Girls Take Baby Believed Unwanted By Their Parents

SUN VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—"We are taking Baby Mike away. We won't let you give him away." Two teen-age girls left this note with their parents Sunday and disappeared, taking with them the 20-month-old brother they thought their parents no longer wanted. Yesterday a patrolman found Sandra Hill, 16, and her sister Genevieve, 13, asleep under a tree in a Burbank park, about five miles from their home. In their arms was Mike.

The officer recognized them from their mother's missing persons report. At Burbank police station the girls told a policewoman: "We had to leave and take Baby Mike with us. Mama and Daddy were going to adopt him out."

Police went to the Hills' home in Sun Valley and found out why the parents had talked of putting the baby up for adoption.

"I can't see any other answer," said Lyle Hill, 44, a carpenter. "I can't get a job."

"Counting Mikey, we have eight kids—and we live in a house that was made for no more than two people."

Rent on the one-bedroom home is due again Thursday. The current week's rent was paid by the Bureau of Public Assistance. But the bureau says it can't give the Hills relief payments because Mrs. Hill and the children only recently arrived in the area from Toledo, Ohio.

"I had to split the family up back there and farm out the kids," Mrs. Hill said. "We didn't want to do that again, and we thought we'd let just the baby go."

The three grimy, weary children went home in a police car. The girls said they had spent the night in an all-night movie and trudged through the hills, taking turns carrying their brother.

"I don't care now," Mrs. Hill declared. "We'll keep him." She told a juvenile officer: "We could make out all right if my husband and I had jobs. We're willing to work."

But Hill has other strikes against him. He is on parole from San Quentin Prison, where he served time for the theft of an outboard motor. And he has been in ill health lately.

He shook his head sadly. "It can't be done," he said. "The boy has got to go."

Good News Men—Sack Won't Be With Us In Fall

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Prediction: Football coaches won't be the only ones biting their nails this fall. Fashion designers may do a bit of gnawing, too, but one thing appears certain: the sack dress won't be around.

The first thing—for fashion designers, anyway—is has come. More than 1,300 women from 17 states, wives of delegates to an insurance conference, were permitted a peek at the fall fashion line Monday.

About half of them took time to

New Economy Boost Viewed

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—"A gradual upward movement" in the California and national economy in the next 24 months should reach a new level of prosperity by mid-1960, a budget expert said recently.

Robert L. Harkness, chief of the Budget Division of the Department of Finance, said that in the present fiscal year just ended, however, California saw an economic level 3 to 4 per cent below what had been expected.

Harkness said the drop this year can be traced to a bigger drop in business expenditures than expected, a sharp drop in the car market and substantial liquidation of inventories.

"Looking forward to the next 24 months, it is difficult to foresee any development which would produce a sharp resurgence in the national economy or that of California," Harkness said. "However, there are factors likely to produce a gradual upward movement during this period."

"Consequently, it is reasonable to assume that the nation's economy in 1959-60 will be operating at a level moderately above the 440 billion dollar peak achieved last year," he said.

"California should share fully in this business volume, with new records in employment and personal income."

Comedian's Kin Jailed For Dope

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Five years to life in prison on a narcotics charge was decreed Monday for the bridegroom of Barbara Ann Burns, daughter of the late comedian Bob (Bazooka) Burns.

David James Mack, 27, former movie technician, had been convicted of supplying heroin to her before their recent marriage. His attorney said an appeal will be filed.

His 20-year-old wife is free on bond pending appeal of her recent conviction of being a narcotics addict. She was sentenced to 90 days in jail.

Campaigners Said Litterbugs

PHENIX CITY, Ala. (UPI)—Political campaigners are litterbugs, the city commission here has decided, and something must be done.

Faced with the task of cleaning up placards and posters fastened to trees and poles by the host of candidates in Alabama's recent primary, city officials have decided there must be restraint.

They are trying to decide whether to ban this type of political advertising or require each candidate to post a bond guaranteeing that he will have all his posters removed when the campaign is over.

Wall Street Sees Possible Shortage Common Stock

NEW YORK (UPI)—Wall Street envisions a shortage of common stocks if the nation's 200,000 life insurance salesmen get into the securities business.

The vehicle that would bring them in is a new gimmick to investment—the variable annuity. The only reason it isn't running full tilt right now is that laws must be passed in most states and perhaps the federal government to make the sales legal.

The current issue of Business Week devotes its cover story to variable annuities and points out that the major controversy centers on the heads of the nation's largest life insurance companies—Metropolitan's Frederic W. Ecker, and Prudential's Carroll M. Shanks.

Prudential is for, Metropolitan against the new investment plan. A variable annuity is difficult to define because it is based on age of person involved, mortality tables, expenses of operation of the particular company, particular type of investment plan.

But it is simple to contrast it with an ordinary fixed annuity. The variable annuity's payments at maturity vary with the fluctuations of the stock market. A annuity provides a steady, unchanged income.

The value of the variable annuity, its boosters point out, is superior in that it is based on investment in stocks and convertible bonds which would keep pace with inflation.

The purchaser of a variable annuity must pay fixed premiums over a long period of years. The money is invested by the insurance company in securities, mostly common stocks, and after the payment period is over the holder of the variable annuity begins to receive his income from the plan.

So far variable annuities can be sold in the District of Columbia, and some states. Measures will come up in the New Jersey Legislature in the fall on these annuity plans. New Jersey is the home of Prudential.

Shanks holds the variable annuity represents the life insurance business' first step toward protecting retired folk from the ravages of inflation.

Ecker shudders over the prospect of putting Metropolitan's salesmen in that business. "They've been selling safety and security," he says—"then they'd be selling speculation."
