

THIS PLANNING COMMITTEE went into action at Peace Memorial Presbyterian Church, preparatory to arrival of a group of 20 young people from Stockton, California, August 5 to voluntarily build a migrant center at the Malin transient camp. The work team has raised the sum of $600 in their own communities to finance food, transportation and other needs during the time they will be here. They will spend several weeks giving their time to put up a building to be used as a center for the care of young children, a social hall for young people who will be in the Basin for the harvest and for church meetings. This is a Christian service offered by groups of young people from the First Christian Church of Stockton. Help will be sought from residents of the community in the contribution of materials to build the center. Left to right are Bill Kurtz, Merrill, chairman of the building committee; Ross Ragland, president of the Klamath Basin Council of Churches; Burton Hoyle, Tulelake, and Bertil Shogren, Klamath Falls, members of the building committee.
