COOKING SCHOOL SUCCESSFUL EVENT

The 50 women who attended the free cooking school at Kirkpatrick's East Side Appliance Store last week can attest to the fact that Beverly Lyons is a good cook. Choice and prime grades of beef were donated for the demonstration by Miller's Market, 701 Pine Street, and Mrs. Lyons cooked them "to a turn."

The recipes she used for the demonstration are available at the

SUGAR

Sugar is an inexpensive food in the United States.

An average factory worker in the United States earns enough money in 3.2 minutes to buy a pound of sugar.

It takes a Canadian 3.6 minutes, a Dane 5.9 minutes, an Englishman 10 minutes, a Belgian 12.3 minutes, a Frenchman 19 minutes (as of May, that is), a West German 20 minutes, an Italian 37 minutes and a Russian 147 minutes.

These figures were quoted by Frank A. Kemp of Denver, president of the Great Western Sugar Company, at the tenth anniversary of the New York Sugar Club held in May in New York City.

appliance store at Seventh and Klamath.

Use of a meat thermometer to insure the desired degree of doneness was emphasized by Mrs. Lyons who showed how easy it is to have meat turn out perfectly every time in the new Hotpoint range. The thermometer is an oven attachment and the indicator is shown on the back panel on top of the range, so it can be read without opening the oven.

Mrs. H. D. Schroeder, 2435 Reclamation, was awarded the 14-pound standing rib roast and the rolled roast went to Dorothy Merritt, 5221 Cottage, Elzina Farrar, 2412 Reclamation, took home the set of dishes and Mary Brothaupt, 3848 South Sixth, the laundry basket. To Hattie Morgan, 1514 Etna, went a set of towels and cake plates to Mrs. C. L. McDonald, 1862 Leroy and Mrs. Lloyd Fain, 2512 Pershing.

In addition to meat cookery, Mrs. Lyons prepared a large serving of Celestial Chicken. Then she showed the audience how easy it is to wash up all the dishes in the new Hotpoint dishwasher.

Free parking was provided for guests through the courtesy of the store.

Bird Check To Be Held

The second bird check in the Klamath Basin for 1958 will be conducted by the Nature Society of the Klamath Basin June 14 to June 22.

Records will be kept of all species to be found in this nine-day period and the results compiled to see how many different kinds of birds can be seen at this time of the year within the Basin. This check of bird life is to obtain a list of the summer residents.

The Nature Society will meet Thursday, June 12, at 8 p.m. in the office of the Camp Fire Girls, 325 Main Street, to perfect plans for this bird watching event. The society invites all people interested in bird watching to join in this Basin-wide venture.

In addition to organizing for the bird watching event, the program for the meeting will also cover the work of the botanical section of the society. All people interested in the wildflowers of the Basin are invited. Many Klamath Basin plants will be exhibited.

Legs of the penguin are enclosed in the skin of the body, thus making its walk slow and clumsy.

LAWRENCE GERAGHTY

JUNE DAIRY MONTH

Klamath Basin Grade A Producers Association was organized in 1951 by a group of Grade A milk producers in this area to promote the increased consumption of locally produced fluid milk. Wilbur Reiling was the first president and he was followed by Ray Hobson. Then Lawrence Geraghty, who had been serving as president of the Klamath County Dairymen's Association, was named as head of the Grade A producers and he has been reelected each succeeding January. He is also serving as president of the state dairymen's group.

Geraghty was one of the first Klamath County dairymen to invest in an insulated stainless steel tank truck for milk. Last year, use of the refrigerated steel tank trucks by Grade A producers here reached 100 per cent. Now a fleet of these insulated trucks brings fluid milk to the local creameries. The largest of the trucks has a capacity of 2,900 gallons.

All fluid milk sold in Oregon must meet the state inspection tests and inspection applies also to the premises upon which milk is produced. The Grade A producers, however, set their standards a little higher. Their milk is not only clean and good, but it tastes good. Fortunately, wild onions and some of the other aromatic weeds do not flourish in this area. Those of you who have lived here they grow will understand how fortunate we are. However, there can be other feed flavors added to fluid milk and the Klamath Basin producers do everything they can to eliminate these feed flavors.

Cows may eat grain, but no hay, silage or any roughage for at least two hours before milking time on dairies of members of the Grade A Producers Association, Geraghty said. After milking, instant aeration and cooling aids in insuring good, fresh-tasting milk.

Four years ago the average Grade A producer here was producing about 110 gallons of milk. Today, because of better dairy herds and improved methods, the average producer is getting approximately 200 gallons of milk each day with only a slight increase in herd numbers.

During the month of May, the Klamath Basin Grade A Producers Association members produced just under one and one-half million pounds of milk, or approximately 175,000 gallons. This amount represents an increase of just about 1,150 gallons a day over production in 1954.

Milk consumption on a per capita basis in the Klamath Basin is greater than the state or national average, Geraghty said this week.

Consumption of fluid milk in the Klamath Basin has increased every year since the organization of the producers' group. The average increase in production per producer in the group has been 165 per cent since the marketing agency set-up was inaugurated in 1954.

Dairying is a Klamath Basin industry of which we can be justly proud. Milk is a complete food and you never outgrow your need for milk. Milk is the best source of vitamins and minerals which you need for robust health.

Remember this is June Dairy Month. Drink more milk. Serve milk at meals and with between-meal snacks and use more milk in cooking.
