MAN'S BEST FRIEND stopped for a breather and had his picture taken. This is Curly, a sturdy black horse who has been along on the Modoc Tribe Ride so often he knows the way all by himself. Any horse that can carry the vast bulk of a desk-bound newspaperman along the steep trails of the Warners is a splendid beast indeed. And curly did just that. Without complaining.

Livestock Advisory Unit Meets To Talk Problems

William F. Marshall, Klamath Falls, was in Salem recently to participate in a meeting of the State Department of Agriculture's livestock advisory committee.

The committee decided the problem of how to maintain an adequate livestock theft control program on the amount of money now available to enforce it should be presented to the Oregon Cattlemen's Association at the annual meeting at Redmond in November.

The department will prepare a fiscal analysis and comparison of the Oregon livestock brand inspection program's 1957 and 1958 receipts and expenditures to present to the industry organization.

At the Friday meeting, department officials pointed out that the receipts anticipated from the present brand inspection fee of 25 cents per head will not meet the estimated expenditures of $535,000 for the 1959-61 biennium. The livestock brand inspection program is supported entirely by the industry on a fee basis. Since 1950 the average number of cattle inspected each year is 705,625 and the program is presently $46,000 in the red.

Before the annual meeting of the Oregon Cattlemen's Association, department officials will study the savings possible if clearance of out-of-state cattle were dropped from the livestock brand inspection program. A report on savings possible through changing inspection methods at federal posted saleyards will also be prepared.

The committee also asked the department to investigate the revenue possible by charging individual stockmen for mileage on point of origin inspections and estray investigations.

In other action, the committee recommended that:

1. The livestock brand re-recording fee to be left at $5 for a five-year period.
2. The brand re-recording fee when the brand owner uses the same design on cattle and horses be $5 for the cattle and $3 for the horses, or a combined fee of $8 instead of the present $10.
3. The law be changed to require a $10 fee for a new brand recording. (The present charge is $5.)
4. The transfer fee be raised to $5 from $1.
