Dems Choose Top Nominee

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Democrats of Oklahoma choose their nominee for governor today, ending a hectic three-week campaign. Tradition says he will be the state's next chief.

The race is between J. Howard Edmondson, 32-year-old Tulsa County attorney, and W. P. Bill Atkinson, millionaire housing developer from Midwest City. Edmondson held a slender 742-vote lead in the primary July 1 when nine other Democratic candidates were in the race. No one got a majority of the 512,394 votes cast, prompting the runoff.

The winner will face two general election opponents in November — Republican Phil Ferguson, Woodward rancher, and D. A. Jelly Bryce, who is running independently. Republicans have never elected a governor in Oklahoma's 51 years.

Repeal of prohibition, a major issue in the first primary, has become secondary in the runoff. Both Atkinson and Edmondson have promised to call a special election on repeal if initiative petitions are presented them. Two Democratic nominees for Congress and three other Democratic and one Republican nominee for state offices will be chosen.

The hottest congressional race matches Rep. Toby Morris of Lawton and former Rep. Victor Wickersham of Mangum. Morris ousted Wickersham two years ago. The other congressional race is a Democratic contest between William R. Peterson and Herbert William Wright Jr., both of Tulsa. Republican Rep. Page Belcher meets the winner.

Warren F. Farnam, 35, Dairy, died early Sunday morning during the course of a scuffle with his brother, Roy E., also 35, in a parking lot adjoining a South Sixth Street cafe. Roy Farnam reportedly told city police that his brother had come to the South Sixth Street address with Mack McCoy, 342 Conger Avenue, in whose truck Warren slept while Roy and McCoy were talking within the cafe. Roy Farnam declared, according to police, that he later followed McCoy out to the parking lot, and found his brother attempting to fight McCoy, whereupon he grabbed Warren, pushed him against the side of the truck, and hit him with his fist. He said that he did not hit him very hard, and that he and his brother were "always horseplaying" around 11k this way.

When Warren slumped to the ground, Roy got a wet rag from the bar to restore him to consciousness. When this failed to work, Peace Ambulance was called. Upon his arrival at the scene, Felix Peace, who is a deputy coroner, called police and it was established that Warren Farnam was dead. Roy Farnam was not held, pending completion of an autopsy which is still in course.

AIR PIONEER DIES PARIS (AP) — Henry Farman, 64, aviation pioneer who claimed among his records the first flight with a passenger, died Thursday after a long illness. Farman flew balloons at first, then turning to heavier than air craft he built a machine in which he climbed 20 yards into the air in October, 1907.

RUDENKO RETURNS CAIRO (AP) — Air Marshal Sergei I. Rudenko, chief of staff of the Soviet Air Force, flew back to Moscow Saturday after a 10-day official visit here.

Because Karen was born without an esophagus, doctors had to insert the tube through a hole in her abdomen. Eating was a tasteless ordeal. An operation two years ago permitted the child to take semi-liquid baby foods, even a little ice cream. But she still couldn't eat solids and received most of her food by tube.

Last Thursday, Karen turned 5. She celebrated the birthday with cake and ice cream in her room at St. Mary's Hospital, Decatur, Ill. She ate all she wanted and that's when they knew positively that the last of seven operations had worked. Doctor's had succeeded in substituting for the esophagus a portion of the child's lower intestine. Karen went home last Friday to a marvelous new world of foods.

"She has an awful big appetite," Mrs. Gordon said today. "She'll eat anything I put in front of her. "She keeps telling me so many things she wants to try. So I'll make them, and then she sits down and eats real good and when she's through she says, 'I'm full.'"

OSC Scholarship Deadline Nears

John Kerbow, Klamath County representative, today reminded all prospective applicants that the deadline for applying for the four Oregon State scholarships to be granted by the county court and Klamath County legislators expires tomorrow, Wednesday, July 22.

Kerbow indicated that the committee processing the applications had received a number already, but he was also desirous of making certain that anyone who wished to apply had the opportunity to do so. The committee was set up to award the four scholarships when it was determined that an old, long forgotten law permitting the scholarships from each county in the state was actually valid.

Selections of the committee will be announced late this week, Kerbow indicated. Applications may be made with the county court or with any of Klamath County's legislators, John Kerbow, Carl Yancey or Senator Harry Boivin.

DA Reports Death Cause

District Attorney Arthur Beddoe indicated Tuesday morning that an autopsy report showed that Warren F. Farnam, 35, Dairy, who collapsed and died at a South Sixth Street cafe early Sunday morning actually had suffered both a coronary occlusion and a brain hemorrhage.

Beddoe indicated that either could have been fatal. There were no external injuries, however, he reported. Beddoe also indicated that contrary to the police report of the accident that Farnam's brother, Roy, had not hit the dead man with his fist but rather had simply grabbed him by the arms and attempted to hold him back.

Beddoe indicated that no charge would be filed in the case. A further medical investigation was being made to attempt to determine cause of death.

Lumberman Crane Dies

Harold Crane, one of the best known early lumber operators in this area, died at 12:05 a.m. today in a Red Bluff, California, hospital. He had undergone major surgery there on July 9.

Mr. Crane would have been 67 in December. In the spring of 1914 he left the University of Michigan, before graduation, to take the post of assistant forester at Klamath Agency. A few years later, he went into the lumber business by establishing a lumber mill on the Sprague River and operated the Sprague River Lumber Company as a partnership until 1919 when it was sold to Bill Bray.

Then Mrs. Crane operated the Klamath Pine Lumber Company for Taylor, Webster and Johnson until it was burned out four or five years later after which he went into partnership with the late Walter Beane. They operated the Crane Mills at Bly until the early 1930's. For the last dozen years, Mr. Crane has headed Crane Mills at Corning. His two older sons, Raymond and Wesley, have been associated with him in the extensive holdings there.

During more than 40 years in the lumber industry, Mr. Crane was acknowledged as an exceptional operator and his concerns have always been outstanding for fine labor relations. The lack he felt in not completing his college work was made up before he left Klamath Falls when he was called back to the University of Michigan and presented with an honorary degree in forestry.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Lila Crane, one daughter, Madeleine and three sons, Raymond, Wesley and Donald Crane, all of Corning. Funeral services will be held at Corning at 2 p.m. on Friday from the Corning Methodist Church.

Worden Residents Seek Project Abandonment

Six residents of the northern end of Worden Avenue appeared before the city council at its regular meeting Monday night in city hall and asked for the abandonment of a paving project in that vicinity.

Acting as spokesman for the group, H. F. Smith, 1636 Worden, reported that the increased costs of the project caused most of the residents involved to change their minds about paving.

He reported that when the preliminary estimate was given them it amounted to about an average of $500 per owner, but that when the final costs were worked out it would run closer to $800. Other property owners of the area also arose to protest the project.

Although the owners present and objecting did not represent ownership of 51 per cent of the property involved, the council voted to abandon the project because they did represent a sizable majority of the number of property owners involved. The city owned property in the project, and when this amount was withdrawn from the voting, those present did represent a majority of the property involved.

J. L. Calhoun, 2538 Garden Avenue, appeared and asked permission to drill a hot water well adjacent to this place of business on Stukel Street. The well would be drilled between the street and the sidewalk on city property. The council voted to grant him an easement to construct and maintain the well, but that actual ownership of the well would have to rest with the city since it would be on city property.

A near controversy was averted when it developed that the Klamath Falls building code did not prohibit schools from using wooden sashes in their construction. J. R. Bishop, Weyerhaeuser manager, wrote the council a letter in which he pointed out that it was his understanding that the building code for Klamath Falls prohibits such use of wood sashes. He also pointed out that his industry represents a large segment of the area's economy, and it was felt that some consideration should be given to wooden construction when building schools. He noted that this has not been done locally.

Vern Schortgen, building inspector, pointed out to the council, also in letter form, that this city operates under the Uniform Building Code as do most cities in the West, and that this code permits only steel sashes in restricted fire zones. He pointed out that this would be only in Class I zones, and that in Klamath Falls there are no schools built in Class I zones.

In his opinion, there was no reason why wooden sashes could not be used in school construction. Bids were opened by the council for both a pickup and a sedan for the street department. Low bidder for the pickup was Jim Olson Motors at $2,600. Other bidders for the pickup were Balsiger Motors, $2,850 and Juckland Motors at $2,279.80.

Low bidder for the sedan was Balsiger Motors at $1,500. Other bidder was Jim Olson Motors at $1,765. Hearings were held on the request to change the zoning of blocks 45 and 50 in Buena Vista Addition from residential to light commercial. No objectors appeared.
