U.S. Intervention May Show Favorable Results

By CHARLES M. McCANN
UPI Foreign News Analyst

United States intervention in Lebanon may show some favorable results soon — unless Soviet Russia is ready to back up angry words with warlike deeds.

With its threat to "take the necessary measures" unless the United States gets out of Lebanon at once, the Soviet government has grabbed the hall away from President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic in leading opposition to President Eisenhower's action.

The implication which the Kremlin obviously intended to convey is that Russia will take direct action of some sort unless the United States withdraws voluntarily or the United Nations gets it to do so.

That is Russia's way of conducting its diplomatic affairs.

President Eisenhower said in announcing the explaining his action that he knew it might involve serious consequences, and he mentioned the risks involved. He could have been thinking only of Russia. Plainly, he was prepared for Russia's threat.

JORDAN HELPED
But if all goes well, it may prove President Eisenhower's forceful action came just in time.

There are strong indications the intervention in Lebanon may have saved Jordan from a revolt like those in Lebanon and Iraq.

There are indications also there may be a move soon in Lebanon to help to end the revolt there by a compromise between the government and the rebels.

It seems possible the United States action may save the Baghdad Pact — the Middle Eastern treaty organization alliance — against Communist aggression — from the sudden death that threatened it because of the revolt in Iraq, one of its five members.

What Nasser can do in addition to stirring up Arab resentment against the United States, it is hard to figure out.

The military record of Egypt under Nasser is a sorry one.

HAS PROBLEMS
During the Suez Canal crisis in 1956, Israel administered a humiliating defeat to Nasser. Its advance was stopped only by the attack of Great Britain and France on the canal zone and by the consequent action of the United Nations in forcing a cease-fire.

Nasser's weapons, like those of Russia in the cold war, are propaganda and subversion.

It is true these weapons have been potent ones both for Nasser and for Soviet Russia.

But in Nasser's case, the United States has moved, directly in Lebanon and indirectly in Jordan, to invoke an even more effective weapon.

Nasser is sure to fill the Middle Eastern air waves with allegations that the United States, in the interest of "imperialism" and "colonialism," is trying to stop the surge of Arab nationalism.

This propaganda is pretty sure to have some effect.

But it is possible also some Arab governments, in addition to that of Lebanon, may realize that to Nasser nationalism means his own acceptance as the dictator of the Arab world.

These governments may realize Nasserism threatens them with subjection.

There could be revolts like those in Lebanon and Iraq in other Arab countries, including Jordan, Saudi Arabia, the Sudan and Libya, Egypt's Western neighbor.

Some of these governments, even while they criticize Eisenhower's action, may realize it could benefit them.

Pair Die In Rescue Try

MONHEGAN ISLAND, Maine (AP)—A 4-year-old girl fell from a cliff into the sea yesterday and her mother and another woman drowned with the child in rescue attempts.

The victims were Tina Hilko, her mother Mrs. Mildred Hilko, 40, Brooklyn, N. Y.; and Estelle Hoffman, 30, Elizabeth, N. J.

Mrs. Hilko's husband Peter is a New York fireman. The mother and daughter, vacationing on this island 13 miles at sea, had planned to return to New York today.

Norman Sackett, also of Brooklyn, brother of Mrs. Hilko, said Tina fell from some rocks as the party was viewing the surf.

He said the mother plunged into the sea to try to save her child. A heavy undertow pulled her offshore. Miss Hoffman leaped into the ocean in an effort to save the pair and she too drowned.

Mrs. Jacqueline C. Lendeau, 40, Long Island City, N. Y., who was with the party, went into the water and tried to float a raincoat to the two women, but it wouldn't reach.

Mrs. Lendeau clambered back to the rocky shore and ran for help. She was hospitalized later in a state of shock.
