Chief Of NY Linked With Teamo Boss

WASHINGTON (AP)—Blonde Ruth Brougner, a convicted slayer who said she is Teamster boss Robert (Baker) Baker's former sweetheart, today joined his ex-wife in linking Baker's name with that of Gov. Averell Harriman of New York. Mrs. Brougner, brought from a Florida penal institution to testify in the Senate racket hearings, swore she knew Baker to be "on the lam" from New York City to escape questioning in a waterfront killing there, and added: "I don't think he could go back until after Gov. Harriman was elected."

Baker's former wife, Mollie Baker, had testified, similarly Tuesday. She said Baker had fled after the killing of Anthony Hintz, a pier boss.

The senators have heard testimony earlier of associations between Baker and Eddie (Cockey) Dunn, a mob leader who was convicted in the Hintz case and executed.

Sewer Grant Approval Set

Word that federal money has been approved for the South Suburban Sanitary District sewer project has been received. "Pleased to announce that Department of Health, Education and Welfare has approved grant for South Suburban Sanitary sewer project. Grant is $84,377 to be applied to total cost of interceptor sewer, pumping station and sewage stabilization plant of $390,530.78," stated a telegram received by the Herald and News last night from Congressman Al Ullman at Washington, D.C. Officials of the South Suburban Sanitary District said today that the grant is close to the maximum allowable under federal rulings for sanitary districts of this type. Approximately five per cent of the total of 45 miles of all types of pipe has been laid, a spokesman for the district said. "We expect the ponds and pumping station to be in operation by late October to receive sewage from the areas in which sewer pipe has been completed," he added. The system in general has to be constructed from the lower end or larger pipe, fanning out to higher ground or smaller pipe because of the flow of the water. However, the crews have worked on Derby, Onyx and Barry streets in order to assist with paving plans for those three areas, he explained.

Crews Battle Small Fires

Tuesday evening's thunderstorm registered many lightning strikes in the Klamath Basin, with the full consequences in terms of tree fires not yet established Wednesday morning. The Klamath Forest Protective Association said Wednesday morning that crews were fighting 10 small fires in its area. At the same time the local office of the U.S. Forest Service said that 25 to 30 lightning strikes had been noted, mostly east of Mt. Scott and in the "panhandle" area around Dry Butte and Scott Creek. The forest service planned to have an aerial reconnaissance of the area made during the course of the day, but was as yet unaware of any fires resulting from the strikes, which were accompanied by heavy rain. The fires reported by the KFPA all involved single trees. KFPA crews were on or near all of the fires early this morning, with the exception of one on Bald Point, toward which a crew of the Yew-Hauser Timber Company was headed, and another on Swan Lake Ridge, which was being handled by a crew from the nearby Edgewood Ranch under the direction of Don Bacher. Another fire on Swan Lake Ridge was being handled directly by the KFPA, as were two in the Yainnax Butte area, and single fires in the Hildebrand area; on Squaw Point, just west of Upper Klamath Lake; on the south end of Eagle Ridge; close to Indian Springs near Round Lake; and on Clover Creek just south of the old Clover Station.

In The Day's News

(Continued from Page 1) Here in the State of Jefferson we're fairly extensive travelers. Many of our people who will read this piece have toured New York City in a bus—including China-Town, a Wall Street, Harlem, the Empire State building and the UN. They have gone on tours to Washington, Chicago, Buffalo and Niagara Falls. I ask you: Is that SEEING AMERICA? It's all fine, of course—and no one would say a word against it. But what these Russian visitors will see in a guided tour of that sort isn't the REAL AMERICA. That suggests these questions: What is the real America? How should it be seen in order to get an accurate picture of what America is and what America is like? Several years ago a Paris magazine, "Realites," sent a man-and-wife team, Pierre and Rene Gosset, to the U.S. to see what makes our country tick and what Americans are like. They didn't stop in New York. They left their plane in Kansas City. They bought a used car, and started out on their own. They were fortunate in that (like so many Europeans) they speak English. They shied away from the tourist centers and the big hotels. They stopped at motels along the way. Being charming people themselves, they got acquainted with everyday Americans. They were invited to everyday American homes. They were guests at home town neighborhood parties. In that way, they traveled from Kansas City to the Pacific Coast and back to K.C. When they got back to Paris, they KNEW AMERICA—and they wrote a series of pieces for their magazine that pictured AMERICA ACCURATELY to the French. That's the kind of tourists we need. Especially the kind of RUSSIAN tourists we need. If we could get the REAL AMERICA understood in Russia, even the communist big shots wouldn't be able to blather about how Russia is better than America. Only a dream, you say? Of course. But one has to dream at times.
