

Weaknesses Disclosed In Army's Pentomic Ranks

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

FT. ORD, Calif. (NEA)—There is growing evidence being developed here that the U.S. Army may have reorganized itself into a state of dangerous weakness.

A unique means of scientifically measuring the combat effectiveness of new Army units and tactical concepts being used here is exposing more and more weaknesses in the pentomic type division.

During the past two years the Army has rushed into being an unprecedented overhaul of its division structure into the so-called pentomic form. The World War II type division with three regiments has been abolished. An organization consisting of five battle groups instead of regiments has been substituted.

The prime concept behind this move was to permit the battle groups to fight on a widely dispersed battlefield, each with far more independence and freedom of action than the previous regiment.

This dispersal is to minimize casualties if the enemy is using tactical atomic weapons. But it also entails the need for more and better communications equipment, more versatile weapons and better means of transportation. And it is in these three areas where the present, new pentomic structure of U.S. divisions are turning out to be weakest under the scientific evaluation being given it here.

A recent intense examination of pentomic type companies under scientifically controlled and simulated combat conditions reveals the following grave weaknesses:

When units are dispersed enough for tactical safety their communications equipment is not powerful enough for them to maintain contact with commanders. When more powerful radios were tried in the maneuvers radio along the whole west coast were cut in on what were supposed to be secret exchanges of orders.

Russian subs off the coast could have monitored and recorded every order given in the maneuvers, it has been discovered. This also means a threat to security of operations on a battlefield.

Pentomic units do not have enough anti-tank weapons. There is far too little artillery support for forward troops provided in the pentomic division. And there is an urgent need for every armored troop carrier vehicle to carry a weapon big enough to destroy the enemy's largest armored vehicle.

When troops are moved to a combat position by helicopter they are left in a dangerously vulnerable position, without weapons heavy enough to defend themselves adequately, and without enough wheel transportation. And serious doubts have been raised about the heralded use of helicopters because of their vulnerability to small-arms ground fire.

In addition to these pentomic division weaknesses, it has been determined that the organization has totally inadequate means of spotting enemy troop targets because of the great distances caused by dispersal. And war games have showed that one of the most difficult maneuvers to execute is putting enough distance between you and the enemy to drop an atomic bomb on him and not injure your own forces.

CDEC, Combat Development Experimentation Center, is the name of the new Army group doing this evaluation work. It consists of over 3,000 officers and men in field units, working with about 100 staff officers and top scientists. Elaborate, standard and experimental equipment is used by the group.

Ingenious methods of putting tanks and other weapons out of action the second they are determined to be hit by simulated fire and an instant means of assessing casualties in a war game are some of the techniques used. All actions are elaborately recorded on electronic machines and can be "played back" for further study.

Available land facilities include 310,000 acres of rolling terrain and rugged mountains and hills which are part of the Hunter Liggett-Camp Roberts complex located about 80 miles from Ft. Ord.

Even though CDEC's first findings have exposed serious deficiencies in the pentomic division, with a resulting serious weakness in the current strength of U.S. ground forces, top Army officials are pleased with results. Veteran officers have long since been disenchanted with the old style maneuver with an antiquated umpiring system which never really measured what it was supposed to measure.

Army officials say that at least an intelligent start can be made now on correcting the weaknesses.

IMPROVED HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Cecil B. DeMille's condition is "definitely improved," his physician reports. The 77-year-old producer was taken to Cedars of Lebanon Hospital last week suffering from a circulatory disorder.

ADEN (UPI)—The Sultan of Aden has been informed that some of his troops and a lot of his money are missing.

The Sultan, Sir Ali Abdul Karim, went to London recently for a three-month visit.

One of his military commanders and about 70 members of the 600-man army disappeared Wednesday night. A "substantial amount," reported to be $200,000, of the state treasury disappeared with them.

The Aden government said the deserters, and the money, were believed to be in neighboring Yemen.

Lahaj is the strongest of the eight semi-autonomous sultanates in Britain's West Aden protectorate.

THE NONCOMMISSIONED OFFICERS CLUB at Kingsley Field has now been officially opened. M.Sgt. Everett L. Kearsley, club secretary, extends an invitation to all military, active reserve and retired personnel living in the Klamath Falls area to utilize the club's facilities. The club was built by the Hall-Atwater Construction Company at a cost of approximately $117,500. Its opening is another step toward the activation of the 408th Fighter Group to full operational status.

Women Plans To Wed Same Man She Ran Out On

NEW YORK (AP)—Irene Arzedi, who disappeared on her wedding day last February, took a new marriage license yesterday with the same fellow she left waiting at the church. Wedding plans were not disclosed.

Miss Arzedi, 29, disappeared Feb. 22 just five hours before her wedding to Joseph Pinto, 31, was to take place. She showed up eight days later, declaring she had become frightened and had taken a transcontinental bus trip to Los Angeles.

U.N. Vetoes Red Proposal

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—A Russian-backed resolution aimed at ending U.S. nuclear tests in the Pacific was turned down yesterday by the Trusteeship Council, which oversees American administration of the island testing grounds.

The Soviet Union joined with three neutral nations — Burma, India and the United Arab Republic — in supporting an Indian resolution to end nuclear tests in, or around, any trust territory. It lost 7-4.

India claimed the United States was staging tests in the Marshalls because it preferred to risk Asian lives rather than those of Americans.

Charging India with unintentionally raising a racial issue, U.S. Delegate Mason Sears replied the islands were not part of Asia and the test area presented the least danger of any area under U.S. control.

Baltimore Safe In Case Of Fire

BALTIMORE (AP)—If Baltimore should have a multialarm blaze in the next three days, some 150 visitors would be able to show their stuff.

They're here for the sixth annual convention of the International Fire Buff Assn. The organization of fire engine chasers claims about 3,050 members in the United States, England and Canada.

Most of the clubs operate mobile canteens which follow fire trucks to keep fire fighters supplied with hot coffee and cigarettes. Many of the buffs are volunteer firemen or Civil Defense auxiliary firemen.

"If they need dry clothes or a change of boots, we get them," said Bob Wren, international president of the organization who has been a member of Cincinnati's Box 13 Assn. since 1935.

The Strait of Messina, between Italy and Sicily, froths into whirlpools as tides push back and forth.

Expert Defines Word Meaning

NEW YORK (AP)—George V. Allen, director of the U.S. Information Agency, says the word "propaganda" denotes advertising and should not be associated with lies.

Allen, speaking last night before the Zonta international convention, a service organization of women business executives, said: "There is nothing really evil in the term. In Spanish, propaganda means advertising; in religion, it means spreading the faith; in government it means trying to make ourselves understood abroad."

The word came into disrepute, Allen said, when abused by Hitler's propaganda chief Joseph Goebbels "and came to mean the big lie."

Reds Temper Flared Over Foreign Affairs Results

By CHARLES M. McCANN
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The week's good and bad news on the international balance sheet:

Soviet Russia indulged in an outburst of temper this week over developments in the field of foreign affairs.

Mobs, obviously officially organized, engaged in hostile demonstrations against the United States, West German and Danish embassies in Moscow. The demonstrations were staged in retaliation for anti-Communist demonstrations in New York and Bonn in protest against the execution of Hungarian revolt leaders Imre Nagy and Pal Maleter.

A Soviet note to the United States threatened to boycott a meeting of experts, already set for next Tuesday in Geneva, Switzerland, on means of assuring compliance with a possible ban on tests of nuclear weapons.

Official statements and the officially-controlled Moscow newspapers denounced the United States, its allies and the United Nations for considering Lebanon's request that action be taken to stop the flow of weapons and men which are being sent to the Lebanese rebels across the frontier of Syria from the United Arab Republic.

On Monday, while police watched idly, a mob smashed the windows of the West German Embassy in Moscow. Incendiary rags, stones and bottles of purple ink were thrown through the broken windows. Draperies and furniture were damaged seriously.

It followed the same course as last Friday's attack on the Danish Embassy.

On Wednesday, a much more temperate mob demonstrated in front of the United States Embassy. Without much enthusiasm, the demonstrators shouted "Fascists," "dogs" and similar epithets. But no missiles were thrown and no damage was done.

Everything had seemed set for the Geneva meeting of experts on a possible agreement to suspend nuclear weapons tests as the Soviet government demands.

The United States, Canada, Great Britain and France were ready to send their delegates, expecting to confer with experts from Russia, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Romania.

But on Wednesday, Soviet Foreign Secretary Andrei A. Gromyko handed American Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson Jr., an "aide memoire" or informal note demanding that the problem of insuring compliance with a test ban be subordinated to reaching an immediate agreement on the suspension.

Gromyko threatened to boycott the meeting unless his views were accepted.

But the allied governments went ahead with plans to send their delegates to Geneva and await developments.

United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold returned to his New York headquarters after conferring with Lebanese President Camille Chamoun and Premier Sami Solh and United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Hammarskjold sought first to try to get Nasser to stop the flow of aid from Syria to the Lebanese rebels and secondly to police the Lebanese-Syrian border to cut the supply line.

Russia denounced all this as intervention in domestic Arab affairs and as threatening to cause war in the Middle East.

But Lebanon was determined to go ahead with its appeal for help. And the United States is pledged, if necessary, to use troops in Lebanon's support.

Sham Beep-Beeps To Be Sentenced

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The case of the counterfeit beepers is all over — except for the sentencing.

Three engineers will be sentenced July 16 for operating an unlicensed radio station and interfering with communications. Last December, as a joke, they set up a radio transmitter which sent beeps matching Soviet Sputnik signals.

Federal court found the trio guilty yesterday after the Federal Communications Commission described how much work it took to track down the transmitter, which was hidden in the mountains north of here.

The engineers, Rulon D. Jensen and Dean L. Hanson, Los Angeles, and Fred Field Jr., Torrance, have asked for probation.

Ex-Wife Seeking Divorce Revoke

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The second wife of the late Bernard Macfadden is suing to have set aside their divorce granted 15 years. The noted physical culturist died nearly three years ago at the age of 87.

Mrs. Mary Macfadden, 65, alleged that Macfadden got the divorce fraudulently by claiming to be a Florida resident when he actually lived in New York.

Fuller Warren, her lawyer, said she was not seeking more money from the estate but was "just trying to clear her name."

Prisoner Given Full Pardon

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—William Hutto, who was a fugitive for 33 years, was expected to be released from the Huntsville, Tex., state prison today.

Gov. Price Daniel granted Hutto to a full pardon because of his "exemplary life and good character."

Hutto, was sentenced to 15 years on a rape conviction in 1924. After serving about a year, he was granted a furlough because of family affairs. He never returned to prison. He said he understood he had been pardoned.

He lived as an auto salesman in New Orleans, but was picked up on a traffic violation this spring while visiting in Texas. A routine check turned up his record.
