You can not brush bad breath away!

Almost everyone uses tooth paste... yet almost everyone has bad breath occasionally. Germs in the mouth cause most bad breath. No tooth paste kills germs the way Listerine Antiseptic does—on contact, by millions. Listerine stops bad breath four times better than tooth paste. Rinse with Listerine every time you brush your teeth.

Keeping Up Appearances

by Eleanor Mohr Struthers

Art by Ed Augustiny

BURR PUSHED HIMSELF away from the table and leaned back, tilting his chair. Ettie looked across at him and frowned. For 40 years she had been frowning at things she didn't approve of, and by now it was a formidable look. Burr, glancing up, caught her eye and straightened up quickly.

"Just forgot, Ettie," he said. "Guess I got so used to tipping back that way . . ." his voice trailed off. He was a large, quiet man who had lived alone in the small white farm house for many years, and this business of marriage was all new and strange to him.

His old habits were all disrupted now, and he felt confused. Like tilting the chair: he had always done that in the old days, relaxing after a meal. But Et-tie said it was hard on the furniture.

Ettie went to the kitchen and bustled around out there. She was a thin, spare woman of amazing energy and drive. Soon she returned, her sharp face flushed from the heat, carrying a cake. It had two little candles on it.

"It's our anniversary," she said. Before she married Burr, Ettie had been a widow, and she knew how to handle a husband, she thought.

Burr blinked. "Oh, why yes," he said. "That's right. We've been married two months now."

"The cake isn't as good as it should be," Ettie said as she had planned. "I can't get used to that old stove."

Burr sighed. The old wood cook stove had stood in the kitchen ever since the house was built. When she was alive, his mother had used it, and Burr saw
