Hidden Microphone Found In Hotel Suite As Goldfine Probe Continues

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bernard Goldfine's aides early today found the Harris subcommittee's chief investigator with a hidden microphone in an adjoining hotel suite.

Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark) called the subcommittee into emergency session to weigh the fate of the investigator, Baron I. Shacklette, in a strange twist to an inquiry that has rocked Washington.

Newsmen summoned for a post-midnight news conference watched in amazement as the microphone which Shacklette later claimed as his was jerked under a connecting door into the Goldfine aides' suite. The original plan for the meeting with newsmen was abandoned.

Shacklette said he tuned in his hi-fi set on the Sheraton-Carlton suite of Jack Lotto, Goldfine's new publicity man. He said Harris told him to find out, as he put it, who was tapping telephone lines of subcommittee members.

"Mr. Harris did not authorize any particular type of investigation," Shacklette said.

Jack Anderson, who works for columnist Drew Pearson, was found in the room with Shacklette. Anderson said he too had information about the alleged wire-tapping, but the microphone and electronic gear were Shacklette's.

Harris acknowledged that he had told Shacklette to see what he could find out about reports his telephone was tapped. But he said Shacklette's electrical eavesdropping was not authorized. Harris said he still does not know whether his telephone has been tampered with.

Goldfine, gift-giving friend of presidential aide Sherman Adams whom the subcommittee now is investigating, charged "Gestapo tactics" when he learned of the postmidnight incident.

"I'm shocked beyond words by such disgraceful conduct by an official representative of a congressional committee," Goldfine said later after huddling with Lotto and Goldfine's Washington lawyer Roger Robb.

Goldfine issued immediate orders for his entourage to move out of the hotel. Goldfine's own suite was on the second floor, six floors below Lotto's.

The developments overshadowed all other recent events in the sensation-packed House probe of charges that Goldfine bestowed gifts widely among federal employes and got special federal treatment in return. Both he and Adams have denied the special treatment charges.

The textile and real estate magnate flew in from Boston last night with a promise to tell the subcommittee, at last, about three quarters of a million dollars worth of his checks that have gone uncashed for years.

He returns for a third day of testimony before the subcommittee tomorrow.

But Goldfine had hardly retired to his suite before the case took its newest turn.

Here's what happened:

Lotto phoned newsmen between 11 p.m. and midnight that he was arranging a 12:30 a.m. news conference on some records which Goldfine had brought into town an hour or so earlier.

Reporters gathered in Lotto's Room 800 at the appointed hour but the news conference never came off. While they were chatting informally and waiting for it to start, Robb and Lotto bustled about. Then the two Goldfine aides and Phil Brennan, Lotto's assistant, silently motioned the newsmen into another room of the suite.

Robb then whispered that about 11 p.m. he had spotted a microphone just on the other side of a locked door connecting Room 800 with adjoining Room 806.

Robb said that he had noticed earlier that the door to Room 806 was a fraction of an inch above the floor line. He said he kneeled down and saw a pair of shoes move. He called Brennan. Brennan said he saw a pair of hands and what appeared to be someone else peering back at him from the darkness on the other side of the crack under the door.

Next, Robb produced for newsmen a former Washington, D.C., policeman, Lloyd V. Furr, whom Robb hired a week ago to check on eavesdropping. Furr said an electrical detector confirmed there was a microphone next door.

Furr and Robb led the group over to the locked door.

Furr slid a wire coat hanger under the door, then pulled back in a swift motion.

Out came a small gray microphone the size of a tiny mouse, trailing behind it a tail of an electric cord several feet long.

There wasn't a sound from next door. Lotto pounded on the hallway door to Room 806. No response. He called for the manager and later for a policeman, who said no city law was violated in using the microphone.

Forty-five minutes elapsed before the silent, locked suite was opened to the newsmen and photographers.

The barrel - chested Shacklette did most of the talking while Anderson, whose by-line sometimes appears over the Pearson column, sat in an adjacent chair for the unscheduled news conference.

"We have information," Shacklette said in measured tones, "that committee members telephones were tapped. I was given the assignment of checking to see whether this was true."

"We had sufficient information," he went on, "to lead me to believe that there was an organized effort to dredge up everything possible on committee members. (Besides reports of wiretaps, Harris last week had said mysterious calls for information about him had also been made to his constituents.)

"Mr. Anderson had some information which made it appear that we might find out who had paid for these private investigators. The trail led from the Statler Hotel (across the street from the Sheraton-Carlton) to this hotel. We were attempting to find out who in this hotel was responsible.

"Mr. Harris did not authorize any particular type of investigation. He did not authorize technical surveillance. . . .

"Mr. Anderson registered in this room and I took advantage of his hospitality."

Anderson said he too had reports of an undercover campaign against the subcommittee and was checking on them. He obtained the adjoining suite under the name of Brooks.

Pearson could not be reached immediately for comment.

Lotto roused Goldfine after Shacklette and Anderson had had their say. Goldfine appeared sleepily at the door of his second-floor suite after conferring with Robb and Lotto. He wore a gold Chinese robe over white pajamas and carried a piece of paper with his statement written in pencil.

"I intend to move out in the morning," Goldfine said. He was prodded a bit by his aides.

"I think it is worse than Russia," he said. "Worse than the Gestapo."

LOCAL BUSINESSMEN are shown here during recent discussion meeting on free private enterprise, sponsored by commerce chamber. Meetings are being held twice weekly for 17 weeks to fully inform interested businessmen of the meaning of free enterprise system. They are also being held in other cities across the country in a nationwide chamber of commerce program.

Students Win Fund Awards

LAKEVIEW—Bernard Daly Fund scholarships have been awarded to 17 students of the Lakeview High School graduating class as a result of the annual meeting of the board of trustees and advisers from Oregon schools of higher education. This was the 36th annual announcement of schlarships since the fund was established according to the will of the late Dr. Bernard Daly.

The board of trustees is compiled of Roy Perry, chairman; W. P. Vernon, vice chairman; T. R. Conn, secretary-treasurer; Carl W. Pendleton and William Harvey.

Sitting in as advisers were W. M. Langan and William R. Crooks, Oregon State College; Spencer Carlson, University of Oregon; Elmo M. Stephenson, Southern Oregon College; Lyle H. Johnson, Eastern Oregon College of Education; W. M. Douglass, Oregon Technical Institute.

Study Group Lists 48

Some four dozen local businessmen have enrolled in a commerce chamber-sponsored course where the principles of competitive, free private enterprise are discussed.

The course, now halfway through, calls for two meetings a week for 17 weeks. Participants study from a series of pamphlets, augmented by tape recorded model discussions, which are prepared by the economic research department of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The groups were initiated nationwide so that businessmen could be prepared to form well reasoned judgments about national issues, and be prepared to state the case persuasively for a free market economy.

At recent meetings, participants have discussed this country's commitment to the principle of competitive private enterprise, which has come about under our common law and anti-trust laws of 1890.

In discussion, the consistent viewpoint that any substantial deviation from the free enterprise principle would invite possible growth of socialistic thinking in the nation.

MRS. EDWARD V. BROTHERHOOD, newly appointed executive director of the Klamath Area Girl Scout Council (she just received notification of her appointment from Girl Scout National Headquarters in New York June 28,) will also be camp director of the established Girl Scout camp at Camp Esther Applegate on Lake of Woods from August 2 to August 22. Mrs. Brotherhood, who has been acting director until her appointment, has been program chairman of the council since she and her family arrived in Klamath Falls from Portland in August, 1957. She was with the Girl Scout Council in Portland, and was an administrator in the Department of Public Instruction in Honolulu for 14 years.

Club Installs New Officers

YREKA—Installation of new officers for 1958-59 of the Yreka Toastmistress Club, highlighted the meeting on Thursday evening, June 26 at the Yreka Inn, with Mrs. George Bray, a past president, as installing officer.

Mrs. James Sullivan is new president. Others to serve with her are Mrs. Lloyd Lacy, vice president, Mrs. Ralph James, secretary; Mrs. Benton Wilmarth, treasurer and Mrs. George Wacker, retiring president, club representative.

Presentations of past president pins were made to Mrs. Tom Dickinson, first president of the club; Mrs. George Bray, Mrs. Ed Loudown, and retiring president, Mrs. Wacker.

All members participated in the table topics, with Mrs. James Sullivan as topicmistress. Mrs. George Wacker was hostess.

Toastmistress for the evening, Mrs. William Engleman, called on Mrs. Ralph James for a four-minute impromptu speech on "Recession." A six minute talk on "Eisenhower" was presented by Mrs. Gus Kehrer, and a two minute talk on "Wealth" was given by Mrs. George Bray.

Mrs. Benton Wilmarth served as timer for the evening. Mrs. Ralph James was grammarian, and general evaluator was Mrs. Ed Loudon.

THEFT

DETROIT (AP) — John Steinmetz Jr., 4, and his brother Gary, 3, and two other youngsters were filling up a plastic swimming pool in the Steinmetz back yard so they could cool off.

A man in a pickup truck was driving down the alley and saw the children. He stopped his truck, jumped over a fence, grabbed the pool, threw it in his truck and took off. Police are searching for the man.
