TV NOTES

NEW YORK (UPI) — They say that half a loaf is better than none. Maybe so. But if your only glimpse of the Russian Moiseyev dancers was on Ed Sullivan's TV show, then you still haven't seen them. That's not to take anything away from Sullivan, who turned his CBS hour over to the Russians. To be blunt, it's just that TV isn't the proper medium for the dance.

For the futures book: one-hour productions, live from New York, of Louisa M. Alcott's "Little Women" and O. Henry's "The Gift of the Magi" both will be musicals. The first is slated for Oct. 16, the second for December 9, both on the CBS network. Two Broadway theater hands are preparing the presentations—Richard Adler on the music and lyrics, Ronald Alexander on the librettos.

The long-distance truck drivers enter the hero ranks of TV with a filmed series called "Cannonball" which Television Programs of America, Inc., has started filming in Canada for syndication. The team that produced 10 "Lassie" episodes is in charge. Paul Birch and William Campbell are the heroes.

French author Pierre Boule is what is known as a "hot property" since the success of the motion picture, "The Bridge on the River Kwai," based on his novel. Broadway producer Robert L. Joseph has arranged to adapt and produce Boule's novel, "Face of a Hero" for the Broadway stage next season. But before that happens, Joseph's adaptation of same for TV will be seen in November on CBS "Playhouse 90" under the direction of John Houseman, boss man of the Stratford, Conn., American Shakespeare Festival Theater. Houseman is scheduled to produce seven of the "Playhouse 90" series next season.

Heart interest is in store for ABC's "Zorro" next season. Title hero Guy Williams will have Ja-lene Brand to inspire him to greater deeds in at least five episodes. Miss Brand is a brunette native of Los Angeles who turned actress after winning the title of "Queen of the Los Angeles County Fair" in 1953.

PORTABLE FIRE-FIGHTER
CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — Cleveland attorney Max Martin has saved the lives of four persons and has put out numerous fires with the fire extinguishers he takes along wherever he goes in his car.
