Nod Given On Space Engine

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force has given the go-ahead to build a rocket engine powerful enough to send a manned satellite into space.

As a first step, the Defense Department said a contract had been given the Rocketdyne Division of North American Aviation to construct a million-pound-thrust rocket engine.

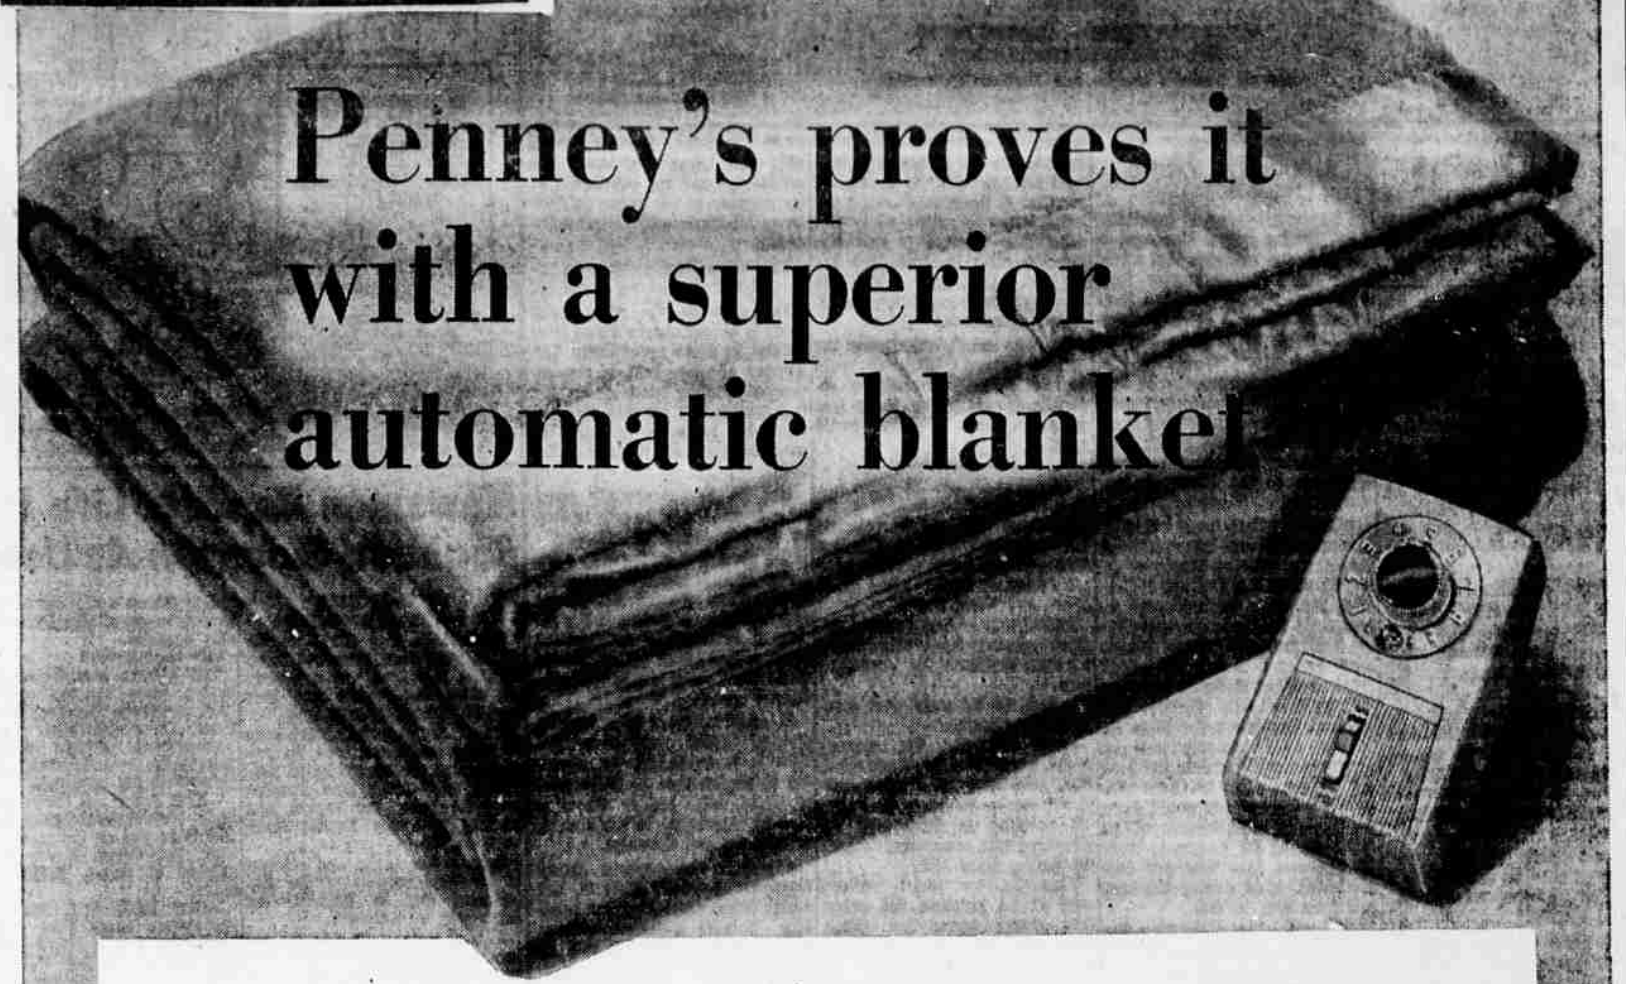

The Pentagon said an engine of this type could be used to send up a manned satellite weighing about 20,000 pounds. Defense officials said it also could be employed to fire a vehicle weighing 5,000 pounds on a flight to another planet.
