Man Buys Golf Links; May Fire Committee Head

LONDON (UPI) — Ever get mad at some organization and wish you could buy it and fire all those people? It happened to builder Pat Pateman, 42.

Pateman was refused membership in a local golf club so he promptly bought the club's 120-acre links, clubhouse and all. Three years ago Pateman applied to renew his membership in the Longcliffe Golf Club near Loughborough. But his application did not receive the necessary support from two-thirds of the committee.

"I took a poor view of that,"

Pateman said today. "Now the shoe is on the other foot."

Pateman, who bought the club for an undisclosed sum Monday, said that "if I do not approve of two-thirds of the committee now I can do something about it. 'I am under no obligation to renew the lease.'"

He added, "perhaps this will teach the committee a lesson."
