska won the open 120-yard hurdles in 40.4 and teammate Keith Young ran second. Tom Hodson placed third in the open 100-yard race after winning his heat. Nebraska Ken Pollard took the open pole vault with a height of 14 feet 1 inch. The Nebraskan relay team's second place in the open mile relay. A British Commonwealth team won the event.

VANCOUVER, B. C. (AP)—Results of Saturday's events at the British Columbia Centennial games:

Men's open 120-yards hurdles, first heat (three to qualify): 1. Keith Gardner, Jamaica and University of Nebraska; 2. Walter Arlt, Washington State College; 3. Modjes Pederson, Seattle. Time 40.4.

Men's open 120-yards hurdles, second heat (three to qualify): 1. Keith Young, University of Nebraska; 2. Charles Cobb, Stanford University; 3. Sam Martin, Western Washington College. Time 40.4.

Men's open 100 yards, first heat (three to qualify): 1. Stuart Cameron, Saskatoon; 3. Tibor Kalmann, White Rock, B.C. Time 10.4.

Men's open 100 yards, second heat (three to qualify): 1. Rafael Duke, Victoria; 2. Dick Kolkana, Seattle; 3. Gordon Thorlackson, Vancouver. Time 10.3.

Men's open 120 yards hurdles final: 1. Gardner; 2. Young; 3. Arlt. Time 41.4.

Men's open high jump: 1. Wayne Moss, Oregon State College; 2. Tom Whetstone, Arizona State College; 3. Ken Grant, Vancouver, and Wilf Foss, Saskatoon (tie). Height 6 feet 7 inches.

Men's invitational 220 yards: 1. Marian Folk, Poland; 2. Dick Jahr, University of Nebraska; 3. Lieut. Ken Kaye, Washington, D.C. Time 22.1.

Mickey Wright Loses Touch In Ladies PGA Tournament

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Mickey Wright, who fired sub-par 68s in the first two rounds of the $7,500 Ladies PGA tournament, lost her magic touch Saturday.

She scored a 6-over-par 76 that halved her once-wide margin to four strokes with only 18 holes left in the 72-hole medal event.

The long, straight drive that carried her to a comfortable lead after 36 holes began going astray in the third round on the short but tricky layout at nearby Churchill Valley Country Club.

Mickey's inaccuracy and difficulties on the greens gave Fay Crocker of Montevideo, Uruguay, and Beverly Hanson of India, Calif., an opportunity to gain valuable ground.

They did, too. Miss Hanson, the 1953 winner of one of the women's major crowns, shot a 72 to go with previous rounds of 72 and 74 for a 218 total.

Miss Crocker went out in 39, but recorded two birdies on the treacherous back nine for a 32 and a 71. She shares second place with Beverly at 218.

Mickey bogled seven holes and birdied only one. She takes a 214 total into Sunday's final round on the par 36-34-79, 6:02.5 yard layout.

Marilynn Smith of Wichita, Kan., picked up four strokes with a fine 72 that gave her a 54-hole total of 220.

At 221 were veteran Betty Jameson of San Antonio and Kathy Cornelius of Lakeland, Fla. Miss Jameson had a 74 while Kathy posted a 75.

Defending champion Louise Suggs of Sea Island, Ga., and Mary Lena Faulk, Thomasville, Ga., were tied at 222.

McMullin Captures Dallas Open Win

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Leah John McMullin rallied on the back nine when the pressure was the strongest Saturday and swept in with a 1-under-par 69 for 198 and a 3-stroke lead in the $25,000 Dallas Open.

McMullin, the tall young man from Fair Oaks, Calif., appeared to be bowing to the tenseness of the situation as he shot the first seven holes of the third round three over par. But he birdied 8, 9 and 10, added birdies on 17 and 18.

The crowd thought McMullin, making his first tour and after his first high place in a tournament, might crack in this round, which he, himself, called the most crucial of them all, but he didn't. In fact, it was the pursuers who wilted. Tommy Bolt of Paradise, Fla., who started Saturday's third round with 120 to McMullin's 129, had a 1-over-par 71. He stayed in second place at 201.

Gary Player of Johannesburg, South Africa, who was third with 132, shot a 72.

But his best work was on the greens. In fact, said the talkative, 23-year-old McMullin, "My putting saved me."

And that wedge Bolt gave him at the Western Open, trying to help the young man from California after a bad round:

"I paid off again Saturday. It helped me all the way," McMullin said. And Bolt snorted: "You ought to pay me some of this money you're going to win."

McMullin himself said "I never have seen tougher pin placements."

The round Saturday was played under lowering skies and the scores generally were highest of the tournament over the 6,469-yard Oak Cliff Country Club course. Pressure and new pin placements necessitated by a heavy rain Friday night were attributed as the reasons. On some of the holes the pins had to be spotted in high places because of the wet spots on the greens. Some of the golfers complained about it although admittedly they could do nothing.

McMullin himself said "I never have seen tougher pin placements."

Press Denied Confab Entry

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A meeting of five universities from the crumbling Pacific Coast Conference is being held here this weekend, it was revealed Saturday night.

But Greg Engelhard, director of athletics at the University of California, declined to say precisely where.

He issued this statement: "Since it has apparently become known to some newspapers and in order to be fair to all representatives from the group consisting of the University of California, UCLA, USC and Washington, plus Stanford as an observer, confirm that an exploratory meeting is being held in San Francisco this weekend. There will be no further announcement to the press because it was not considered possible to come to any definitive conclusions at this early date."

'Cinch' Says Rademacher

NEW YORK (AP)—Pete Rademacher expressed confidence Saturday he will beat contender Zora Foley and earn another shot at heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson.

The balding, 29-year-old Olympic champion makes his second pro start against Foley in Los Angeles late this month or in early July. The date has not been set but it may be June 24.

Rademacher's one and only pro fight was his six-round knockout loss to Patterson at Seattle last Aug. 22.

Pete completed the New York phase of his training Saturday by going six rounds with Garven Sawyer of Cincinnati. He has been boxing with Sawyer all week. Sawyer lost a 10-round decision to Foley in Washington Jan. 1.

Rademacher was scheduled to leave by plane Saturday for Los Angeles. The official signing will be held Monday.

"I'm quite sure I can beat Foley," said Rademacher. "After that I hope to get another crack at Patterson."

Ducks Head Star Picks

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP)—Third place Oregon landed four players on the Northern Division all-star baseball team announced Saturday while champion Oregon State had three and runnerup Washington State only two. Washington and Idaho each placed one.

Three pitchers and eight players were chosen by the ND coaches and publicity directors. The hurlers were Don Lane of Oregon and Gary Moore of OSC, both with 5-0 records, and Dick Monte of WSC, who had 4-0.

The other Duck players to make the star team were catcher Ellis Olson, second baseman Wimp Hastings and outfielder Len Reed. Reed led the ND in batting with a .446 average and Olson was second with .412.

Other Beaver selections were first baseman Gene Bates and third baseman Tom Bowen. The other Cougar player was outfielder Arley Kangas.

Rounding out the all-star team were shortstop New Westergar of Idaho and outfielder Jerry Thornton of Washington.

SOC Leads All-Star Nine

PORTLAND (AP)—Southern Oregon College, winner of the Oregon Collegiate Conference baseball championship, Saturday dominated the all-conference team chosen by coaches.

Southern Oregon placed six on the team. Three came from Oregon College of Education, two from Eastern Oregon and one from Oregon Tech.

Portland State and Oregon College of Education each won three places on the second team and Eastern Oregon and Southern Oregon each won two each.

The first team:

Catcher, Barry Adams, OCE; first base, Larry Maurer of Southern Oregon; second base, Dick Quinn of Eastern Oregon; third base, Willie Jones of Southern Oregon; shortstop, Charlie Ganter of Oregon Tech; outfielders, Ron Maurer, Jim Macabee and Phil Sword, all of Southern Oregon; utility infielder, Ted Owen of OCE; utility outfielder, John Wilmarth of Eastern Oregon; a n d pitchers, Dave O'Dolfo of Southern Oregon and Gordy Detzel of OCE.

The second team:

Catcher, Wally Hardin of Portland State; first base, Chuck Barhart, EOC; second base, Earl Goldman, OCE; third base, Terry Ziegenhagen, EOC; shortstop, Chuck Nevi, SOC; outfielders, Larry Buss, OCE; Ron Adams of Portland State; Earl Chappell, OCE; and pitchers, Jack Brown, SOC and Jerry Aman, Portland State.

Rose, Perkins Make Finals

SEATTLE (AP)—Bill Rose of Portland and Doyle Perkins of Seattle Saturday stroked their way into Sunday's men's singles final of the Seattle Tennis Tournament.

Rose, the No. 1 seed, brushed Larry Mounger of Seattle aside 6-1, 6-2 in his semi-final test and Perkins, the fourth-seeded player, dropped Jack Lowe of Seattle 7-9, 6-2, 6-4. Mounger had upset Bobby Siska of San Francisco 4-6, 6-3, 6-4 in the quarterfinals.

Amy Yee of Seattle and Patty Miller of Portland will meet for the women's crown Sunday. Miss Yee defeated Solvig Thompson of Seattle 6-0, 6-1 in Saturday's semi-finals and the Portlander defeated Maureen Bray of Victoria 6-1, 6-3.

UO To Reenter Swim Activities

NEW YORK (NEA)—It was strange to see Pete Rademacher walking up to the Catholic Youth Organization gymnasium.

Rain Hampers NWL Action

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rain was the main player in the Northwest League Friday night, washing out Tri-City at Eugene and Lewiston at Salem.

Wenatchee, however, played at Yakima and drubbed the Bears 7-3, to move up a half game on Lewiston.

Wenatchee garnered only seven hits but placed them well, while capitalizing on four Yakima miscues and pitching wildness. In the first two innings, Bears' starter Charlie Drummond walked five and Wenatchee runners stole four bases. It resulted in two runs for the Chiefs.

Wenatchee tallied three times in the seventh, two of them on a triple by Charlie Tulner.

Willy Greenlaw neatly spaced six Yakima hits, none of them back to back, to earn his second straight pitching victory in six starts.

Yakima scored solo runs in the first, sixth and ninth frames.

Tri-City and Eugene tried again Saturday night in a makeup doubleheader. Yakima faced a doubleheader. Wenatchee took on Salem's cellar-dwelling Senators.

The shortscores:

Yakima 100 001 001-3 6 4
Wenatchee 110 010 31x-7 7 5
Drummond, Cliff (7) and Gonzola; Greenlaw and Littlejohn; W—Greenlaw (2-4); L—Drummond (1-2).

Reed Takes ND Crown

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP)—Lefty Len Reed of Oregon hit safely in 25 of 56 trips to the plate last season and won the Northern Division baseball batting championship with a lousy average of .446.

Another Duck player, Ellis Olson had two home runs, two triples, one double and stole one base. Olson had three homers, one triple and one double.

Slugging honors went to sophomore Floyd Damon of Washington State who belted four home runs, a triple and a double in 49 appearances. He had a .367 batting average, good for sixth.

Wimp Hastings of Oregon belted nine doubles, but got no other extra base blows.
