

Adams Probe Continues Despite Criticism Of Committee Methods

By LEWIS GULICK
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.) said today his subcommittee investigating the Sherman Adams case has not violated a House rule requiring secret sessions when a committee decides testimony may defame anyone.

Harris defended his subcommittee's procedure against stiff criticism as he called back business-lawyer John Fox for a third day of questioning under oath.

Fox has pictured his business rival, Boston millionaire Bernard Goldfine, as getting favored treatment from federal agencies through friendship with Sherman Adams, President Eisenhower's top aide. Adams has issued angry denials; so have Goldfine's lawyers.

Goldfine flew in from Boston last night but was reported planning to stay clear of today's hearing. His lawyers said they wanted Goldfine to bone up on Fox's allegations so he will be ready for a scheduled appearance tomorrow.

Before leaving Boston, Goldfine told newsmen he would answer all questions put to him by investigators "if my attorneys agree. I have nothing to hide."

At the outset of his testimony

last week, Fox read a prepared statement charging pressures had forced collapse of the Boston Post, which he formerly published.

But some of the things he said in later off-the-cuff testimony brought the biggest stir — and caused on criticism of the subcommittee for not hearing Fox behind closed doors. The group had rejected a request from Goldfine's lawyers that Fox be heard in secret.

Among other things, Fox quoted Goldfine as saying he bought a Washington house for Adams, had given Adams checks in past years and that Adams had promised to take care of some Goldfine troubles with the Federal Trade Commission.

In testimony, Adams has acknowledged accepting hotel hospitality and some gifts from Goldfine. While conceding he acted imprudently in asking the FTC and Exchange Commission about cases involving Goldfine, Adams denied exerting any influence on Goldfine's behalf.

Both the White House and Adams denounced as lies much of what Fox told the subcommittee last week.

Vice President Nixon defended Adams on the basis of the evidence so far. But he said the decision on Adams' future status at the White House apparently will depend on the nature of further disclosures.

In Chicago, Senate GOP Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.) again called for Adams resignation.

Figures issued by the Pentagon at a reporter's request showed Goldfine firms got about 10 1/2 million dollars worth of defense contracts for textiles in 1951-52, the last two years of the Truman administration.

This was four times the total of comparable defense awards to Goldfine companies since Adams came to Washington with Eisenhower in 1953. The final Truman years saw heavy defense buying because of the Korean War.

Harris was asked in an interview about widespread protests that his subcommittee was allowing itself to become a forum for smearing people.

Rep. Thomas B. Curtis (R-Mo.) accused the subcommittee of "procedural impropriety." Publisher Robert B. Choate of the Boston Herald and Traveler, one of those named in Fox's testimony about alleged pressures on him, complained to Harris of what Choate called the subcommittee's "smear and run" methods.

Harris contended the House rule requires a closed session if the committee determines that testimony may tend to defame any person.

He said the subcommittee in its previous conferences on whether to invoke the rule had decided, from the information before it,

Violence On Cyprus Gains In Intensity

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—Terrorist violence continued on Cyprus today and the leader of the Greek Cypriot underground threatened to renew attacks on the British unless they negotiate with Archbishop Makarios on independence for the island.

An unidentified gunman in the southern port of Limassol killed a Turk Cypriot as he bicycled to work at his barbershop in the Greek quarter this morning. Masked terrorists in the western Farnagusta district attacked a group of Greek Cypriots last night. The threat to open "the door admitting the god of war" was contained in leaflets signed by Digenis, underground name of FOKA leader Col. George Grivas. The leaflets said diplomacy would not longer be possible unless British confers with Makarios, the Greek Cypriot leader now in exile at Athens.

EOKA's terror campaign has been directed at forcing out the British so the island can unite with Greece. The Turkish Cypriot minority opposes this for fear it will get second-class status. Neither side has shown much interest in Britain's plan for all three groups to share the island's administration.

Violence also flared between Greek and Turkish Cypriots in the western Paphos district after a Greek Cypriot butcher was found shot to death on a mountain road.

Armed with sticks and homemade weapons, the slain man's friends entered Greek village areas British troops stopped the rioting that followed by clamping on a curfew. The clashes injured two persons.
