

Eddie Fisher Makes A Hit

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Eddie Fisher, relaxed and in shirt sleeves, made a hit last night in his first public appearance since his separation from Debbie Reynolds.

He sang for 10 minutes and was applauded loudly by more than 200 attending a Greater Los Angeles Press Club banquet.

Fisher and his estranged wife both had been invited before the couple parted. Debbie, who didn't appear, said last week she will divorce Fisher. This was after he and actress Elizabeth Taylor made headlines on a New York night club visit.

Fisher, who is recuperating from infectious mononucleosis, a blood disease, was pale and tense before he went on.

But once in the spotlight he relaxed, seemingly enjoying himself. The audience loved it.

He made no direct reference to his marital troubles, but after his first number the nervous singer shed his coat and smiled.

"It's hotter there than it has been anywhere," he said.

His first song, "I Hear Music," was not his usual opening number he told the audience. "The original song didn't seem appropriate right now."

His usual night club opener is a medley of songs billed: "Forget It."

At one point he seemed dissatisfied with his voice and told the crowd: "That wasn't the effects of my mononucleosis. It's just that I'm tired."

A spokesman said Fisher is taking antibiotics for the disease and is feeling better.

Straightforward Attorney Making Rules

WASHINGTON — A rangy, straightforward Irish lawyer named Martin Francis O'Donoghue is busy these days making rules for unruly Teamsters Union bosses.

A year ago O'Donoghue indirectly helped clear the way for James R. Hoffa to become Teamsters president. Now he's trying to shove reforms down Hoffa's throat.

A federal court selected the 55-year-old attorney last May as chief monitor to call the shots in a corruption cleanup, and O'Donoghue took over with gusto.

He's kept up since then a steady barrage of reform orders aimed at Hoffa and fellow Teamsters leaders—orders to safeguard union funds, insure democratic elections and boot out Teamsters bigwigs labeled in Senate hearings as thieves or hoodlums.

"I'm going to call 'em as I see 'em," he said when he took over, "and if the Teamsters don't like it, let them blow their tops."

The Teamsters don't like it, not a bit. They've been yielding to O'Donoghue's insistent cleanup orders only inch by inch.

But inching isn't fast enough for O'Donoghue. He's announced he's going to court today to get more backing to deal with Hoffa and the union's corruption problems.

Few people in Washington are natives of the city. But O'Donoghue is one of the rarities, born here July 1, 1903. He was graduated from Holy Cross College and Georgetown University Law School, where he also taught for a decade.

Marty, as everyone calls him, knows labor unions inside out. He's specialized in representing labor organizations for a quarter century. That's how the Teamsters came to hire him last fall: as a lawyer for rival unions he'd given the Teamsters plenty of trouble in lawsuits.

Dave Beck, Teamsters president then about to retire under a cloud of corruption charges, exploded when he heard about it: "I never thought I'd see the day when O'Donoghue represented the Teamsters." Marty had once given Beck a rugged weeklong cross-examination in a union legal case.

O'Donoghue agreed to fight an injunction plea seeking to block a convention called to name Hoffa as Beck's successor. But he stipulated that he was making no defense of either Beck or Hoffa in court. He didn't, and the injunction was knocked out on appeal.

When the Teamsters then held their convention in Miami Beach a year ago, elected Hoffa and

Self-Imposed Ban On Tests May Be Dropped By Russia

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union renewed today its threats to end a self-imposed ban on nuclear weapons tests unless the United States and Britain stop their tests immediately.

The two Western powers have announced a halt to tests for one year, beginning Oct. 31, when they open talks with the Soviet Union on a worldwide nuclear explosion ban, provided the Soviet suspension continues.

Moscow radio did not mention this Western suspension. But it indicated the Kremlin cannot wait until Oct. 31.

"If Britain and the U.S.A. continue to perfect nuclear weapons by means of test explosions, the Soviet Union also probably will be forced in the final analysis to resume tests," the English-language broadcast said.

"Western powers are simply forcing the Soviet Union to take back" its own test suspension announced last March 31, the radio added. That suspension came shortly after the Soviet Union concluded an extensive series of nuclear blasts and just before tests by the United States and Britain were to begin.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko said at the time the Kremlin would feel free to resume testing if the two Western nuclear powers failed to follow suit.

East-West scientists agreed in Geneva Aug. 21 that a worldwide system to enforce a nuclear weapons test ban was technically feasible. The next day Washington and London proposed political talks on a ban and offered to stop their tests when the talks opened if the
