A Cat and Dog Life

Ruth Dixon

The players of this game sit around a large table. The one chosen for the Dog sits at one end. The one chosen for Cat sits at the other end. These two take off their shoes and are blindfolded. Then someone calls, "Sic 'em!" and the Dog chases the cat around and around and around the table. It isn't easy!

Riddle Round-Up

Marion Holmes

1. A man walked into a room and saw Mary lying dead on the floor with some water and broken glass near her. He said at once, "Tom did it." He was right: but how did he know?

2. What goes around the house and peeks in every window?

Answers: 1. Mary was a goldfish. Tom was a cat.
2. The sun.

THE BOOK FRIENDS' PARADE

NANCY CLINTON

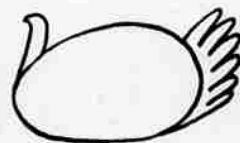

The had struck twelve--what a noise it had made! When out of the came the friends' parade. Robin Hood with his and his was there and Goldilocks came with the littlest Cinderella with pretty glass came too, and Robinson Crusoe and Little Blue. The Duchess! White and the big Cheshire tagged Alice, her and the Pied Piper's while the s and mer-s and lost s began to follow young Wendy and dear Peter Pan. On his fine magic flew little lame Prince with Heidi, her and a made of mince for little Jack Horner and both the Dutch Twins with their cute wooden s and their caps and their grins. Dr. Dolittle's and Dab Dab the , and his funny old came also for luck. While Mowgli from Jungles brought s who were tame and after them hundreds of dear friends came who love to be read--both the old and the new. Three cheers for our friends! I love them, don't you?

Let's Draw A Hen

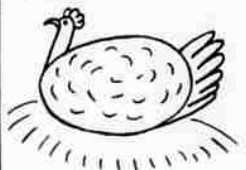

Ann Davidow

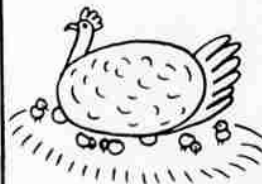

This egg will make a mother hen,
And she'll make many eggs again.

Her feather tail and feather down
Are simply colored gray and brown.

She sits contented on the nest
And snuggles eggs beneath her breast.

She keeps them warm with all her fluff
And each will hatch a yellow puff.
