EXUBERANT When two men had been "swashed" — the old frontier term meaning "you've had enough, buddy," — in a local club early today, the pair salvaged their injured dignity by leaving with a bar stool in tow. Police were called, but all ended happily when the repentant celebrants returned with the stool.

City Library Launches Summer Reading Program

The buds of curiosity may lead a child to read. And the pleasures that he finds there are the flowers of his endeavor. The dying blossoms form the embryos of future seed. But the real fruits of reading are the thoughts that live forever. Such is the poem that sets the keynote for the Klamath Falls City Library's summer reading program, which got under way last week and will continue until August 15.

The program is calculated to stimulate grade school youngsters' summer reading. Every child's enrollment is entered on a large card carrying the green print of an apple tree, bearing only leaves. Each time the child reads and reports on a book a colored sticker in the form of an apple or a blossom is placed on his tree. But a fruitful tree will not be the only evidence of a well spent summer. Each child who reads and reports on 10 or more books during the course of the program will also receive a reading achievement certificate.

The book reports are made on specially printed slips, on which the child enters the title of the book, the author's name, the names of the principal characters, and a synopsis of the story. Book marks bearing the apple tree print and the poem are also furnished the youthful readers.

Thus far the program seems to be going over well, with all grades, one to six, represented. Many mothers are making a stop for their children at the library during their shopping excursions.

Concurrently with the opening of the reading program, Addie Mae Nixon, city librarian, has announced the library's summer hours. These will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. six days a week, and from 2 to 8 p.m. on Sundays. This schedule will be in force through August 31.

Principal speakers at the convention will be Gov. Robert Holmes and W. P. Kennedy, president of the B. of U. T.

Registration for the convention will open on Sunday at the Willard Hotel. The meeting will take place on Monday and Tuesday. Chairman of the local arrangements committee is Gerald E. Rutledge, telephone TU 4-7523.

Police today were trying to find owners of property taken by a confessed burglar over last weekend. The thief, Timothy W. Dolan, who stole a car here Saturday night and was arrested with it in Bend Sunday, said he couldn't remember addresses of two houses and a trailer house he entered Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

Items in his possession: A record player with records, a fish net, a jackknife, a fish or equipment basket, one box of assorted costume jewelry, a hatchet and a pair of gloves. Police said anyone missing such items over the weekend and who can identify them properly may claim them at the police station. The stolen auto has already been returned to its owner.

Members of the Chamber of Commerce Tourist and Convention Committee and all others interested are urged to attend a 2 p.m. Thursday meeting in the chamber offices with officials of the Okanogan Cariboo Trail Association.

The association's sole purpose is promotion of Highway 97 traffic. Under discussion will be a proposal to build a bridge over the Columbia River between Oregon and Washington near Biggs, Oregon. Such a bridge would eliminate present, slow ferry service and thus greatly improve Highway 97 as a through route between Weed, California and Alaska, it is believed. Invited to the meeting also have been members of local rally, auto and gasoline dealers associations.

Doctor Takes Stand In Wilson Trial

A near-packed court room this morning heard a doctor testify that Clyde Cloud, alleged victim of a beating by suspended policeman John Wilson, could have received most of his injuries by falling.

Dr. Calvin L. Hunt, who examined Cloud last November 4, the morning after the alleged assault, said the man could have been hurt either by his body striking an object, or an object striking him. The state is trying to prove Wilson used a blackjack on Cloud on the evening of November 3 atop KFJL hill.

The physician told the jury that in his opinion Cloud's badly broken right leg was caused by a fall with the leg doubling back under the body. As for a broken left wrist and injuries to the left eyebrow, a right rib, the chest area, multiple bruises on Cloud's left leg, and other hurts, "there is no way of knowing" whether they resulted from being struck or from falling, Dr. Hunt testified.

Also, under defense cross examination, the doctor said it was possible Cloud's bruises and cuts could have been received prior to 9:45 p.m. November 3, the time of the alleged assault. He said there was no way to fix the exact hour, but that they were of "recent" origin.
