

FOURTH U. S. SATELLITE LAUNCHED — The U. S. Army's "Jupiter-C" missile is shown leaving its Cape Canaveral, Fla., launching pad and climbing into space. It becomes the fourth satellite successfully placed in orbit by this country.

FUN FOR SOME—Judy Turee, nine-year-old Lakewood, Colo., lass, is bug-eyed with delight as she takes a close-up look at a grasshopper. To Judy the little grasshopper means fun, but to the farmers in the state, grasshopper spells headache. Crops have been severely damaged by swarms of the insects.

Dawson Gains Top Honors In Montague Rodeo Events

MONTAGUE — An enthusiastic crowd watched the Montague Rodeo Friday and Saturday nights when the cutting horse event was the main attraction. Twenty horses entered the featured event with many of them from the top 10 cutting horses of the nation. Some of them were from the top 10 of the Pacific Coast.

Slats Dawson, the No. 1 cutting horse of the nation from Uvalde, Texas, owned by George Pardi and ridden by Minor Johnson, was awarded the silver and gold trophy buckle for placing highest in the event. The second winner was Poco Bob; third and fourth places were divided between Oakie Star, Sandhill Charley and Asbek's Dilly.

Hoss Play After Show Corrals Fine From Trio

An unscheduled feature of the recent rodeo came to the attention of city police Saturday night when an "all car" alert brought the combined police force to the front of the Willard Hotel.

This was the scene of a massive, no-point event which might be described as "cowboy wrangling," and the hands were really going at it with a will.

The cops formed an impromptu jury, and elected Marion Joe Preuschoff, 30, Friclet, California; Buddy Peak, 24, Tucson, Arizona; and Edward Leroy Whitney, 26, Route 3, Box 1076, the "most active" of the group. (The trio were apparently tied for first place, as no order was stated.) The rest of the crowd was dispersed.

Unfortunately for the "top three" this particular selection not only did not pay off, but actually cost them money—$25 apiece, when they forfeited bail on disorderly conduct charges in municipal court Monday morning.

Forest Service Mops Up Fires

The United States Forest Service reports two fires of about a quarter acre each Sunday up around Mt. Thielsen. These were held-over from lightning storms of the previous few days.

Crews were dispatched to each of them from the Seven Mile Guard Station, and both were in finishing stages of mopup today. The record is still very good on man-caused fires with none reported so far this season. No fires were reported by the Klamath Forest Protective Association over the weekend.

LADIES AID TO MEET — Ladies Aid will meet at the Mt. Laki Presbyterian Church on Wednesday, July 30, at 8 a.m. to dig and separate iris. Anyone wishing to get starts, bring your own shovel and container and help dig.

Wet Man Claims Robbed, Pushed

PORTLAND (AP) — Police are investigating a Coos Bay man's report of being attacked, robbed and thrown into the Willamette River.

John Charles Allen, 64, was dripping wet when he walked into the police station Sunday and told of two men robbing him and pushing him over a bridge railing into the river.

He said he swam to a nearby construction barge, climbed aboard and called for help. He waited until morning and then climbed up the harbor wall and went to the police.

Allen said the men took his billfold containing $12.

Texas Solon Wins Primary

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI)—U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough, 55, assured of a full six-year term in the Senate as the result of Saturday's Democratic primary, hinted Sunday that he's not through campaigning.

The Austin attorney indicated that he is ready to take on Gov. Price Daniel, himself a victor in the primary, in a battle for control of the state Democratic party in the September convention.

Yarborough is a liberal. Daniel, an old political opponent, is a conservative. The factions are often as sharply divided in Texas as Democrats and Republicans are in other states.

In precinct conventions Saturday conservatives appeared to hold a tight rein. The issue is considered important as a weathervane on which way the political winds are blowing across the nation.

Final Ferry Lures Crowds

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Thousands of persons eager for one last ride before San Francisco Bay's historic ferry boat service is discontinued jammed the ferry San Leandro Sunday for her final Sunday shuttle across the bay.

On each trip, the San Leandro carried near-capacity crowds of 1,400 or more. Many were old-timers who recalled their commuting days across the bay when there were no bridges.

Others were newcomers who wanted to get in on a bit of San Francisco history before it comes to an end. Hundreds of children were bitterly disappointed, too, because they were not allowed on board. The San Leandro carries only 175 children's life jackets and the Coast Guard would permit the boat to carry no more than that number of youngsters.

With construction of the San Francisco-Oakland Bridge and the Golden Gate Bridge in the late 30s, most of the bay's famed ferry fleet was dismantled. The only ferries still in operation were run by the Southern Pacific to carry train passengers between San Francisco and the Oakland Mole. Southern Pacific and Western Pacific recently received permission from the state to discontinue the expensive ferry operation and carry their passengers over the bridge by bus.

The San Leandro was to make its last round trip from San Francisco Tuesday at 11:30 p.m. and to leave Oakland at 12:10 a.m. Wednesday.

Willamette Is Termed Heart

CORVALLIS (AP) — An Oregon State College geographer calls the Willamette Valley the "heart and hub" of Oregon's development.

Dr. Wilfred C. Myatt, who made a detailed study of the valley's history and potential in writing his doctor's thesis, said the area was the West's first agricultural area to be opened.

The valley contained 97 per cent of the 1850 population of the area that later became the state of Oregon. Today, even with burgeoning growth in other sections of the state, the 130-mile-long by 30-mile-wide Willamette Valley still has about 66 per cent of Oregon's people.

Dr. Myatt predicted even greater increases because of assets which first attracted the early settlers—rich soil, woods, water, mild climate and beautiful scenery.

First named Multnomah Valley by Lewis and Clark, the area took on the Indian name "Willamette" in later years, a word of uncertain origin and meaning, although "green water" and "big river almost not quite" have been suggested. The spelling subsequently became Willamette.

The mountains which surround the valley are keys to the mild climate. The ocean exerts a moderating influence, causing the region to be warmer in winter and cooler in summer than would be expected for this latitude. The Cascades shut out the more severe winter weather from the east.

BACK INJURY — Galen Keeton, 48, Dorris, suffered a back injury Saturday morning when he apparently fell off a truck of the California Highway Department, his employer, at Dorris. Rushed by Peace Ambulance to Klamath Valley Hospital, Keeton was described as "doing fine" there Monday morning.

PRESERVES "AMATEUR" STATUS—Only the fact that Pete Rademacher accepted money for his appearance in the ring against Zora Folley in Los Angeles, earned him the questionable distinction of being classified as a pro instead of an amateur. He was floored four times before the referee finally took mercy—on the fans—and called a halt at 1:15 in the fourth round of their scheduled 10-round bout. Here Pete is shown after Folley dropped him for the fourth and last time.

Italian Premier Urges Ike To Join New Economy Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Italy's new Prime Minister, Amintore Fanfani, is reported ready to urge President Eisenhower to join West European countries in a bold plan for economic development of Middle Eastern and North African countries.

This is understood to be Fanfani's main goal when he arrives Tuesday for two days of confidential talks with Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles. Eisenhower and Dulles seem certain to give Fanfani a warm reception as recognition if Italy's postwar record as a consistent and vigorous champion of Allied policies to stop communism.

Dulles particularly is expected to listen to Fanfani's views with keen interest because of Dulles' quest for some positive plan to shore up a Middle East policy shattered by the Iraq revolt, Anglo-American troop landings in Jordan and Lebanon, and the swift onrush of pro-Nasser sentiment.

In line with this, top State Department officials are dusting off old plans for coordinated moves to attack some of the roots of Middle East tension, such as the Arab-refugee plight, Arab-Israeli borders and the Mideast water shortage.

Fanfani is understood to have no single detailed program to lay before Eisenhower such as one drafted by Italian Foreign Minister Giuseppe Pella last year which failed to win U.S. backing.

What Fanfani reportedly wants is an American pledge to support the principle of a multination economic program for the Middle East in partnership with Mideast governments. The United States is looked upon as the one to foot most of the bills.

Fanfani's reasoning is that Arab countries such as Nasser's United Arab Republic would be far more willing to accept aid from an international program of this kind rather than strictly U.S. assistance which they fear might commit them in the East-West struggle.

Fanfani also is expected to take up two other issues: new moves for Western European unity and closer consultation on Allied pact members in cultural, economic and foreign policy fields.
