Gunman Kidnaps Officer; Surrenders At Roadblock

GLADEWATER, Tex. (AP)—A gunman kidnaped a policeman and forced him to drive a hundred miles at top speed today while he fired at pursuing officers.

The chase ended abruptly at a roadblock just east of here when the gunman allowed the officer to halt. The gunman threw his two pistols in the policeman's lap and surrendered.

"I'm so nervous I can hardly talk," Sgt. Harvey Derrick of the Irving Police Department said.

He said pursuing units of the state highway patrol were unable to fire at the fleeing auto for fear of hitting him.

Derrick, driving alone in his police car, had gone to answer a disturbance complaint in Irving, between Fort Worth and Dallas.

"This man came up to me and got the drop on me," he said. "He took my gun and told me if I'd do as he said he wouldn't kill me."

Police were not able to positively identify the kidnaper immediately.

Derrick radioed headquarters at 11:25 p.m. saying he was being held prisoner at gunpoint and that his captor ordered all other police cars to stay clear. Then his radio went silent.

The police car was spotted in Dallas, then lost again. It was spotted a few minutes later on U.S. 80, heading east from Dallas and Irving.

"He forced me to drive at top speed, about 110 miles an hour," the officer said. "He fired 10 or 15 times at the two state highway patrol cars following. Everytime they tried to close up a little, he'd shoot."

"I was so nervous I didn't keep close count."

One bullet went through the windshield of a pursuing car. No one was hit. All local police along the route were warned to keep clear and to keep the highway clear.

Police set up a roadblock with big trucks just east of this east Texas city.

"He let me stop there and just tossed the two pistols in my lap and surrendered," the officer said.

Both the officer and the gunman were taken to the police station here.

Union Distributes Notes On Number Two Teamster

ST. LOUIS (AP)—After St. Louis Police Capt. Thomas Moran described Teamster Harold J. Gibbons to the U. S. Senate Rackets Investigating Committee as a cop-hating associate of hoodlums, the Teamster Union quickly distributed a brochure on its No. 2 leader.

It pictured Gibbons as an intellectual who had studied economics, lectured at universities on labor affairs and was active in civic work in St. Louis.

The committee heard a different story last week. Gibbons sat silently and sometimes glumly as a parade of witnesses charged he dealt in violence, used hired hoodlums, that he literally bought a St. Louis Teamsters Union local and rigged his own election as head of the St. Louis Joint Council of Teamsters.

This controversial figure is expected to be called before the Rackets Committee today. Those who know him expect a good show from the international vice president and right-hand man of Teamsters President Jimmy Hoffa.

Gibbons himself said "One thing is certain. I won't be taking the Fifth Amendment. I think I'll be able to answer everything if given time to check the records."

As he talked, a large staff of lawyers was methodically reviewing the committee's evidence and arming him with answers. Atty. Stanley M. Rosenblum of St. Louis will lug three suitcases to the hearing, containing documents to help Gibbons answer the questions.

Gibbons may be one of the most paradoxical figures the senators have ever encountered.

Harold Joseph Patrick Gibbons, 47, the youngest of an Irish immigrant's 23 children, worked on his first job as a $10-a-week dishwasher, seven days a week, 12 hours a day in Scranton, Pa. He never finished high school.

Yet he is a student of economics and labor and has lectured on labor affairs at Harvard, Princeton, the University of Chicago and the University of California.

At 6 feet 1 1/2 and 195 pounds with graying hair atop a towering forehead, the married father of three, is an impressive man. His sensitive face, dark blue suits and

Margin Congress Districts Look Like Promised Land

WASHINGTON (AP)—Forty-seven marginal congressional districts in 15 Midwest and Western states are beginning to look like the promised land to major party strategists battling for control of the House.

In the 15 states, stretching from Ohio to the Pacific Coast, there are 26 House seats Republicans won by a whisker in 1956 and 21 in which Democrats nosed out their opponents by less than 3 per cent of the votes.

While neither party is going to ignore similar situations in Eastern states like Pennsylvania and New Jersey, the suspicion is mounting in both camps that the people who live west of the Ohio River are going to have a major voice in saying who runs the House for the next two years.

When Congress went home to campaign, Democrats held a comfortable House margin of 35 seats. The lineup was 232 Democrats, 197 Republicans and 6 vacancies.

Rep. Michael J. Kirwan of Ohio, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, has predicted his party's edge will be increased by 30 in the November elections.

Rep. Richard M. Simpson of Pennsylvania, head of the GOP Congressional Campaign Committee, has not been as optimistic. But he has joined Republican National Chairman Meade ALCORN in contending there has been a recent upturn in their party's prospects.

The Midwest states of Illinois, Missouri and Kansas seem likely to furnish the hottest battleground in the marginal districts.

In 1956, Illinois and Missouri each had six areas where the margin between opposing candidates was less than 5 per cent.

Democrats are taking aim at Kansas too, where they regard four of the five GOP-held seats as marginal. They plan strenuous efforts to capture these four GOP seats as well as to save the one marginal seat they hold in Kansas.

In other Midwestern areas, there are four marginal seats each in Iowa and Indiana, three

Furniture Sold By Wrong Owner

GOLDSBORO, N. C. (AP)—Furniture dealer Hayden Stuart of LaGrange overheard a stranger offer to sell kitchen appliances.

The stranger took him to 209 East Spruce St., and they settled on a price for a stove and refrigerator.

After Stuart's truck picked them up, police received this telephone call from Wayne Davenport: "I live at 209 East Spruce St. I just got home and somebody has been here and stolen my stove and refrigerator."

Government Merges Radar

WASHINGTON (AP)—A large-scale merger of civilian and military long-range radar equipment to scan the skyways was announced by the government today.

Joint use of the electronic eyes for civil air traffic control and for air defense is expected to save many millions of dollars and allow smoother performance of both types of operations.

Civil Aeronautics Administrator James T. Pyle and Lt. Gen. J. H. Atkinson, chief of the Air Defense Command, announced the program scheduled to go into effect some time this fall.

Initial plans call for joint use of 31 high-power radar facilities with aircraft spotting capability reported at 135 to 200 miles. More radar sets are planned for the joint service later.

The CAA intends to employ the radar for its air traffic control tasks. The Air Force, Army and National Guard will use it for air defense. The heavy radar equipment stretches across the country from Seattle to Miami.

Besides allowing lower equipment and operating costs, the joint use cuts down on radar interference and coordination problems.

The CAA estimated that of the 100 radar sets planned for the joint traffic control system more than half will be for joint use by the military.
