Marcia Rae Cochran Weds Richard Sumner

A basket of white gladioli and pink carnations decorated the altar of the First Presbyterian Church for the afternoon wedding of Marcia Rae Cochran and Richard Paul Sumner. Palms and candelabra completed the decorations. The 2 o'clock ceremony on June 14 was performed by the Rev. James Overdorff of the Pelican Presbyterian Sunday School.

Marcia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Cochran, 1419 Canyon Street, was given in marriage by her father. Her princess style, ballerina-length gown was of white embossed tulle with a pearl-trimmed lace bodice, and was made by Mrs. R. J. Sumner, mother of the bridegroom. A crown of white leaves, trimmed with pearls, held the shoulder-length veil. The bride's slippers were glass and she wore white net gloves. She carried a white Bible, centered with a purple-throated white orchid, trimmed with Stephanotis.

Something blue for the bride was the traditional blue garter and something old was a lace handkerchief, which had belonged to her grandmother. Marcia borrowed a white Bible for the "borrowed," and something new was her veil. For luck—a penny in her slipper.

Peggy Sumner, sister of the bridegroom, was the bride's only attendant. Her dress was of powder blue organza, made in princess style and ballerina length. She wore a matching hat of blue leaves and illusion net veil, matching satin slippers and net gloves. Her bouquet was a nosegay of pink carnations and white net.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Sumner, 229 Alameda, had asked Larry Worden to be his best man, and Jim Ochs and Bob Dixon were ushers. Ron Sumner, brother of the bridegroom, lighted the candles before the ceremony.

Mrs. George McIntyre was organist and Kurt Feidler, soloist.

The bride's mother chose a navy blue and white afternoon dress and her corsage was red roses and white carnations.

Approximately 100 guests attended the reception in the church dining room.

The three-tiered bride's cake, trimmed with blue and white roses, centered the white-covered table. Candelabra with white candles were on either side of the cake. A piece of white coral with a spray of pale pink orchids decorated the guest book table.

Punch was served by Mrs. John Parisotto, and coffee was served by Mrs. Everett Ball. The guest book was in charge of Mrs. Ron Williams, sister of the bride, and Frances Johnson, cousin of the bride.
