

Quick Rundown Given Of Newsmen Crash Victims

BOSTON, (AP) — Daniel J. Coughlin Jr., 31, killed early today in the jet tanker crash at Westover Air Force Base, had been an Associated Press newsmen for six years.

A native of Boston, he was graduated from Boston College High School and enlisted in the Army at the age of 16. He landed in Normandy with the first wave on D-Day.

After his discharge, he graduated from Boston College. He joined The AP in Charlotte, N.C., in March 1952 and was transferred to Boston in January 1957.

Coughlin, a rugged 195 pounds, was a standout football guard in high school. He also played semi-pro football in eastern Massachusetts, but passed up the sport in college to concentrate on his studies.

He leaves his widow Phyllis, two sons, aged 6 and 4 1/2, a daughter born last December, and his parents.

Five other newsmen died in the crash.

Robert B. Sibley, 37, was one of the nation's top aviation writers.

He had been aviation editor of the Boston Traveler since 1939. He conducted many campaigns for air safety including ground control installations and radar aboard airlines.

Sibley won many local and national honors for his work in the aviation field.

Before joining the Traveler, he was a reporter on the Worcester Telegram and the Post.

He leaves his widow Leona; a son, Robert Jr., of Natick; and a daughter, Mrs. Joan Kronenberg, Natick.

Robert A. Ginsburgh was an associate editor of U.S. News and World Report and a former aide to four secretaries of defense. He was 63.

Ginsburgh joined the news magazine in 1953 after retiring from the Air Force as a brigadier general. He specialized in military affairs for the magazine.

Ginsburgh, a native of Poland, joined the staff of former Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson in 1949 after serving briefly as deputy director of Air Force public relations.

He remained on the secretary's personal staff during the terms of three other defense chiefs — George C. Marshall, Robert Lovett and Charles E. Wilson.

Ginsburgh was born in Warsaw May 30, 1895, and came to the United States in 1901. He was graduated from Harvard in 1917. He joined the Army the same year and remained in the service until his retirement five years ago.

He is survived by his widow Elsie, one son and two daughters.

James L. McConaughy Jr. was chief of the Washington bureau of Time and Life magazines.

McConaughy, 42, was son of the late governor of Connecticut and president of Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn.

A native of Brunswick, Maine, he was graduated from Deerfield (Mass.) Academy in 1932 and from Wesleyan University in 1936.

He worked on the Hartford (Conn.) Times and the Washington Post before joining Time, Inc., as a copy boy in 1938. He later became a writer for Time magazine.

In 1944 to 1946 he served as a captain in the Marine Corps intelligence in the southwest Pacific.

After he left the Marines in 1946, he was sent to Time magazine's Ottawa Bureau, where he remained until 1950, when he was assigned to the Washington bureau and became a political and congressional correspondent. In August 1957, he was named chief of the Washington bureau of Time and Life magazines, their largest.

He leaves his widow, two sons and two daughters.

Glenn A. Williams, 41, had been a newsmen for more than 20 years. He was an associate editor of U.S. News and World Report.

After radio and newspaper stints, Williams joined The Associated Press at Jefferson City, Mo., in November 1941. Four months later he was transferred to The AP's Kansas City Bureau. He was moved to AP-St. Louis in May 1943, and returned to Jefferson City in January, 1944.

In late 1945, Williams entered the AP foreign service, being assigned to the London bureau. In 1951 he returned to New York to serve on the AP foreign desk. A year later he went with U.S. News and World Report.

A native of McGill, Nev., Williams was educated in the public schools of Enid, Okla., and at the University of Oklahoma.

Williams was married and the father of a son, Bruce, 14.

Norman Montellier was a United Press International newsmen. Montellier, 37, a New York City resident, worked in the UPI New York office writing interpretive news stories for the UPI foreign service.

He was born in Plainfield, N.J., and reared in California. He started to work on the Napa (Calif.) Daily Register at the age of 16, and later worked on the Napa Journal. In 1937 he joined the Vallejo (Calif.) Times Herald, and was city editor of the newspaper from 1941 to 1943, when he joined the United Press (now the UPI) in San Francisco.

He became night manager of the UP in San Francisco and later served as editor in charge of the UPI's Pacific war desk there.

After World War II, Montellier went abroad for the UP. He spent 6 1/2 years in Europe, serving as bureau chief in Rome and later becoming general manager for Italy. He returned to New York in 1951.

Montellier leaves his widow Maureen and two children, Peter and Kitty.

Vast, Complex Electronic Air Radar Network Opens

By VERN HAUGLAND

McGUIRE AIR FORCE BASE, N.J. (AP)—SAGE—the vast and complex electronic air warning network called Semi-Automatic Ground Environment — formally went into operation today.

Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, Air Force vice chief of staff, declared that for the United States to have designed, produced and installed such a mechanical marvel in four years was "a real technical and logistic triumph."

LeMay described the inauguration of SAGE as "the largest single step taken toward the improvement of air defense capabilities in the past 10 years."

Several hundred military dignitaries and representatives of many firms that helped build the huge system attended ceremonies dedicating this first operational SAGE center. The various centers to be built will be controlled from North American Air Defense Command headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo.

This first center of the series guards the most densely populated and highly industrialized section of the nation — the New York-Philadelphia metropolitan areas, all of New Jersey, and parts of Connecticut, Rhode Island and Delaware.

At the dedication ceremony, the Air Force gave for the first time the details of the high powered radar system and associated computer equipment that helps screen North America from air attack. They include:

1. Heavy, long-range radar units, with radomes 50 feet in diameter and weighing 2,300 pounds mounted on steel platforms more than 100 miles at sea and on strategically located ground sites, capable of detecting aircraft hundreds of miles away.
2. Medium powered gap-filler radar to plug the holes between the coverage of the long-range units. These sets automatically transmit information by telephone lines to the prime stations, where a special television converter displays the combined data.
3. At the center itself, the largest electronic computers in the world—each occupying about two acres—to receive the information from the radar installations and to monitor the positions of air planes and defense weapons.

LeMay said SAGE cannot track ballistic weapons, capable of flying many times the speed of sound, or control attacks against them. "As yet there is no defense against such weapons," he said.

But he said the greatest threat for the next few years comes from manned jet bombers and air breathing missiles — and SAGE provides improved defense capability against such weapons.

New Cosmetics Can Alter Women's Facial Color

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Around Manhattan:

Our language is sprinkled with clichés concerning people who turn green with envy or purple with rage. But I never thought I'd see the day when we women would turn either color with cosmetics.

Yet, a new group of makeup shades includes emerald, amethyst, and amber. They're all the brainchild of Charles of the Ritz cosmetics, who announces that we are in "for an age of adornment."

Recommended only for evening, and "for the girl with the

Young Iraqi Alters Ideas Of What's Been Going On

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

BEIRUT (AP) — A year ago young American-educated Ali was the most passionate of Baghdad's Arab nationalists supporting Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Today, the young Iraqi is a relaxed man. He has been taking a calmer view of what has been going on about him, and he has begun to wonder.

All is a symptom of what is going on in some Arab areas. The union of Egypt and Syria under Nasser's dictatorship, along with the crisis in Lebanon, cost the Egyptian leader much of the sort of unquestioning support he had received from the small but important group of young Arab intellectuals.

Many members of the same class in Syria are beginning to be

Engle Levels Knight Blast

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Rep. Clair Engle, striking back at what he terms lies by Gov. Goodwin J. Knight, says the Republican governor is "ducking, dodging and staying out of gun range" on major issues.

Knight, Engle's opponent in the campaign for the U.S. Senate, yesterday challenged Engle's claim that he was a co-author of the GI bill of rights for veterans of World War II.

"The Democratic congressman told newsmen 'The import of his statements is deliberately false,' and that Knight only showed his ignorance of the legislative process."

A reporter asked if he meant that Knight had lied.

"That's a short country word for it," Engle replied.

"The governor couldn't hit the side of a barn if he was inside and had all the doors and windows closed," Engle said.

The fact was, Engle said, that he was a member of the House Committee on Veterans Affairs when it wrote the World War II bill — and that same committee when it voted a similar bill for Korean vets.

"I've had 15 years of legislative experience. He has had none. There it (Knight's statement) demonstrates a lack of knowledge of how legislation operates in the House of Representatives," Engle said.

To Knight's charge that Engle had falsely claimed to be a veteran because of a 30-day tour of duty as a lieutenant colonel with the Air Force in Korea, Engle answered that he has never claimed veteran's status.
