(1) TO ANCIENT MAN the stars must have seemed very close. As agriculture was learned, the stars played an important part in his life. He recognized their regular movements with the seasons. Later, man began to make gods of the stars. Then he transferred his earthly gods to the heavens. It was only natural. (2) The Babylonians from their temples, were first-rate observers. (The Tower of Babel was an observatory as well as a temple.) They saw that the planets seemed to move "through" the constellations. From this they devised the zodiac and the pseudo science of astrology. For centuries, the superstitious man believed heavenly bodies guided his destiny. (3) The Greeks early realized that the earth must be a sphere (Anaximander, about 600 B.C.). Pythagoras developed the idea further. He conceived the universe to be made up of layers, like an onion. Pythagoras had discovered the mathematics of music. He thought that as the Moon sphere, Sun sphere, planet spheres, etc., revolved about the earth and each other they produced harmonies—the "music of the spheres." Other Greeks, particularly Hipparchus (c. 150 B.C.), noted the irregular movements of the planets. They questioned whether they did indeed revolve about the Earth. It remained for the great Ptolemy of Egypt, by an extremely complicated system, to put Earth back at the center of the universe and restore the harmony of the earlier Greeks. (4) During the Dark Ages, the Arabs preserved and added to Ptolemy's science. Later they transmitted it to Europe. The Ptolemaic, earth-centered concept held sway over men's minds until the Renaissance. It then died a lingering death.

London Stage Star Dead

LONDON (AP) — The 80-year-old dowager marchioness of Headfort, stage star of the Naughty 90s, died at her London home Sunday night.

Once all theaterland knew her as Rosie Boote, a beauty from Tipperary who captured the heart of a handsome marquis.

Her voice and her figure won her fame over in the storied world of hansom cabs and stage door Johnnies who drank champagne from her silken slipper.

Rosie's big success came with a lulling song, "Maisie Was a Darling, Maisie Was a Dear," in a show called "The Messenger Boy" at London's famed old Gaiety Theater.

A year later, at the height of her fame in 1901, she retired from the stage to marry a young Life Guards officer, the fourth marquis of Headfort. His family was shocked, but Rosie's charm finally won them over. After their marriage, the couple settled on his family estates in County Cavan and County Meath.

Mediators Slate Meet

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Federal mediators scheduled a meeting today in advance of top-level negotiations in San Diego aimed at settling a dispute that has idled thousands of Teamsters in the 11 western states. Mediators George Hillenbrand and Ralph Patterson of San Francisco and Steven Halligan of Denver scheduled the negotiations for Wednesday in an attempt to create a "ceasefire" for settling the 8-day-old dispute. Meanwhile, Teamsters leaders were to confer in Los Angeles today and Tuesday. There were reports that Teamsters President James Hoffa would join them in San Diego. He has predicted an early end to the dispute. Employers ordered the 11-state lockout last Monday after 2,350 Teamsters in Central California and Western Nevada went on strike for higher pay. The employers said a strike against any one employer in the West was a strike against all.
