Music Maker Can't Play A Note

GLOUCESTER, Mass. (UPI) — Tolbert F. Cheek, 70, is a man well-regarded in his business, which is organs and pianos.

Since 1905, he's been building, designing and repairing some of the finest musical instruments in the Northeast and it's no fly-by-night job.

For instance, it took Cheek six years to construct the $300,000 organ at Gloucester's Trinity Congregational Church. When he finished, officials decided to grant him the honor of playing the first note. Cheek declined.

It seems that during his 53 years in the business, he's never learned to play a note on either organ or piano.
