Lamps Flatter Your Rooms

Lamps of tapered-twist design—one black, one white—provide color contrast for a monochromatic beige room.

Decorative and useful, these lamps—hexagonal colonial balusters set on walnut bases—are as modern as today.

by Ruth W. Lee, home-furnishing consultant

ONE OF THE BIGGEST little problems when furnishing a room is the selection of lamps. Their function, location, and height must be considered, and they should be attractively coordinated with one another. One designer's clever answer is "companion" lamps—like except for size and scale.

The taller lamps, for use on contemporary lower-scaled tables, provide good reading light. Smaller matching lamps serve well for desks, at bedside tables, and on chests in living and dining areas.

Suitable for any home decor, these lamps feature simple white translucent shades atop black, ivory, or antique bronze or silver bases shaped like balusters or twisted columns.
