

Mixed-Up Tapir Has No Name

CHICAGO (AP) — A 45-pound tapir born at Brookfield Zoo yesterday, it appears, is a mixed-up young animal. For the present its only name is "It."

It is related to the horse and rhinoceros, looks like a pig and is living in the zoo's elephant house.

The sex of the South American river animal has not been determined.

"It keeps hiding behind its mother," said Director Robert Bean. "So, temporarily, its name is 'It.'"

New Zealand is 1,200 miles east of Australia. It is composed of two large and several smaller islands.

Brief Personality Sketches Listed Of Men In The News

United Press International Here are brief personality sketches of some of the key men at the special U.N. General Assembly:

John Foster Dulles, U.S. secretary of state: At 70 and in his sixth year as head of the State Department, Dulles is an old and tried hand in negotiations with the Soviets. An international lawyer by profession, Dulles has been interested in diplomacy since boyhood, and realized a lifelong ambition when he became secretary of state in 1953. He is the most travelled secretary in the country's history. He has attended Big Four conferences in London, Moscow, Paris, Berlin and Geneva. He has been a member of or headed many U.S. delegations to U.N. assembly sessions.

Henry Cabot Lodge, 56, U.S. ambassador to the U.N. and veteran of many debates with the Russians in the Assembly and Security Council. A former reporter and U.S. senator (from Massachusetts) turned diplomat, he was named to his U.N. post by President Eisenhower in 1953. He is a native of Massachusetts and product of Harvard.

Robert Murphy, 63, deputy U.S. undersecretary of state, ace foreign affairs trouble-shooter just back from the Middle East. A veteran of 38 years in the Foreign Service, he is the nation's top-ranking career diplomat. Prior to undertaking his latest troubleshooting roles he served as U.S. ambassador to Belgium and Japan. He is a native of Milwaukee, Wis.

Dag Hammarskjold secretary general of the U.N., and cast as the moderator or middle-man between East and West. Top man at the U.N. since April, 1953, Hammarskjold is 53, a native of Sweden and scion of a family identified for hundreds of years with Swedish public life.

Arkady Sobolev, Soviet ambassador to the U.N. since 1955. At 55, Sobolev brings to his job a background of nearly 25 years in Russian diplomatic posts. Unlike the taciturn Gromyko, Sobolev is a lively speaker, full of grimaces and gestures, but a wily debater.

Selwyn Lloyd, British foreign secretary who heads his country's delegation, is 54 years old, a lawyer by profession. He came to his present post in December, 1955, in the Eden government. Like the other top diplomats, he is a veteran of the U.N. and countless East-West debates.

Mahmoud Fawzi, chief U.N. spokesman for the United Arab Republic, is one of the Arab world's most experienced diplomats, a polished, tactful and effective speaker. Fawzi, 58, has the advantage of a rare mastery of languages and speaks fluently in English, French, Spanish and Italian in addition to his native Arabic. He also can hold conversations in Greek and Japanese. Fawzi has been in diplomatic service for more than 30 years.

Dr. Charles Malik, Lebanon's top diplomat in the outgoing Chammoun regime, has a record of being one of the most pro-American of the Arab world spokesmen. He is a graduate of the American University of Beirut, holds a Ph.D., from Harvard. He is 52 years old, a Greek Orthodox Christian, and a veteran at the U.N. since its inception.

Missile Test Results Secret

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A static test, or dry run, of a Vanguard rocket's second stage has been held at the missile test center here, but the results were not disclosed.

The tryout of the rocket engines in a ground experiment was the first static test at Cape Canaveral for a Vanguard second stage.

Two Vanguard firings which failed were blamed on malfunctions in the missile's second stage, which normally doesn't roar into action until the rocket is high in the sky.

A static test usually precedes an actual launching by about 10 days.

Woman Trapped In Closet, Dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A woman trapped for more than two days in a closet died last night.

Firemen used hacksaws to free 62-year-old Mrs. Ruby Hummingbird yesterday. Authorities said she apparently suffered a stroke and as she fell wedged between a folding bed and a closet wall. She lay helpless until discovered by a neighbor.

Mrs. Hummingbird, a quilt-maker, used the closet for sleeping after renting out her apartment bedrooms.
