

Fun in the Car for Father's Day

Frances W. Keane

This game will provide Dad with a few minutes of peace and quiet on Father's Day, while testing the family's ability to judge distance. Someone in the front seat watches the odometer and says, "Begin!" The others must not talk until they think one mile has been covered. As each person judges that a mile has been passed, he says, "Now." The one who comes closest is the winner. Vary the game by trying half-miles and quarter-miles.

Who's Got the Whistle? Nat Bradford trick game that can only be played once!

A whistle is secretly attached to the skirts of a girl or to the back of a boy's coat. This person is It. He is placed in the middle of a group of players and is told (with secretly crossed fingers) that a whistle is being passed around and he must detect who has it. Then a player behind It sneaks up and blows the whistle and lets go. While It turns to watch that person, another player (behind It) blows the whistle again. And so it goes until the bewildered victim goes wild!

WHAT BIRD IS IT? Ruth Dixon

Here is an odd, tame sort of sea bird who doesn't fly at all! Because he lived in remote Antarctic regions with few enemies, he didn't have to use his wings for flying. Many years ago his wings became what they are today—short flippers, useless for flight. This bird—sometimes 3½ feet tall and weighing 80 pounds—stands erect and struts comically around on his flat feet looking, at a distance, like a little man in a dress suit. But in the water how he can dive, swim, and fish! He paddles with his wings and steers with his feet. He has a padding of fat to keep him warm in the coldest weather. The mother bird hatches one or two big white eggs in her crude nest on the ground. The downy baby needs much care from both parents, and even their neighbors help out with Junior. SPHENISCIDAE is the family name of this bird. What do we call him?

Let's Draw a Skunk and a Porcupine!

Ann Davidow

He's slow afoot, the skunk is slow,
 He needn't run from any foe.

All keep their distance when they spy
 This cute white-striped little guy,

Since they'd be feeling plenty punk
 If they should bother Squirt the Skunk,

And worse if they got out of line
 Approaching Prickly Porcupine!

Regularity problems from lack of bulk? Mrs. Victoria Panzetta of Rochester, New York, writes: "I was taking all kinds of laxatives, but none seemed to help.
