MRS. MABEL GIUNTONI of the local Social Security office receives a pair of checks from Wilber Womer, district manager, as a reward for her ideas on better procedures. Her suggestions will be adopted in Social Security offices across the nation and result in savings to the government. Mrs. Giuntoni's receipt of two checks on the same day is the first such incident in the administration's five western states operation, and may be the first in the nation.

Stationmaster Comforts Parents, Sighs Relief

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) —Sometime this week, 64-year-old Edward G. Fischer will steer the last child onto a camp train, comfort the last sobbing parent and heave the proverbial sigh of relief.

These last seven days have been times to try trainmen's souls, even the soul of a man practiced as Fischer is in the art of handling children by the carload.

Fischer is stationmaster at Grand Central Terminal, departure point for camp each year at this time for 35,000 children, ranging in age from four to 16.

"Some of them are so small, the camp leader strings them all together on a rope, like wash on a line," said Fischer, who has been working out the transportation logistics since 1947.

"But we've never lost a child," he said. "And only a few of the kids ever miss trains. Then it's the parents fault; they didn't get up early enough.

"This job would be a cinch if it were just the children to handle. But the parents and other relatives double the work. Each parent thinks his child is the only one in the world. . the parents spend a whole week kissing the kids goodbye."

Fischer, a grandfather of seven children, said that on some days as many as 9,000 children board trains for camps in the Adirondacks, the Berkshires, and New England in general.

"No other terminal in the country handles anything like that number," said Fischer.

Fischer and his staff start gearing for the June crush two months in advance — deciding which guard shall be stationed where, the location of placards indicating the rendezvous point for each of the 330 camps, and how many extra trains and cars are needed.

Come August, the whole process is repeated as the children return.

"Then," said Fischer, "we have other things to contend with. Misplaced frogs, mice, turtles and fish. Kids collect the darndest things. But they all come back looking healthier than when they left, so we are happy."

Fischer has been with the New York Central Railroad since 1909 and in charge of camp trains since 1947. He will retire next August, at 65, delighted, he said, to get rid of the youngsters for a while.

"But I know what will happen," he smiled. "By next June, I'll be so lonely for them I'll probably be right back at Grand Central helping out."

Japs To Salvage Sunk US Ships

DARWIN, Australia (AP)—The submerged wreckage of the U.S. destroyer Peary and three troopships, sunk by Japanese bombers in 1942, has been sold to a Japanese salvage company.

Two of the troopers were American, the third Australian. Their superstructures can be seen in the harbor at low tide but the Peary lies in deeper water.

Eighty of the Peary's crew, including the captain, Ltm Cmdr. John Birmingham, went down with the ship. It was the first Japanese air raid on Australia, on Feb. 19, 1942.

Carl Atkinson, a Darwin diver who located the Peary, bought the wrecks through war disposal sales and resold them to the Japanese for scrap.

DOESN'T WORK

WESTFIELD N. J. (UPI) — Kenneth Brassler, 20, concedes that the radar detector he keeps in his automobile doesn't work too well.

Brassler was nabbed for speeding Thursday by patrolman Robert Koza, who was manning a radar speed unit.

3 Coal Miners' Bodies Retrieved

SOPHIA, W.Va. (AP) — The bodies of three workmen were recovered from a southern West Virginia coal mine yesterday after an explosion.

The men had interrupted their vacation for what they thought would be a single day's work at the Slab Fork Coal Co. No. 1 mine. Deep inside the mine, they were killed by a sudden gas explosion.

Sam Sawyers, 54, was the father of 12 children. He and Walter Moore, 38, lived at Slab Fork. Herbert Cline, 42-year-old night foreman from Maxwell Hill, had six children.

Western Collegues Say Llewelyn Thompson Tops

By United Press International

Llewelyn E. Thompson Jr., the poker-faced American ambassador to the Soviet Union, was described recently by one of his western colleagues in Moscow as "that fine figure of a diplomat." But that's far from the complete picture.

Handsome, dapper and meticulously correct in deportment, Thompson — a career diplomat — does give the superficial appearance of the stereotyped fashion-place ambassador.

But this appearance does not deceive his Russian hosts or other diplomatic envoys, who know Thompson as a shrewd, well-briefed and skillful negotiator with one of the toughest minds in the business.

He is equally adept at handling touchy allies or sly adversaries.

The Colorado-born diplomat, 54 years old in August, is direct and succinct in address. He shuns rhetoric, avoids the customary diplomatic circumlocutions and hammers home his points like a trial lawyer.

METHODICAL WORKER

Thompson is fond of saying that "Information is the mother of intuition" but he does not rely on any sixth sense alone when he approaches the conference table with his head crammed full of hard facts and briefcase bulging with all pertinent documents.

He works methodically, showing up at his office at 9 a.m. and putting in an intensive workday. He places full confidence in his staff, listens patiently to all advice and then makes his own decisions. He lacks the scholarly gifts of his two immediate predecessors, Charles E. Bohlen and George Kennan, but makes up for this by native common sense, industriousness and experience. He is well suited to conducting the long and often exasperating talks which are his lot in his present post.

Thompson, born in Las Animas, Colorado, August 24, 1904 was graduated from the University of Colorado in 1928 and entered the Foreign Service the next year. His first assignment was in Ceylon, followed in 1933 by a post in the U.S. Consulate in Geneva which at that time was the seat of the League of Nations.

RUSSIA IN 1940

In 1940, Thompson was transferred to a minor post in the Moscow Embassy. Four years there gave him a working knowledge of Russian but he is not a fluent linguist. When the diplomatic corps fled Moscow for the Volga in October, 1941, as the Germans menaced the capital, he remained behind and risked possible capture to look after American interests.

After his first Moscow service, Thompson was assigned to London, Washington and Rome.

A big break for him came in 1952 when President Truman appointed him high commissioner in occupied Austria, a post in which he was to achieve two outstanding successes which marked him for higher things.

He and a British diplomat skillfully persuaded the Italians and Yugoslavs to accept a partition of the city and port of Trieste and thus settled that thorny post-war issue.

AUSTRIAN TREATY

He then was assigned to work with the British and French to negotiate with the Russians an independence treaty for Austria—a labor which culminated in unusual success.

Thompson moved from Vienna to Moscow in mid 1957, succeeding Charles E. Bohlen. Within a short time, in December, 1957, the Russians began to urge a summit conference and ever since Thompson has been engaged in negotiations on that subject.

Thompson is regarded as particularly well-qualified for the tedious and cautious job of trying to work out such arrangements with the Russians. He is a good reporter and tenacious negotiator.

Thompson married Mrs. Jane Monroe Goelet in 1948. They have two daughters, Jenny and Sherry. Mrs. Thompson has another daughter, Fernanda, by a previous marriage.

Kremlin Lies Told Again

BERLIN (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev rehashed the Kremlin's current propaganda line for the East German Communist Party Congress today. He accused the West of:

1. Preparing to intervene in revolt-torn Lebanon.

2. Trying to torpedo the proposed summit conference.

3. Trying to exploit the execution of the Hungarian revolt leaders to whip up international tension.

The Soviet Communist boss also accused Yugoslav President Tito of allying himself with the North Atlantic powers.

"At present the tensions in the Near East are sharpest," Khrushchev said.

"The leaders of the imperialist powers are preparing a new intervention in Lebanon, where the people are fighting for their independence and against the Dulles-Eisenhower doctrine.

"The aggressive circles in the West are prepared to use everything for their selfish aims, to complicate the international situation, to renew the cold war and to torpedo the summit conference."

He told more than 2,000 cheering East German and foreign delegates: "The reactionary circles in the West recently renewed their campaign against the countries of the Socialist camp. They have used especially the sentences of the Supreme Court of the Hungarian People's Republic against the traitor (former Premier Imre Nagy and his helpers. . . .)

"These tactics remind you of the fall of 1956 when the imperialists made hysterical cries about the Hungarian counterrevolution that they organized and British-French imperialists attacked the independence of the Egyptian people."

Rites Slated For Fat Man

MOUNT STERLING, Ill. (UPI) —The body of the world's fattest man, Robert Hughes, 32, who weighed more than half a ton, will be buried Saturday in a specially constructed casket.

Hughes died Thursday in his trailer parked outside a Bremen, Ind., hospital. He was too huge to fit inside the hospital.

Hughes, who weighed about 1,041 pounds at death, was stricken with the measles while touring Indiana with the Gooding Brothers Amusement Co. carnival.

He lay outside the hospital for a week in his converted and reinforced truck trailer home while doctors cured him of his measles. However, the illness affected his huge heart, estimated to be as large as that of a 1,000-pound steer, and death was attributed to the heart condition and uremia.

The body will be placed in an outsized casket 4 feet wide and 6 feet, 6 inches long. Burial will be in Benville Cemetery, 12 miles south of here.

Hughes supported his bulk on a six-foot frame. At his peak, he weighed 1,065 pounds, measured 122 inches around the waist and had 40-inch biceps. Medical sources said he was believed to be the fattest human being in recorded history.

Singer Wiggles So She's Fired

LONDON (AP) — Pop Singer Kathie Benson has been fired from a seaside band because old ladies thought she did more wiggling than warbling.

The 36-23-36 singer has been with Monty Montgomery's band at Southend—Britain's Coney Island —for six weeks.

Last night she said: "I've been told I must leave next Friday because old ladies have written to the Town Council complaining of the tight-fitting dresses I wear."

Said a councilman: "one of the complaints I have heard about Miss Benson is that she should have sung more and wiggled less."

But there's a ray of hope for Kathie. The local lads are petitioning that she be allowed to stay.

Sunspots Probably Grow From Pores Says Scientist

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Sunspots, those mole-like blemishes on the face of the sun, probably grow from small pores, Princeton University research indicated today.

Scientists were able to send special telescope cameras aloft in huge balloons to get sharp pictures of the sunspot surfaces from a height of 15½ miles—above much of the earth's distorting atmosphere.

The pores—looking something like freckles—are probably not short-lived, Dr. John D. R. Bahng told the 110th meeting of the American Astronomical Society.

One group of these pores was photographed for 47 minutes without change before the balloon-carried telescope camera drifted and lost them in its aim.

The photographs lend support for a theory, first offered in 1929, that the pores are really small sunspots.

The larger sunspots—actually cooler, dark areas on the sun—create strong radiation pathways in space that frequently black out radio communication on earth.

The solar radiation, hitting the earth, upsets the normal layers of the atmosphere, making them absorb radio waves instead of bouncing them back to earth. Radio transmitters get their long range by bouncing radio waves off these layers in the sky, and so reach far beyond the horizon with the straight-traveling waves.

The small pores, scattered at random over the sun's boiling surface, apparently grow larger until they become full-grown sunspots. These dark areas on the sun give off only 30 per cent as much light as the brighter parts of the sun.

Dr. Bahng said the pictures were taken Sept. 25, 1957, when an unmanned balloon was sent aloft by General Mills at Minneapolis under a Navy contract. It carried Princeton equipment.
