

Visitors Oust British Head

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan was grappling with the problems of summitry yesterday when 2,000 sightseers invaded his stately Sussex home.

They took over his study. He retreated to a second-story bedroom.

They chattered on the terrace beneath his open windows. He told a servant to close them.

Finally, when he came down to meet the visitors, he locked himself out of his own house.

Long before the Middle East crisis, Macmillan had announced that on July 20 he would throw open Birch Grove, his Georgian country home, at a shilling (14 cents) a head in aid of charity. He didn't realize it was going to be such a busy week.

He made only a nine-minute "show the flag" appearance. He strode out of the front door and rounded the house almost at the double.

He was halfway past the rose beds before the first cheers died away. The crowd scrambled in hot suits, panting and shouting. A 10-year-old American tourist, Susie Bezdok of Springfield, Mass., gasped: "Gee, that man sure can hustle!"

At the back door the Prime Minister found he's forgotten his key. Looking slightly embarrassed he carried on round to the front door and sprinted into the house.

Twenty minutes later he was on his way to the peace of No. 10 Downing St., his official London residence.

BASIN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCHES in the past year have sponsored a number of interesting affairs for Westminster Fellowship groups of the churches including a New Year's party and a spring festival at the Yacht Club, above, which terminated the year's activities and gave new officers and sponsors a chance to get acquainted. It is proposed to make the festival an annual affair co-hosted by various Westminster groups in the Basin. During the summer a youth training program designed to promote leadership for youth activities is being conducted. Slave sales in which participants sold their labor to raise money to help send young people to summer camp have been conducted. Malin sent six delegates to camp last year, a number comparable to that of the largest church in the Synod at Medford. Membership in the young people's groups is increasing.

Dog's Life Just Series Of Walks For Aged Hound

CLINTON, Mo. (AP)—Old Rowdy is deaf, lame and partly blind but his divided love will not let him settle into the life of ease.

His love for the folk who raised him from a puppy and his love for the country where he was born keeps the 14-year-old hound on a long journey.

Almost weekly, Rowdy makes the 20-mile trip from his home on a farm to Clinton, where his owners, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tye, now live. He has been doing this for five years. In that time, the Tyes have moved three times while Rowdy was in the country. But he always has found them.

The Tyes let Rowdy in the country with relatives because they were afraid he could not adapt to town ways.

Boardwalk Bids For Summit Meet

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Can you see Nikita Khrushchev premenading down this city's famed boardwalk arm in arm with President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Well, Mike Fiore can.

Fiore, president of the Atlantic City Chamber of Commerce, suggested last night that this resort be the site of the proposed summit conference.

He noted that Geneva cannot make arrangements quickly enough because hotels there are filled with tourists.

Fiore said he is preparing a telegram to advise the State Department that this city is ready to place its facilities at the disposal of world leaders.

Sissons School Addition Begun

MOUNT SHASTA—Ground was broken Thursday, July 17, for a multi-purpose room which will be built as a part of Sissons Elementary School. It will be completed by October 31, the builders reported.

The 70 by 75 foot structure will be used as an auditorium, gymnasium or whatever purpose desired. Contract price is $61,000.

H. Barnhart of Medford submitted the lowest bid for the work. His general foreman, George Lee, also of Medford, is in charge of construction.

Reporter Gives First News From Revolt-Torn Baghdad

Editor's Note—Stan Carter of The Associated Press bureau in Rome reached Baghdad, Iraq, yesterday. He was the first non-Arab reporter to enter the country since the military coup deposed King Faisal II last Monday. Here is his report from the capital of the new revolutionary republic.

By STAN CARTER
BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP)—This ancient capital is peaceful and most of its inhabitants appear enthusiastic about the new republic.

Officers involved in the lighting coup which ousted the Iraqi monarchy a week ago today said about 30 persons were killed, including King Faisal II, Crown Prince Abdul Ilah and Premier Nuri Said. The U.S. Embassy said three Americans are missing and presumed dead.

People grin at soldiers walking through the street or camped in tracked vehicles. The only troop formations left in the capital have been placed around the radio station, which gave the first news of the coup to the world.

An army spokesman denied reports that forces loyal to the old regime were marching from the north on Baghdad. He said there had been no opposition in the new republic since the revolt last Monday and "if you want, we would be glad to take you anywhere to see for yourself."

Two army officers took this reporter on a tour of Baghdad to demonstrate the difference between the palatial homes of the old regime and the houses most people live in. They were cheered by young and old alike.

Night clubs, which have been shut down by the curfew, are the only businesses not going ahead as usual.

The three Americans listed by the U.S. Embassy as missing are Robert Alcock, an Alhadena, Calif., businessman who worked for an oil refinery supplier; George Coley, vice president of the Bachel Co. of San Francisco; and Eugene Burns, Sausalito, Calif., nature writer, director general of the Holy Land Foundation and former Associated Press reporter.

In Alhadena, Mrs. Alcock persisted in the hope she might hear from her husband "any day now." She said she last heard from him on July 9 and "he might be riding a camel off across the desert somewhere."

Ex-Premier Fadhil Jamali, who was first reported to have been killed and then dragged through the streets, is alive and in prison. He was seen on a televised news conference Friday night and is on trial with 30 other former officials. Jamali is charged with stealing from the government and helping foreigners exploit the country.

Others in jail include the part-time correspondents of The Associated Press and Reuters, and British news agency. Both are Iraqis.

A government spokesman, asked about Iraq's British-owned oil industry, said the republic's weekend mutual defense agreement with the United Arab Republic increases the assurance that Iraqi oil will continue to flow toward Europe.

Information Minister Seddik Semshel said the government hopes the Iraq Petroleum Co. will revive plans for a new pipeline across Syria. It was previously prevented from doing so, he said, because Syria refused to deal with the Iraqi monarchy.

Demos Ballot For Governor

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Oklahoma Democrats choose tomorrow between two political newcomers seeking their party's gubernatorial nomination.

Clashing in a runoff primary after a bitter three-week campaign are the general primary July of 11 in the general primary July 1. Neither received a majority of the votes, forcing the runoff.

They are J. Howard Edmondson, 32-year-old Tulsa County attorney, and W. P. (Bill) Atkinson, 52-millionaire developer who built his home town of Midwest City. The winner will meet Republican Phil Ferguson of Woodward and Independent D. A. Bryce, former FBI agent from Lawhusce, in the November election.

Oklahoma has never elected a Republican governor.

Edmondson led Atkinson by only 742 votes in the first primary.

Edmondson twice has won election as Tulsa County attorney. He is the younger brother of U.S. Rep. Ed Edmondson (D).

Atkinson, making his first political race, has been a key financial backer of the state Democratic party for several years.

Edmondson has campaigned on a platform of reform in state government. Atkinson has promised to increase industrial activity. Both candidates have promised an early referendum on repeal of the constitution's prohibition of liquor sales.

Gov. Raymond Gary, who cannot succeed himself under the constitution, has been publicly neutral.

In addition to the gubernatorial contest, there are Democratic races in two congressional districts.

Australian Beetles Are Up To Snuff

MOUNT SHASTA—Recent publicity regarding Klamath weeds and the beetles imported from Australia to control it, has created considerable interest in the distribution of both the weed pest, and its destroyers. A small clump of this plant was recently found growing within 50 feet of the Mount Shasta radio station. Working on the plants was a small colony of the beneficial bugs.

How either weeds or bugs got there is not known, but it does point to the fact that the imports are doing a wonderful job in finding, and controlling Klamath weed.

Boy Crashes Stolen Plane

DENVER (AP)—A 14-year-old boy who police said stole a $17,000 light plane from busy Stapleton Airfield was seriously injured last night when the craft crashed two miles from the airport.

Stephen Oakford was taken to Denver General Hospital with a broken arm and internal injuries.

Patrolman Lee Harold said the boy walked boldly to the airport parking ramp where private planes are moored, selected a near-new four-passenger Cessna and took off.

Harold said Stephen kept the plane aloft for about 10 minutes. He said the plane wavered over an outdoor theater where hundreds of persons were attending a movie. It barely missed the top of the movie screen.

The plane finally crashed into power lines. The boy was thrown clear.

There was no fire.

Officers said as far as they could determine, Stephen never before had been in an airplane. He is the son of a roofing firm vice president.
