

OUTWARD TO THE STARS (10)—Loneliness

By Don Oakley and Ralph Lane

(1) Few men so far have spent any considerable amount of time in what can be considered space. On Aug. 20, 1957, one man, Air Force Major David G. Simons rode a research balloon to a record altitude of 102,000 feet. At that distance 99 per cent of Earth's atmosphere was below him. He experienced every situation a man in a rocket satellite will have to face, except weightlessness and the initial acceleration—and high-speed re-entry.

(2) A camera inside the balloon capsule took a picture like this of Major Simons. Upon landing the major said that his most striking impression was the feeling of loneliness in an "unfriendly realm." How much more so it will be for the first pilot of an orbiting satellite.

(3) To see just how men will be able to live and function inside the confines of a spaceship, the Air Force has been simulating space voyages for almost four years at the School of Aviation Medicine at Randolph AFB, Tex., and also at Wright Air Development Center in Dayton, Ohio. Above, at Dayton, a "ground crew" monitors a mock-up spaceship, observing the effects of a five-day isolation test on the "passengers" inside.

(4) In the cramped interior of the cabin, conditions are made to approximate those that will be met in actual space. Tests in one-man chambers have also been conducted.

The first space "man" could be a woman, for at least one member of the "weaker" sex has outperformed men in isolation tests at the Wright Center.

Achieving fame at Randolph Field school was Airman Donald G. Farrell, who successfully completed a seven-day "space flight" inside a capsule, breathing an entirely synthetic atmosphere. He was, to all intents and purposes, alone in space.

Next: The Re-entry Problem.

Waist Up, Neckline Down In Demise Of Sack-Look

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The sacking of the sack and the demise of the chemise are good news in the film capital.

Movie lovelies sighed with relief when they heard that the sack look is being outmoded this fall by Paris' new empire look.

Hollywood husbands also applauded the changes except for expense.

In case you haven't heard, the empire line offers this change: Waistline up, neckline down. Skirts cut off at the knee. Except for Dior's, his skirts go to mid-calf.

Mitzi Gaynor, who claims she never succumbed to the sack, was probably the biggest booster for empire. Said Mitzi:

"I fell in love with it when I was in Europe, and I have been wearing it several months now. The new neckline and short skirt reveal, well, whatever there is to reveal; yet the undefined waistline provides just the right element of mystery to hold interest."

Ann Sothern, long-time advocate of snappy fashions, commented: "I'll be happy to see the change. But I haven't decided yet whether it's because I actually like the empire look or because I loathed the sack look."

A Latin observation from Katy Jurado: "It will make American women look better, but will it make American men better lovers?"

Vera Miles wasn't too sure. "A new fashion," she said, "always brings forth from me a solemn vow that I'll never be caught wearing it. A month later I'm on the bandwagon. Today I'm certain I'll never be seen in a dress with the current unflattering high waistline. Next month I may happily be wearing one."

Jan Clayton, contending American women can't be stampeded, volunteered: "The new empire line is fine—it gives us one more silhouette."

Movie males appeared both cheered and amused. Sample expressions:

Jack Carson — "For the first time, I wish I were an empire builder instead of an actor."

Dan Duryea — "Emotionally, I guess I like the newest look much better; but I know I'm not going to like it financially."

Walter Slezak — "At my age and weight, who cares?"

Police Seek Stolen Bikes

Police are looking for two bicycles which were stolen sometime between 7 and 10 o'clock Friday night at the Tower Theater.

The two bicycles were owned by John and Harold Tompkins, 1219 Lincoln, both Herald and News carriers, who reported the bikes were stolen while they were attending a movie.

One bicycle is a red and black Olympic, and the other is a red Higgins model.
