U. S. Troops Musn't Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — American forces stationed in Lebanon have been given strict orders not to fire except in their own defense. A Pentagon spokesman explained that a case of mistaken identity caused a brief exchange of shots with Lebanese guerrillas in the area of Beirut airport. No one was hurt in the exchange, the spokesman said, and the firing ceased as soon as the Lebanese officers and U. S. Marines recognized each other. Snipers had been firing intermittently at American aircraft from the airport vicinity for several days prior to the incident. The spokesman said that despite the self-defense order U. S. Navy planes from carriers have not returned small arms fire directed at them from the ground. At least 16 aircraft have been hit, he said.

New Laws In California

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California got some new laws today, including one making it a misdemeanor to copy the highway patrol's uniform and others designed to help depressed industries. All bills, except those with an urgency clause, passed by the special session of the 1958 Legislature went into effect. The emergency measures took effect as soon as they were signed by Gov. Knight. The CHP uniform law is designed to protect the distinctiveness of the uniform against copying by county and local police agencies.

Another new law exempts ships of 1,000 tons under construction from local property taxes — a measure designed to bring more shipbuilding and repair contracts to the state.

Creation of a California Poultry Promotion Commission, if approved by a majority of the producers and processors, is authorized by one of the bills.

Private school buses are required to meet the same safety standards and regulations as state-owned buses.

The sale of military sniper scopes, electronic devices for night shooting, is forbidden. Diploma mills, phony schools offering bogus degrees, are the target of another law which defines diplomas and sets up requirements for issuing them.

State colleges are permitted to offer training in engineering, science and mathematics. The state bar assn. is permitted to increase membership fees.
