It won't be tomorrow, or even 10 years from now. But someday—Pills revive your faulty memory. A quick swallow saves you the embarrassment of not being able to remember someone's name, or that foreign language you learned in college.

Or they give you an immediate grasp of all the details of a business venture, or help your son collect an "A" on his school exam.

For special occasions, there are forgettery pills, to banish or dull the memory of some painful or tragic event.

Other special drugs stimulate your imagination for creative work, aid your concentration, or produce moods by prescription.

Drugs cure or prevent mental illness, by correcting chemical faults within the brain or body. Brain research has fathomed mys-

Water Trial Starts Again

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Colorado River water suit resumed today after a three-week recess for what was expected to be the final session of the 2-year-old trial.

Special Master Simon H. Rifkind who is presiding has expressed hope that the session be concluded by Labor Day. It will be devoted to rebuttal testimony.

The U.S. government, Nevada, New Mexico, and Utah were to be given an opportunity to present rebuttal evidence during the first week. Then, California was scheduled to conclude its case.

The river suit, filed in 1952, is a dispute over proper division of the Colorado's flow in its lower basin below Lee's Ferry, Arizona.

It was begun by a complaint filed by Arizona against California in the U.S. Supreme Court. Arizona has advanced contentions in the case which would reduce California's claims of 5,362,000 annual acre feet of main stream flow by 1,500,000.

Most of the current session was expected to be occupied by California, which will attempt to refute recent Arizona charges that California wastes 1,500,000 annual acre feet in the Imperial and Coachella water districts.

Arizona asserts the water suits are unnecessary to wash salts out of the soil.

So far, the marathon water trial has filled more than 20,000 pages of transcript and has included more than 4,000 books, charts and maps as exhibits.

It has been estimated that more than five million dollars has been spent by the parties in preparing their cases.

Report Raps Reducing Aids

WASHINGTON (AP) — Take it from House investigators: If you want to lose weight, eat less.

This advice is contained in a strongly worded report saying U. S. consumers are being lured out of roughly 100 million dollars a year for preparations advertised as weight reducers.

The report, issued by the House Government Operations Committee, put much of the blame on the Federal Trade Commission.

It accused the FTC of a 12-year paralysis in cracking down on false advertising claims in the weight reducer field.

The report, covering hearings conducted last year by a subcommittee said: "The advertising of so-called obesity remedies or weight-reducing products is an area fraught with deception and outright fraud."

It said, "Candy waters, machines, appetite salivants, appetite-curbing drugs are some of the means which unscrupulous hucksters of the lose-weight cure use to lure us to an earthly slenderized Valhalla."

Cycle Crash Hurts Couple

A Klamath Falls police officer and his wife were seriously injured Sunday evening when the motorcycle they were riding skidded into the side of an oncoming car near King Cole on Highway 66.

The victims were Walter E. Conrady, 33, a detective with the city police force, and his wife, Virginia F. 32, who is the secretary to the principal at Mills School.

The Conrads, who reside at 2139 Orchard Avenue, were part of a motorcycle caravan returning from Ashland. The accident took place on a sharp curve. Conrady told state police he was leaning with the cycle to take the curve, but that his wife leaned the other way, apparently due to fright, causing him to lose control of the vehicle.

The westbound car with which the cycle collided was driven by Robert M. Brotherton, Chilquin. Conrady suffered a broken collarbone and multiple lacerations. Pending X-rays to be taken during the day, hospital authorities described his condition as "fair" Monday morning. Mrs. Conrady was said to be in "fair to good" condition, and resting well. Her injuries included a broken leg and severe cuts.

Deaths, Injuries Climb In Erie Train Collision

SLQATSBURG, N.Y. (UPI) — Two Erie Railroad passenger trains collided head-on today at a blind curve near an abandoned depot just south of this Rockland County community, about 40 miles from New York City.

State police said five persons were killed and about 40 injured, 12 seriously.

Three of the dead were believed to be passengers and the others trainmen.

Four of the dead were men and one was a woman, Miss Pauline Cronon, Tuxedo, N.Y. Her body was trapped in the wreckage for more than two hours after the trains telescoped near the unused Sterling, N.Y., station between here and Suffern.

The other dead were identified as Robert Youchman, 41, of Four

Deaths, Injuries Climb In Erie Train Collision

Corners, Warwick, N.Y., a passenger; Charles G. Mitchell, Union City, N.J., conductor; Samuel Nardo, 50, Glen Rock, N.Y., engineer, and Michael J. Walsh, 26, Jersey City, N.J.

State police quoted a baggage man on the westbound train as saying, "We were only going about 20 miles an hour—slow enough so I could have jumped off anytime without getting hurt."

The eastbound train, police said, was traveling at about 50 miles an hour, "according to the best information available."

A spokesman for the Erie Railroad said the accident occurred when a westbound train, headed for Port Jervis, N.Y., failed to stop at Suffern station to permit the eastbound train, bound for Hoboken, N.J., to pass on the westbound track.

According to the spokesman, the westbound train was supposed to stop at Suffern, about five miles south, to permit the eastbound train to use the westbound track because a freight train was running on the eastbound track. The eastbound train, in turn, was to cross over to its regular track at a point about a mile and a quarter west of Suffern, permitting the westbound train to resume its run. Somehow, however, the westbound train failed to receive its instructions from the Suffern tower and barreled through without stopping.

"It appears to have been a case of man failure," an Erie spokesman said.

He said it had not been determined, however, who was to blame. Because of the site—at a blind curve—neither train was visible to the other until practically the moment of impact.

The trains involved were a four-car passenger train headed from Port Jervis, N.Y., to Hoboken, N.J., and a four-car passenger-freight train, bound from Hoboken to Port Jervis.

More than 30 ambulances from Rockland and Orange counties in New York and from Bergen County in New Jersey raced to the scene, along with state police emergency vehicles.

Army To Aid Rocketeers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army set out today to help amateur rocketeers shoot their rockets — without blowing themselves up.

Headquarters began circulating to all commands instructions for aiding amateur rocket clubs, missile and other scientific groups which experiment in rocketry.

But in giving help, including use of the Army's test ranges, the Army is taking care that it isn't held liable for accidents.

The amateurs must sign waivers, agreeing that neither they nor their relatives will try to hold the Army responsible for rocket mishaps, nor bring suit in court.

The circular says the Army is setting up the assistance program because many requests for help in rocket firings have been received from amateur groups and because the Army wants to encourage rocketry. The program will operate under general direction of its missile branch.

The Army's interest is more than altruistic. Its circular lists, among other reasons, the development of a potential source of manpower to utilize in Army missile units and industry in event of emergency. Also, the amateurs might develop something useful to the Army.

However, the primary objective is to help save amateur rocketeers from injuring or killing themselves and to prevent danger to others, including persons riding in airplanes. No firings under Army supervision will be permitted into airspace used by planes, the regulation says.

Fire Destruction Decreased Sunday

The weekend was a slack one for grass fires, only two being reported in the area from Saturday afternoon to Monday morning.

The two fires both occurred Sunday afternoon. One at 3642 Lakeport Boulevard was handled by the county fire department; the other, near the city dog pound, was put out by the Stewart Lenox Fire Department. Both were authorized grass burnings which got out of hand.

The only other fire call during the two-day period was to the W. F. Ingram residence, 2205 Etna Street, where the South Suburban Fire Department put out a refrigerator fire just after midnight Sunday morning. There was some damage to the refrigerator and to the wall behind it.

Flower Show Theme Is "Desert Gold"

"Desert Gold" is to be the theme of the flower show to be sponsored by the Klamath Falls Garden Club on Wednesday, August 13, in the auditorium of the Klamath Falls City Library. Hours for the show and the silver tea will be from 1 to 5 p.m.

Exhibitors may enter the following divisions: Horticulture-annuals, biennials and perennials; roses, shrubs and vines; decorative; junior and the non-competitive for members of the Designer's Guild only. These guild exhibits will not be judged.

The competition is open to both experienced and non-experienced persons.

Mrs. Scott McKendree, general chairman of the show, is being assisted by Mrs. B. C. Johnson, schedule chairman; Mrs. David Goehring, entries arrangement; Mrs. T. B. Watters, horticulture; Mrs. Will Wood, hostess; Mrs. Charles Drew and Mrs. C. C. Heidrich, tea chairmen.

Cox Returns On Accident Charge

Norman Dale Cox, a Klamath Falls man wanted in California to answer a charge of failing to stop and render aid at the scene of an accident, was returned to California Monday morning on an extradition warrant.

Cox had appeared in district court here Thursday to fight extradition, but left Monday at his own request, authorities said. Attorney Donald A. W. Piper, who represented Cox at his court appearance, said Cox had decided to accept extradition and to contest the California charge in court there.

The charge against Cox, of 65 Pine Street, resulted from an automobile accident on U.S. 97 north of Weed, California, on June 15, 1957.

He was returned to California by Siskiyou County Deputy Sheriff W. J. Miller. Miller said Cox would appear before Justice Les Chase at Dorris Monday.

Lost Purse

An Eldorado, Arkansas, woman reported to city police that she lost her purse in Klamath Falls last week. Her purse, according to the police report, contained $37 in currency, two silver dollars, a Spanish coin and "the usual conglomeration of women's junk."

Man Returned To Face Charge

Deputy Sheriff Jess Bryant returned to Klamath Falls Sunday with Eugene Dye, 30, of Bly, who is wanted here on a bad check charge.

Sheriff Red Britton said Dye was returning from Pawnee, Oklahoma, where he was arrested July 30 on a complaint filed from district court here. Dye is alleged to have passed a bad $250 check in payment on a 1954 car bought from a local dealer July 7.

The sheriff said the car also was being returned, but had been left in Reno, Nevada, for repairs and would be brought here Tuesday.

DAR Picnic Set For Moore Park

Proceeds from the big barbecued chicken picnic sponsored by Eulalia Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Klamath Falls, will be used to complete the historical Robert D. Newell House at Champog, home of Oregon's first Provincial governor and to give aid to the two sponsored schools of the American Indian Committee.

The picnic on Tuesday, August 12, is open to the public and families are especially invited. A half chicken, barbecued by George Paris, chef, and all the dinner trimmings, will be served to adults for $1.50, to children 10 years and under for 75 cents. Serving will be in Moore Park from 5 to 7 p.m.

Those planning to attend and eat barbecued chicken, picnic style, are urged to get their reservations in at once by calling Mrs. A. O. Roenicke, TU 4-6643 or Mrs. George Paris at TU 2-4952.

Man Ages Fast In Police Parade

Lewis Chester Reynolds apparently aged rapidly after a weekend of activity with the state police, especially after a row of mail boxes tumbled down Saturday night.

Police said Reynolds, 4107 1/2 Homedale Road, was arrested Friday afternoon on a charge of being drunk in a public place. He posted $50 bail, but was arrested again Saturday after the car he was driving allegedly ran into a ditch at the intersection of Sutton Road and Washburn Way and tore out a row of rural mail boxes.

Final Runs Set For Bookmobile

The Klamath County Library's bookmobile will be making its last scheduled summer runs this week, making pickups of books only.

Everyone is invited to return all the books he has out to the bookmobile this week. Those unable to do so may either return their books to the county library during business hours, or deposit them at any hour in the curb box situated in front of the main entrance to the library on Third Street. Those who prefer to return their books by mail to the Klamath County Library, Klamath Falls, will find it very inexpensive to do so: three cents a parcel plus one cent a pound is the special parcel post book rate.

There will be no fines for any books returned, and child borrowers who return their books to the bookmobile this week will receive a small treat.

GAME BROKEN UP

City police broke up a card game at 616 Commercial Street early Sunday morning and arrested six men on a charge of violating the city gambling ordinance. Arrested were Maso Williams, Clarence E. Mosley, Wallace Cohen Jr., Otis E. Miller and Paul Phillips, each charged with gambling, and Eddie Lee Dailey, charged both with gambling and with operating a gambling house. Each posted $100 bail prior to a municipal court hearing Monday.
