'Last Supper' On Exhibit

SALEM (Special) — A priceless pearl carving of the "Last Supper" is being shown in a unique art exhibit at the greater Oregon State Fair, which opened in Salem Thursday. The exhibit is shown by John Korenian of Klamath Falls and the carving is considered the most precious article in his collection which includes art objects from all parts of the world.

The carving was made 254 years ago by one of Korenian's ancestors in Armenia. It was stolen in 1801 and Korenian finally found it, after many years of searching, in Seattle in 1924. About three by four in size, including the frame, it had a border of diamonds and rubies when stolen. These had been removed when Korenian found it and he has replaced them with imitations.

The "Last Supper" has had few public exhibitions. It was shown at the Century of Progress in 1933-34; the World's Fair in San Francisco; and the Centennial in Dallas, Texas, in 1936.

The carving is one of about 200 pieces which Korenian is exhibiting at the fair. Among them is a jewel box and solid gold snuff box which formerly belonged to Egypt's King Farouk; a solid gold belt made in Turkey; a solid gold belt made in 1640 for a queen of Austria; and glasses that are from 4,000 to 5,000 years old.

Many beautiful hangings are in the exhibit. One was given Korenian by the father of the late King Faisal of Iraq who was killed in the recent revolt. Also included are many beautiful Oriental rugs from Persia, India and Turkey. There is a miniature loom showing how Oriental rugs are made.
