SHARON LARSON

NANCY LAYMAN

RICHARD SEIDEMAN

NEIL WEST

Four Klamath Falls young people have been awarded $138 partial-tuition scholarships for 1958-59 at Oregon State College.

Those receiving the scholarships are Sharon Larson, daughter of Mrs. Emma R. Larson, 2012 Main Street; Nancy Layman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Layman, 1138 Lincoln Street; Richard Seideman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo E. Seideman, 1834 Leroy Street; and Neil West, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald West, Route 2.

Those sponsored each year by the state system of higher education for a limited number of outstanding students enrolled in college, and for some promising high school graduates who will be entering college.

Miss Larson is majoring in secondary education at OSC; she will be a senior. Miss Layman will be a sophomore in engineering as will Seideman. West will be a junior in education.

All four students are graduates of Klamath Union High School.

GOP Campaign Managers Feel Confidence Upsurge

CHICAGO (UPI) — Republican campaign managers felt an upsurge in confidence from the grass roots today for just about the first time since the beginning of 1957.

This was the feeling which the party professionals took away from a two-day national committee meeting at which 1958 campaign plans were discussed with state GOP spokesmen.

The meeting was featured by a series of pep talks, including a telephoned speech by President Eisenhower Wednesday, to rout defeatism in the GOP's own ranks. But as the party prepared to open its drive to win back control of Congress, the odds-makers still favored the Democrats.

Tentative campaign plans were reported to call for the President to talk more directly to the voters in campaign speeches this fall in the states of New York, Iowa and California. Vice President Richard M. Nixon will have a longer travel schedule.

At the meeting here, Republicans from various states gave the national party chiefs a fresh spirit of optimism.

Similar meetings last year were gripe sessions marked by complaints about Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, President Eisenhower's budget and administration proposals for federal aid for schools.

A national committee meeting last winter reflected the first Republican scare about the political impact of the recession. State chairmen who met in Washington two months ago worried about the disclosure that presidential aide Sherman Adams had accepted gifts from a favor-seeking friend.

With these issues dead or apparently fading, the GOP now is leaning toward a "peace and prosperity" campaign pitch like that of the 1956 Eisenhower reelection campaign. There also is widespread agreement on making an issue of the Democratic record on labor reforms.

"There is more optimism among Republicans here than in Washington," was the summation of one of the party pros.

"There is a better feeling now and we've no place to go but up," was the comment of another. "We'd have been clobbered if the election had been two months ago."

However, some of the rosy forecasts from the states were still received with a degree of skepticism by some of the national party managers.

Private estimates about the chances of winning control of the House and Senate tended to be much more cautious than public predictions. But Eisenhower told the meeting that the party could achieve "great gains" in both branches of Congress if it could turn out a big vote this fall.

Girl Facing Amputations

JERSEY CITY, N. J. (UPI) — A 13-year-old girl agreed Wednesday to have both her legs amputated in order to walk for the first time in her life.

Doctors said artificial legs are needed for young Karleen Queeney, who is paralyzed from the knees down.

Karleen was born with a spinal abnormality. A corrective operation when she was a month old left her legs permanently paralyzed.

"I think I'll be able to walk, dance and ride a horse with new legs," the girl said in agreeing to the amputation.

The operation is scheduled for next month in Philadelphia at Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children.

Since she was five and a half months old, Karleen has been in a plaster cast or in braces. Without artificial legs, she would have to spend the rest of her life in a wheelchair, the doctors said.
